Inflation Vigil Begins Again

Basford Hints Pay Controls

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said today another year of inflationary price increases may force the federal government to establish wage and price controls.

Basford, in a telephone interview from Vancouver, refused to specify what sort of controls the government may have in mind, but he warned that the watch against inflation is being strictly kept.

"It would be very difficult to deal with another round of inflation without some form of enforceable incomes policy," he said.

STILL STRONG

He noted that while the 12-month, 1.9 per cent increase in consumer prices through March 1971, was the "best in the western world" and below the two per cent considered to be the maximum non-inflationary gain, cost pressures are still strong in the economy.

"In another few months we are going to have to watch it very carefully."

In March, the consumer price index rose four-tenths of a point to 131.3 on a base of 1961 prices. The increase was due to higher prices for food, clothing and housing, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

In February, the index was 130.9. And in March, 1970, the figure stood at 128.9.

The only components of the index which did not rise last month were tobacco and alcohol.

LADS HAVE RIPPING TIME WITH $2,900

TORONTO (CP) — Seven Toronto boys found $2,900 in 1937, $10, $20 and $100 bills while playing in a city ravine Tuesday.

Robert Primmer, 7, literally fell face first into the cache of soggy, partially-frozen bills hidden under grass.

"I thought it was Monopoly or some other kind of phoney money," said Jeff Guenther, one of the finders of the bills bearing the likeness of King George VI.

The boys started ripping up some of the money and throwing it into the air before they thought it might be valuable.

They split up the money and took it to their homes, where their parents called police.

Police are circulating notices to see whether anyone claims it. Should no one claim the money, the boys can have it at the end of 90 days.

"I'm going to buy bubble gum, lots and lots of bubble gum," said Kirk Coggon, 6, another of the finders.

Four Nations Back Ceylon In Battle Against Rebels

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike thanked "friendly countries" Tuesday night for supplying urgently needed equipment for her troops and police fighting youthful insurgents.

Mrs. Bandaranaike did not name the countries or specify the equipment in her broadcast. But India, Pakistan, Britain and the United States all have sent arms or equipment to her leftist regime.

Indian and Pakistani helicopters can be seen taking off from a Colombo athletic field for areas where rebel attacks continue unabated. Britain is sending six more helicopters and a U.S. Air Force plane arrived Tuesday with spare parts badly needed by the Ceylonese air force.

Today is New Year's Day on the Buddhist calendar. But the three-day celebration was blighted by the uprising launched April 5 by young Marxist extremists who call themselves Che Guevarists after the Latin-American revolutionary.

Mrs. Bandaranaike said she was deeply grieved by the activities of the insurgents whom she said have abandoned the decencies of civilized life.

HIT REBEL HIDEOUT

Government forces assaulted an insurgent hideout at Maho in the northwest region killing 10 young rebels and capturing food and arms supplies, the government said today.

A spokesman said 65 bags of rice, large quantities of ammunition, guns and bombs, a tractor and a store of police tunics were recovered in the raid Tuesday. The tunics were apparently taken during the raids by the insurgents on police posts.

The government claims the insurgents are running out of food and arms and are turning to looting from civilians to bolster their dwindling stocks.

In a second engagement along the Puttalam-Anuradhapura road in the jungled northern sector of the island five rebels were killed, the government said.

Hundreds of insurgents have been reported killed in the last week.

The island's 16-hour daily curfew was lifted this morning and will be reimposed again at dusk.

Finance Minister N. M. Perera said the price the country is paying for the insurgents' campaign of destruction is "terrific."

CHINA PREMIER HINTS U.S. VISIT

Times News Services

PEKING — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai today hinted he would like to visit North America, possibly the United States.

He dropped the hint at a reception honoring the visiting U.S. table tennis team. Chou remarked that North America was one of the areas of the world he has not seen.

Chou also said many American correspondents will soon be allowed to come to China "in batches".

WINE, LIQUOR PLANNED FOR ALBERTA TAVERNS

EDMONTON (CP) — The Journal said today wine and liquor will be permitted in Alberta taverns under legislation now being considered by the provincial government.

Extension of licences to beverage rooms meeting certain standards likely will be an additional amendment introduced by the government through Provincial Treasurer Anders Aalborg during committee stages of Bill 88.

The bill would permit exhibition associations to have "beer gardens" at annual fairs, and also smaller restaurants to have beer and wine licences.

B.C. Teachers Vote To Keep Strike Tactic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the British Columbia Teachers' Federation voted in a special session Tuesday night to retain the strike tactic as a legitimate method of obtaining better pensions.

The vote, on a show of hands, was approved by a large majority of the 1,000 teachers, who were joined by about 22,000 other federation members Mar. 19 in staging a one-day strike on the contentious pension issue.

They also passed a resolution making the escalations of pensions to keep up with the cost of living a major objective.

WALKED OUT

The teachers walked out last month to protest the provincial government's lack on improvement in pensions for 2,200 of their retired fellow workers.

The B.C. government had introduced legislation calling for a seven-per-cent increase for retired teachers, bringing maximum monthly payments to $271.

However, teachers still working would receive a 50-percent hike.

Majority of the resolutions laid before the delegates were referred back for executive consideration, but the teachers voted around 75-25 against one motion that called on Premier W. A. C. Bennett to redirect the March 19 pay of striking teachers to retired teachers' pensions.

Delegates said it would be as "unworthy" as the premier's tactic of calling on teachers to donate a day's salary to the fund "if they really cared" about retired colleagues.

At the outset, the teachers knocked back a resolution asking that pensions be a subject for negotiation between the federation and the provincial government with impartial arbitration failing agreement.

Delegates sent the motion to pension and executive committees after pension committee chairman Tom Hutchinson warned of "implicit dangers."

Mr. Hutchinson said the federation would have to carefully determine just how strong a stand it was prepared to take to persuade the government to relinquish its the pension field.

He said delegates had to bear in mind the possibility of "unquestioned authority" in an independent arbitration board working within a dollar framework set by the government.

Guess even controlled wages w'd be better'n uncontrolled no-wages.

Nixon Announces Five Steps To Ease Peking Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today five new steps to ease relations with China, including a move toward direct trade between the two countries.

The other steps:

● The United States is prepared to expedite visas for visitors or groups of visitors from the Peoples Republic of China to the U.S.

● U.S. dollar currency controls are to be relaxed to permit the use of dollars by the Peoples Republic. Previously the U.S. treasury department had to grant a licence for the use of dollars.

● Restrictions will be ended on American oil companies providing fuel to ships or aircraft travelling to or from China except for Chinese-owned or chartered carriers bound to or from North Vietnam, North Korea or Cuba.

● U.S. vessels or aircraft now may carry Chinese cargoes between non-Chinese ports and U.S.-owned foreign-flag carriers may call at Chinese ports.

Nixon said that he asked for a list of items of non-strategic nature which could be placed under general licence for direct export to the Peoples Republic of China.

"Following my review and approval of specific items on this list, direct imports of designated items from China will then also be authorized," the president said.

He said that after consideration is given to the results of these changes in trade and travel restrictions "I will consider what additional steps might be taken."

Soldiers Aflame From Firebombs

BELFAST (AP)—For seven hours, 1,000 British troops battled 2,000 Protestants trying to firebomb a Roman Catholic church Tuesday night in the bloodiest rioting in Northern Ireland in weeks.

Four soldiers were set ablaze by Molotov cocktails at the height of the fight, but other troops doused the flames before they suffered serious injury.

The violence began after a 12-year-old Protestant, Harry Martin, was felled by a burst of automatic fire as a Protestant parade wound up four days of Easter demonstrations that until then had been peaceful.

Martin was either in the parade or watching it when some of the 3,000 young marchers broke through a protective police cordon around a Catholic section. The Protestants waved Union Jacks, the Catholics waved the Irish Republic's tricolor; then the burst of firing came, wounding young Martin and grazing three adults.

A bullet was removed from the child's thigh and he was reported in satisfactory condition. But an angry crowd of Protestants gathered and after an hour attacked St. Matthew's Church, which the Protestants charge is a sanctuary and snipers' post for the terrorist Irish Republican Army.

ERECT BARRIERS

The British troops threw up barriers of barbed wire and armor to keep back the mobs. The Protestants attacked with gasoline bombs, concrete slabs, bottles, rocks and iron.

"They started it, let us finish it," one Protestant shouted at the security forces who sealed off the area.

When the mob was finally put to flight, at least 13 civilians and several soldiers had been injured, and 27 persons had been arrested.

Several missiles hit the church but caused little damage.

A shop was set afire and windows of other stores were smashed and their contents strewn in the roadway. An army water cannon put out the blaze, and the troops fired several rounds of rubber bullets.

It was the first serious encounter between the troops and the Protestants since last October. Recently the trouble has been between the British and IRA extremists fighting to reunite Ireland.

CLOUDS USED TO HIDE AIRCRAFT COURSE

Toothbrush Hijackers Fooled by Pilot

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three young hijackers armed with sharpened toothbrush handles failed in an attempt Tuesday to divert a light passenger plane from its destination in Winnipeg, where they were being sent to make a court appearance.

The youths told the pilots to fly them "any place but Winnipeg" but their scheme was foiled when the pilots flew the plane through clouds to keep its course secret until the seven-passenger Navajo, owned by Midwest Airlines, was above Winnipeg.

The plane left Dauphin, Man. on a scheduled noon flight to Winnipeg carrying three other passengers—Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg and his wife, who had been in the west-central Manitoba town since Monday, and another unidentified passenger.

In Dauphin, probation officer Don Anderson said the youths were on their way for a scheduled court appearance in Winnipeg on a theft case. They had not been charged in the case.

He said the youths, from the Dauphin area, were being sent to a Winnipeg detention home.

Mr. Anderson said the practice has been to have such youngsters escorted to a waiting plane and to allow them to make the flight unescorted. An escort is appointed to meet the plane at its destination.

Pilot Robert Taylor outwits hijackers

"Of the hundreds of juveniles we've transported this way, we've never before had a single case of trouble."

In Winnipeg, Mr. Juba said today he wants a full investigation of the affair. He said the youths were "victims of circumstances" and he had promised to try to help them in their plight. He did not elaborate.

The mayor's executive assistant said Mr. Juba appeared upset and shaken when he was in his office Tuesday afternoon.

A spokesman for the airline said it has always regarded juveniles in detention on its planes as "clients of the welfare authorities."

He said the company now will start determining if the clients are known offenders

Pakistani Planes Bomb Separatists

By GRANVILLE WATTS

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The Press Trust of India reported continued bitter fighting today in East Pakistan, where government troops were said to have won control of two towns while separatist forces captured the jute centre of Sylhet.

The news agency said Pakistan air force planes bombed and strafed Bengali separatists as they battled for Sylhet in the far northeast corner of East Pakistan, but government ground forces were forced to withdraw to Shalutikor airfield five miles away.

The "Liberation Army" was reported holding half of Comilla after fierce fighting for the vital supply and communications centre.

But the Bengalis lost possession of the important railway town of Lalmonirhat in the north and Inajpur in the northwest as strong Pakistani forces pushed them back, PTI said.

INDIA FIRM

There was no independent confirmation of this and other Indian reports on the East Pakistan situation.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told reporters that China's declaration of open support for Pakistan on the East Pakistan situation would not deter India from its stand on the issue, PTI said.

India previously announced its solidarity with the Bangla Desh (Bengal nation) separatist movement.

Asked whether the Indian government would recognize the provisional government of Bangla Desh, announced Monday night, she said the matter would receive due consideration.

Shadow Mischief

Search Mounted For Dinghy Skipper

Lost: the owner of a 10-foot white dinghy with the name Conquistadore painted in red across her stern, sighted floating upside down 1½ miles south of D'Arey Island in Haro Strait Saturday morning.

First sighted by a plane, the dinghy was recovered by the navy gate vessel HMCS Porte De La Reine, which was in the area on a reserve training exercise.

The Pacific Rescue Centre reported today that a thorough search of the area had been made. A spokesman said the dinghy was probably being towed and broke her towing line without being noticed.

According to the centre's records a 28-foot yacht Conquistadore is owned by W. R. Emmanual, 1536 Cedar Hill. They have been unable to contact Emmanual because there is no phone listed at the home.

However, local yachtsman Don McCowan reports that a Vancouver sailboat of the same name was at Oak Bay Marina Friday and was later seen at Bedwell Harbor on Pender Island.

The dinghy could also have been washed off the stern of the larger vessel by heavy seas.

The spokesman said no boats had been reported missing or overdue in the area.

The finding of the dinghy was the second distress call that HMCS Porte De La Reine had answered in the two-day exercise.

On Friday it responded to a call from help from a cruiser reported to be on fire off Trial Island.

However, the skipper of the boat, the Green Bay, put the fire out with extinguishers he had on board. When the gate vessel arrived on the scene the Green Bay was close to shore, being escorted into port by a tugboat.

Aboard the gate vessel were members of the naval reserve division HMCS Griffin of Thunder Bay, Ont.

Local Grants Approved . . . Grudgingly

A total of $21,013 was approved in intermunicipal and local grants by Esquimalt council Tuesday in spite of rumblings from aldermen that the Victoria Symphony Society and the Greater Victoria Art Gallery did little for the working man.

Ald. Ken Hill noted: "These are services above the head of the working man. What I mean is, they're not for the masses, let's put it that way."

Out of a total grant to the art gallery of $24,000 in 1971, Esquimalt's share is $2,060. Esquimalt gives $858 toward a $10,000 grant from local area governments to the symphony society.

Mayor Arthur Young answered aldermen's objections that too many organizations take their allocations for granted. He said the grants come so late in the year that organizations must assume they'll get the amounts for which they've applied.

"For some, the season's half over already," he said.

Cool-Aid spokesman Charles Barber was questioned by the council before the beginning of the meeting. Later council approved a sum of $805 toward an intermunicipal grant of $9,360 for Cool-Aid.

Fisticuffs Postpone Wedding

A Sidney couple planning marriage Tuesday ended up before a justice of peace all right, but he fined them $15 each.

Before they reached the altar, however, Flora D. Hammontree, 43, and Victor Nolan, 44, had had a slugging match in public.

After they pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by fighting, Judge William Ostler told them Tuesday afternoon in court that if it takes so little to disrupt their relationship they should reconsider ideas of marriage.

Defence counsel Lloyd Doidge explained that the two were involved in a property case in another court and one of them had phoned the law office to say they had reconciled their differences and intended to get married Tuesday morning.

Prosecutor John Macintyre, however, read the circumstances of offence which occurred shortly after 11 a.m. in the 700-block Broughton.

Macintyre said Nolan was being chased by several other persons following a fight with the woman in which blows were thrown.

Ostler said the accused's behavior was unfortunate particularly on what was supposed to be their wedding day.

"Some marriage that'll be," Nolan responded.

Nolan then pointed out an unidentified woman in the public gallery and said "she should be tried."

He added that the woman had been "the bane of my life for seven years."

AEC Called Irresponsible

The United States' Atomic Energy Commission today was dubbed "irresponsible" by a spokesman oof the one-month-old Victoria Amchitka II organization.

Mrs. Rhoda Kaellis, 1034 Chamberlain, condemned AEC plans to detonate a five-megaton blast on Amchitka Island in the fall of this year.

"It is an indication of the irresponsibility of the commission in view of the fact that no assurance can be given by any scientific group or individual that underground testing on an earthquake fault will not result in catastrophic incidents to other nations situated on that fault."

Her group plans a public meeting next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook. Membership, says Mrs. Kaellis, is mounting.

The organization plans to send policy resolutions to scientific, ecological, anti-pollution, fisheries, and other concerned groups and individuals.

The resolutions will be sent to at least three countries that are immediately concerned — Japan, the United States and Canada — asking for support of the group's campaign to stop the proposed blast.

Five Charged For Parking Violations

Five persons have been charged under a section of an Oak Bay bylaw passed last fall which forbids the parking of commerical vehicles in residential areas, except in garages or carports.

Another 28 have been warned.

The section was passed almost unnoticed because of the furore raised by other parts of the bylaw governing the storage of campers, trailers and boats on properties.

Police Chief John Green said today that action at this time is only being focussed on vehicles that bear the name of a business firm although under the Motor Vehicle Act the definition includes unmarked vans and station wagons or cars with commercial plates.

He said the 28 residents who have been warned by the department "are trying to come in line with the bylaw."

Of the five charged, one has already appeared in court, where he pleaded guilty and was fined $15.

At the last council meeting, John Tarbuck, 2029 Newton, appeared to appeal his case. A plumber, who must be on call 24 hours a day, he has no garage or carport in which to store his commercial vehicle — or space on which to build one.

This morning the commercial section of the bylaw was reconsidered by the zoning committee headed by Ald. Alan Hory.

The committee's recommendations will be brought before council at its meeting Monday night.

City Artist Awarded Bursary

A $4,000 Canadian Council Arts bursary has been awarded to Victoria artist Flemming Jorgensen.

The 36-year-old painter-printmaker intends to use the money to further his projects in Victoria and later to study art trends in Canada.

It is the second bursary he has received from the council in two years.

Jorgensen's works are well known in Europe and Canada. He has exhibited in France, Britain and Switzerland.

In 1970, the 5th Triennale International of Colored Prints, Grechen, Switzerland, accepted two of his prints.

The 2nd Biennale International of Prints, Paris, and the 2nd Biennale International of Prints, Bradford, England — two major exhibitions — also accepted his works.

He has also won an award at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria jury show and a G. A. Reid Memorial award for Canadian etchers and engravers. They Royal Academy exhibition in the National Gallery, Ottawa, also accepted his prints.

Jorgensen recently held a one-man show in Winnipeg.

and if they are, "we'll insist that they be escorted while on the plane, the same way we insist that adult offenders be escorted."

Shortly after the plane's 11:50 a.m. takeoff, one of the juveniles, all described as about 16 years old, entered the plane's cockpit and ordered the pilot Robert Taylor of Winnipeg, to "put her down right here or there will be trouble."

Mr. Taylor, believing the youth held a knife, suggested Yorkton, Sask., as a destination because there was too much snow to land on a highway, the only suitable landing site. The youth agreed and the plane turned west.

PILOT REPORTS

The co-pilot, Maurice Durrant of Winnipeg, radioed Winnipeg International Airport and in a special hijack code told of their situation.

"It happened all at once and we were too busy to be scared," Mrs. Durrant said later in an interview. "We just did what we thought best and it worked out."

The youths took seats as Mr. Taylor flew into a heavy cloud bank and began gently turning back towards Winnipeg, 160 miles to the southeast.

Constant radio contact with Winnipeg was maintained on the pretence it was necessary to avoid mid-air collision.

As the aircraft left the clouds about one-half mile north of the airport, one of the youths shouted: "This isn't Yorkton. Why are we landing here?"

Two of them ran to the cockpit and one struggled briefly with Mr. Durrant.

POLICE MEET PLANE

RCMP and suburban St. James-Assiniboia police met the plane as it landed and followed it down the runway. The youths were taken into custody and turned over to juvenile authorities.

No charges have as yet been laid.

A spokesman for Midwest, a division of Transair Ltd., said the Navajo does not usually have both pilot and co-pilot, but did Tuesday because of adverse weather conditions.

Tuesday's incident was the second aircraft hijacking attempted in Canada. A 23-year-old Texan, Charles Lavern Beasley, hijacked an Air Canada Viscount aircraft from Saint John, N.B. in 1968 and attempted to force it to fly to Cuba.

He held the crew at gunpoint for more than three hours during refuelling in Montreal but was finally convinced by RCMP to surrender. Beasley was sentenced to six years imprisonment for diverting the aircraft.

The Transair-Midwest spokesman said "undoubtedly there will be legal action," but declined to elaborate.

Fire Damages Two Trucks

Damage to two company trucks to totalled $1,500 in a fire late Monday night at Dowell's Moving and Storage Ltd., 630 Esquimalt.

Victoria fire chief Eric Simmons said the department was called about 11:30 p.m. to fight the blaze that had started in the cab of one of the vehicles from smouldering materials.

He said flames broke out of the cab and caught on to wood and canvas rears of the two trucks.

The DBS stated that clothing prices showed the largest increase because of a return to regular prices after winter sales. Food prices rose five-tenths of one per cept last month but still remained lower than a year ago. Housing prices show the largest percentage increase for all components of the index.

When the annual increase is computed monthly, the figures show that the rate has been accelerating. For example, the 12-month increase through December, 1970 was 1.5 per cent, that for January was 1.6 per cent and 1.7 per cent in February.

FLOOD DANGER has spurred residents of Ottawa such as this homeowner across from the rising Rideau River to take special precautions. Saskatchewan Struggles to Control Rampaging Spring Flood Water

By JIM POLING

LUMSDEN, Sask. (CP) — About 150 volunteers and 200 soldiers are struggling to repel the flooding Qu'Appelle River which came close to engulfing the town two years ago.

Another 200 volunteers are being held in reserve at Regina, 18 miles southeast, where floods left 500 persons homeless earlier this week.

One of two roads from the town nestled in the Qu'Appelle Valley was cut off Tuesday when the river rose above a steel bridge leading to the Regina-Saskatoon highway.

The remaining access, a back road, is not threatened.

The Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission forecast the river would peak within 48 hours two inches below the record high level set in 1969.

Holding back the waters are 5.1 miles of dikes, some of them thrown up during the 1969 campaign.

A breakwater of power poles was strung across the west side of town to prevent wind from washing water over the dikes and down into the streets.

"We feel we can beat it," said Mayor Bill Johnson who spent 200 hours on the dikes during the 10-day seige two years ago.

"We're four days ahead of 1969. In 1969 we were laying the bags down in the water."

The Saskatchewan Emergency Measures Organization hopes to have sandbags piled one foot higher than the 1969 level.

Women and children were evacuated from the town in 1969 when it was feared the water could not be held back. The river receded just as the dikes began to give way.

"It could be 10 days before the danger has passed," the mayor said of the present threat.

SOLDIERS WORK SHIFTS

The soldiers, from the Canadian Forces Base at Shilo, Man., arrived Tuesday and are working eight-hour shifts.

An emergency headquarters had been established at the civic centre and workers are being fed by the women of the community.

The Qu'Appelle River runs through a deep depression in central Saskatchewan. It starts 100 miles northwest of Regina and flows eastward to join the Assiniboine River system which flows through Winnipeg and north into Hudson Bay.

The river started to rise late last week after several days of temperatures in the 50s.

A major concern, both here and in Regina, is the weather. Clear skies have been forecast for the next three days but officials said half an inch of rain would make the situation grave in both areas.

GROUND SOAKED

There is little snow left but the ground can not absorb any more water.

Premier Ross Thatcher has said the province will give financial help to Regina but has refused to declare four flooded residential districts, six to 20 blocks south and west of downtown, disaster areas.

The Regina flooding started Easter Sunday and affected 180 homes, some of them older, expensive structures bordering scenic Wascana Creek, source of the flood water.

The Wascana flows west through southern Regina and joins the Qu'Appelle just above Lumsden.

The creek was receding Tuesday but it was not known when the 500 people evacuated would be able to return to their homes.

City officials said damage estimates would not be available until the people could get into the houses.

BRIDE-TO-BE SET FOR TRIP

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 23-year-old bride-to-be who stocked up on drugs in preparation for her wedding trip was fined $225 Tuesday on possession charges.

Estelle Chabidon admitted having two ounces of marijuana, six marijuana cigarettes, a marijuana plant and a bag of seeds and four capsules of LSD in her Kitsilano apartment April 2.

Her lawyer said she was planning to go to Vancouver Island to get married and didn't know if there were drugs available for her own use.

Judge P. S. Miller gave her two months to raise the fine.

Survives Fall

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Scott Roesell, 24, fell 110 feet down an elevator shaft on a building site here and lived because two feet of water at the shaft bottom broke his fall. He was taken to hospital with suspected fractured arms and ribs and head injuries, but was said to be in satisfactory condition.

Love Note A Laugh For Franco

ROME (UPI) — Wren Dana Jovich opened the chocolate Easter egg, she found a note.

"If you are a pretty girl in search of love," it read, "come to Italy. The sunshine and love will make you beautiful."

The note was signed, "Franco Basile, Italy."

So Miss Jovich, 23, an employee of a building company in Sydney, Australia, came to Italy.

She also found Franco Basile, a worker in a confection company in Rome — and a happily married father of three children aged 8, 6 and 4.

"I did it for a joke," Basile said. "Some of my colleagues and I put three or four notes like that inside eggs."

He also said his wife enjoyed the joke.

They said the Minnesota Democrat, an unsuccessful candidate for his party's 1968 presidential nomination, also was asked to teach government and politics but declined.

Bigger—For What?

AN UNDERGROUND EXPLOsion with a force equivalent to five million tons of TNT may not blow up the Pacific Coast or set off catastrophic earth tremors. The probability is that it will not — if the experts' calculations are correct. But the chance is certainly there, and to every layman in the land it is a gamble that need not be taken.

Two other dangers that emerge from the Amchitka test program of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission are perhaps even more dismaying. One is the display of power by a government agency which appears to be out of reach of the United States public in whose name it acts. The other is the fact that tests of ever more lethal nuclear weapons continue during the series of conferences between Russia and the United States designed to reduce such armaments; the jousting for bargaining positions carries almost to the conference table. At some point, some nation will have to take the initiative and balance words with deeds.

Another consideration has been raised by U.S. Senator Mike Gravel, who in opposing the planned blast on the grounds that it will occur in a region of known faults in the earth's crust which is therefore prone to earthquakes, adds the opinion that the test is designed to develop a larger warhead for the Spartan interceptor in the ABM system, and that since "the Spartan may be obsolete in two years . . . the whole thing doesn't make sense."

In the present instance, the test could affect Canada as well as Alaska, and Ottawa has rightly brought this to Washington's attention with a warning of responsibility for any damage done.

The Amchitka blast, like the U.S. Army's plan last year to bring shiploads of lethal nerve gas through Juan de Fuca Strait, is typical of the publicly hazardous ventures undertaken by the military establishment in these days of bureaucratic authority and apparent detachment from direct responsibility to the public. The trend is particularly evident in the United States, to the point where the military structure is viewed by many citizens almost as an enemy within the state, to be opposed and curbed wherever possible.

Certainly it is no exaggeration to say that Pentagon-type thinking, although it may be based on twentieth-century military predicaments, is far behind much of the thinking of persons who have absorbed the doctrine that the peoples of the earth must live in peace if they are to live at all. The colossal international deterrents of complete mutual destruction may have been effective in preserving peace up to this point, but they represent a philosophy of desperation, a condition subject to instant reversal — perhaps by error or misunderstanding — which can at best offer only a reprieve rather than real security.

Amchitka is a part of this insane progression of move and countermove, and hence basically is a retrogressive action against the best interests of mankind.

". . . there's a rumor we may inherit the whole works this fall . . ."

Lake Victory

The New York Times

In what might be called an environmental drama in three acts, a determined group of conservationists and the Environmental Protection Agency have gone far to keep Lake Michigan from going the way of Lake Erie.

Two weeks ago, under pressure from the conservationists, the Northern Indiana Public Service Company broke the power industry's solid front by agreeing to build a wet cooling tower to prevent discharge into Lake Michigan of heated water from a lakeside nuclear plant. Shortly thereafter, thanks to the same effective pressure, the Consumers Power agreed not only to build a cooling tower for its generating station at South Haven, Mich., but also to upgrade its radioactive waste system so as to eliminate practically all dangerous discharges.

As a climax, three of the states bordering Lake Michigan then agreed to a proposal by William D. Ruckelshaus, the EPA administrator, that they require temperature-lowering devices at all lakeshore plants, whether fossil fuel or atomic. Illinois, the sole holdout, will almost surely have to conform.

These are no small gains.

If the conservationists' success at Lake Michigan sets new standards nationally—and perhaps raises the sights of the Atomic Energy Commission as to what is "reasonable and practicable"—they will have done another great service to the environment and the country.

Two Big Questions in Nixon's Withdrawal Speech

IN his latest speech on the Indo-China war, President Nixon said he would not set a specific date for "ending American involvement" in the conflict because this might put the remaining American troops in danger and interfere with the release of American prisoners of war. This raises two intriguing questions, one for Nixon and the other for officials of North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front:

Reston

First, would Nixon set a date for the total withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam if officials on the other side guaranteed the release of all prisoners of war and the safe evacuation of all American troops?

And second, would Hanoi and the N.L.F. agree to release the prisoners and guarantee the safe withdrawal of the American expeditionary forces if it got a guarantee that all Americans would be out of that country by a certain date?

It should be possible to clarify these two points. As things now stand, Washington is assuming that it cannot get guarantees for the safe withdrawal of its PoWs and the rest of its men, and Hanoi is assuming that it cannot get a guarantee that all U.S. troops will be out by a date certain, say the end of this year, but the two questions have not been asked or even raised as a basis for negotiating a compromise peace.

Let's hear from Hanoi on these points. Officials there have stated that their main objective is to get rid of all American troops.

Nixon has now said "Vietnamization has succeeded." He has also said in the same speech "the American involvement in Vietnam is coming to an end; the day the South Vietnamese can take over their own defence is in sight. Our goal is a total American withdrawal from Vietnam."

'Keeping My Pledge'

He added: "In my campaign for the presidency, I pledged to end American involvement in this war. I am keeping that pledge and I expect to be held accountable by the American people if I fail." To be sure, there were a lot of other more ambiguous remarks in the speech, but as the Senate G.O.P. whip, Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, said, "In a practical sense, he (Nixon) did set a date certain for ending U.S. involvement—Election Day 1972."

The main question about the president's speech now is not all the claims he made for Cambodia and Laos or the rhetoric about achieving "the great goals" for which so many Americans have died, but how to achieve the one objective both sides in the war seem to agree on — the total withdrawal of all American forces and the safe repatriation of all prisoners of war on both sides.

It is not necessary to risk embarrassment by public exploration of an exchange of guarantees on a date of withdrawal and the safe repatriation of all American troops. Nixon has quick and private lines of communication to Hanoi. He can get a message through in half an hour, and they can get through to him just as fast.

Also, private direct communication is possible between the two warring sides in many capitals of the world, free of the nosey press, and the two questions can be raised indirectly and secretly by the French and other third countries if either Nixon or the Hanoi officials wish to clarify the timing of a safe withdrawal.

Even if an attempt to get an answer to the two questions failed, no risk would be involved. The balance of power would not be affected. Even the propaganda war would not be substantially changed by discreet diplomatic exploration.

Hanoi and the Vietcong have far more prisoners of war in Saigon's hands than they have American and South Vietnamese prisoners, and there is little chance that any prisoners released would ever return to the battle.

Consequently, the very least that could be achieved by a deal on total safe withdrawal of the Americans by a certain date would be a clarification of the realities of the present situation.

Mr. Nixon said in his latest report on the war that he understood why people were skeptical of promises "that American involvement in this war is coming to an end." They were skeptical, he explained, "because many times in the past in this long and difficult war, actions have been announced from Washington that were supposed to lead to a reduction of American involvement in Vietnam, and over and over these actions resulted in more Americans going to Vietnam, and more casualties in Vietnam."

Down to Fact

The problem now is to get the issue of a specific date for withdrawal out of the realm of speculation and down to a foundation of fact. Nixon is only guessing that Hanoi will not let him get his PoWs and the rest of his men out safely by a certain date, and his critics are only guessing that by setting such a date he can surely get his men safely out.

But the mails still work, if not much else. The questions are obvious even if the answers are not sure, and as the man said who kissed the pretty girl, you never know unless you try.

Teacher Surplus?

WHILE MEMBERS ATTENDing the annual B.C. Teachers' Federation convention in Vancouver listen to talk of possible future organization as an agency responsible for teacher licensing, certification and professional standards, a blunt point is made by members of the profession now unemployed. According to a representative of the latter group, about 1,000 teachers are without jobs in the province today. The federation is charged with doing nothing to reduce that figure now or for the future.

The existence of a pool of teachers out of work is of particular significance at this time. In some parts of the province school boards, caught in a cost squeeze, are turning to the employment of teachers less highly certificated and consequently less expensive.

The dangers inherent in this trend are obvious. What it could do to standards is clear. A less expensive teacher, in many instances, will be hired in preference to one whose qualifications demand higher pay, not because school boards want the former, but because they are finding it increasingly difficult to finance the latter.

The importance of the teacher surplus should become apparent in this year's bargaining when teachers make their bids for what has become an almost automatic rise in pay scales. Spokesmen for the profession cannot afford, under existing circumstances, to ignore the fact that jobs are being sought by many of their members who have been unemployed and conceivably may be willing in future to take something less than the maximum the bargainers can extract from the trustees.

While the federation talks of potential advances in licensing, certification and establishment of standards, it must also keep in mind a rule of the market: When supply exceeds demand, the price tends to fall.

Closing the Deal

SHREWDLY MIXING THE BITter with the sweet, a high official of the European Common Market was able last week to arouse Canadian fears and hopes over the probability of Britain's joining the Common Market.

Mr. Franco Maria Malfatti, president of the European Common Market Commission, made it clear in Washington that Canada and the United States could not consult with the Common Market on substantive matters until after the Market was enlarged. This means, in other words, that this country and the United States will continue to be excluded from discussing trade matters with the ECM while Britain is engaged in delicate negotiations for entry. These negotiations could seriously affect Canada's exports to Britain.

Mr. Malfatti said that the main problems affecting British entry should be resolved by July, and that talks should be concluded in 1972. He predicted that the four new applicants (Britain, Ireland, Denmark and Norway) would form part of a ten-nation community by the start of 1973. The president of the ECM commission denied that the Market would set a trend toward isolated trading blocs and affirmed that matters of world trade could be discussed after the Market had been enlarged.

At the same time that he slammed the door on any immediate consideration for North American interests while discussions are continuing with the applicants, Mr. Malfatti held out the prospect that the larger community would, because of its affluence, be able to increase imports from abroad.

While it is desirable that Canadian interests should be considered in Common Market deliberations there are perhaps no feasible means for pressing our case now — matters are too far advanced for us to risk impeding a successful outcome to discussions which may make or break European unity. The prospects, which Mr. Malfatti suggests, of continued or even greater export opportunities to a larger and wealthier Common Market, could prove realistic.

On your front page of Wednesday, April 7, you printed a picture of activity at the child day-care centre recently opened by the B.C. Government Employees Union. Unfortunately the caption leaves the impression that the centre provides care only for the children of civil servants. This is not the case.

The centre is operated by our union as a community service project. We welcome any child three to five years old regardless of where its parents work. Fees can be scaled to the parents' ability to pay, in accordance with regulations governing the operation of non-profit centres. Such centres can be especially valuable to low-income or single parent families. A lone mother can be enabled to take full-time employment.

We are grateful for the publicity which has been given our project, and hope it may lead other unions or groups to follow our lead in providing such facilities.—W. F. Osselton, Chairman, Day Care Centre Committee, B.C. Government Employees Union.

Discrimination

Forced membership in unions is discrimination, so the B.C. Government's Bill to do away with automatic membership in the B.C. Teachers' is a "small step" in the right direction. But it, and the federal and other provincial Legislatures, should take a "giant step" and bar forced membership in any organization. — D. C. Harvey, 1284 Revercombe.

Valuable French

I'd like to heartily support the strong defence of bilingualism made by Mr. Jack Scott. Roughly a third of all Canadians speak French, including large minorities in Ontario, the Maritimes, and Manitoba, with smaller communities elsewhere, including over 40,000 residents of Vancouver.

With the increasing concern of Canadians for the economic and cultural independence of their country, a vigorous bioculturalism takes on added value for all of us. But can bilingualism, by gradual and reasonable stages, ever come to be a widespread success? These countries would seem to indicate it can: Belgium (French and Flemish), Switzerland (French, German Italian), Finland (Finnish and Swedish), and others.

In 1968, I received my BA degree in French at Uvic, and then taught it at the Grade 11 level, and I agree with Mr. Scott that the younger pupil can start his French, the better his chances of attaining bilingualism. But of course the value of the second official language does not stop at our borders. Globally, it is spoken not only in Canada, France, Switzerland and Belgium, but is official as well in fully half of Africa's 40-odd new nations, and is spoken or understood by educated thousands in the U.S., in South America, in the Arab world, in Indo-China, and throughout Europe. At the UN, it is second only to English in frequency of usage. Last year I was hired as a guide and interpreter at the Canadian Pavilion at Expo '70 in Japan, mainly because I speak Japanese, but also because my French made me a better representative of Canada. While there I met many young francophone Canadians, and became even prouder of our dual culture. Meeting representatives and tourists from all over the world, French often served me when English could not. — Ron Holland, 1164 Greenwood.

Inflation in Banks

Canada's head banker, Mr. Rasminsky, recently stated that if necessary unemployment should be maintained as an effective weapon against inflation. This is a very harsh and serious statement to make, to say the least, but I have to concede that it does at least show the concern of this gentleman about inflation.

Apparently, however, his counterparts in the various Chartered Banks in Canada, do not care about inflation, and to show their feelings very clearly they get together and raise bank charges a massive 28 to 33 per cent (depending on the type of account), this despite the fact that labor is being asked to hold their increases to around 6 or 7 per cent.

I find myself wondering also if the combines legislation has been repealed, because there can be no doubt that this is a monopoly of the worst form. Each bank without exception, has increased charges by the same amount, in the same manner, and to be effective on the same date as the others. If such legislation has not been repealed, why is our government sleeping instead of acting as it should be?

I do not forget that last year the banks, profit picture improved considerably over previous years, as is indicated by the statements which they issue for public scrutiny.—Harold Revens, 636 Dallas.

Federal Loan Fund

All news media carry tales of what is known as tight money and on that is placed the onus of our present-day financial woes. To a certain degree high interest rates on loans, mortgages, etc., must share the blame.

I would suggest that in order to alleviate the tensions and to secure a free flow of capital that the Dominion government establish a fund from which municipalities, school boards and similar bodies could borrow at a low interest rate, say three per cent. This would aid the now overburdened taxpayer by the creation of new employment. Again more employment would give the working force increased earnings, and to complete the circle more taxable earnings, also phasing out various forms of relief.

Another benefit: those loans could be extended to new industries and the various agricultural interests and co-ops.

Certain restrictions would be necessary to prevent the spread of irresponsible or grandiose and futile ideas.

Opposition to such a scheme would be tremendous. The giants of finance, many trade unions, speculators, large and small, and a host of others would raise a unified protest as they saw the unearned dollars slip from their grasp. But greed, a common fault in human behavior, is the biggest threat to any such scheme. —The Critic.

Masterpiece

May I express my appreciation of your columist Jack Scott. I always enjoy his writing but the recent column on Quebec was a masterpiece.

For 20 years I have been trying to make the same points in argument with my western Canadian friends but alas with so much less eloquence.

As one who lived for 19 years in the province of Quebec I endorse every word of Mr. Scott's case for a proper appreciation of the Quebecois and the French language. — D. T. Goodwin, Sidney, B.C.

Looking Back

From the Times of April 14, 1911:

NEW YORK — Sir Frank Newness, the English publisher, who was in New York today on his way home from a month's tour of Canada, found the people of the Dominion overwhelmingly enthusiastic for reciprocity. He travelled from Montreal to Winnipeg, visiting the principal centres of population, particularly with a view to ascertaining the sentiment of all classes on the proposed tariff agreement.

The Big Hard Sell to Keep U.S. Magazines Canadian

By ANTHONY WESTALL

OTTAWA — "Dear Mr. Davey," wrote Reader's Digest to the prospective sucker in Don Mills. "You and you alone have been selected to receive the six lucky numbers which appear on the last page of your personal 'bankbook'. They give you six chances to win the Grand Prize of $1,000 a month for a full year in the big new 'Happy Times' Sweepstakes

Although the phoney bankbook was marked personal and confidential, the computer which sent it to Mr. Davey of Don Mills could hardly have known that he is also Senator Keith Davey of Ottawa, who is doing his best to turn happy times into harder times for Reader's Digest in Canada.

Indeed, the sophisticated lobbyists at the Digest would surely be appalled at the idea of offering $12,000 under any guise to the chairman of the Senate Committee on the Mass Media which has recommended stripping the magazine of its special tax privileges. They have far more discreet ways of persuading legislators that they should not lose their preferred position.

And it looks as if they may very well succeed. There seems to be a growing opinion on Parliament Hill that the Digest deserves better treatment than Time Magazine, the other great American periodical which benefits from special tax status in Canada.

The magazine issue will probably be discussed in Revenue Minister Herb Gray's forthcoming policy paper on foreign investment in Canada — it is another in the long series of complications which have made the study far more extensive than at first planned and delayed its production. It may then be reviewed by a Commons committee and referred to cabinet for final decision.

Meantime, senators, MPs, Liberal party activists and people in the advertising industry are being wooed by a quietly effective lobby. They are being persuaded that the Digest is a better Canadian Citizen than Time and presents no threat to the economic well-being of Canadian magazines.

The Digest company in Montreal is also fortunate to be located in the constituency of no less a figure than C. M. "Bud" Drury, president of the Treasury Board and influential adviser to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

The case that has long been made against Canadian editions of U.S. magazines is that they compete unfairly with genuine Canadian magazines. They import much of their editorial content from parent editions in the United States, so their costs in Canada are low and they are able to grab a huge share of the limited Canadian advertising available to all periodicals.

Canadian magazines thus have to struggle to survive and do not have the resources to play their vital role in developing Canadian, as distinct from American, cultural identity.

Several attempts have been made over the years to deal with this problem, without much success. But when Walter Gordon was finance minister in 1964, he pursued his nationalist objectives at least to the extent of trying to ensure that existing Canadian publications would be safe from foreign takeover.

He introduced a tax device making it uneconomic for foreigners to publish in Canada. However, Time and Reader's Digest were excluded from this provision and treated exactly as if they were Canadian-owned. The reason given at the time was that both magazines had been established in Canada for years.

Gordon later suggested that the real reason was the cabinet's desire, which he approved, not to anger the powerful owners of Time Magazine in the United States just when the Canadian government was negotiating a favorable deal with the U.S. government on the auto industry. Other ministers who were in the Pearson cabinet in 1964 don't entirely agree with Gordon's recollection and there may be some interesting new light thrown on the deal with Time and the Digest in political memoirs which are likely to be published in the next few years.

But whatever the secret history of the incident, the fact remains that the two U.S. magazines have enjoyed a privileged and profitable position in Canada. They are naturally concerned at the Davey committee's proposal to remove their special protection in the hope that advertising revenue would be diverted to the hungry Canadian industry.

Having staved off this disaster a couple of times before by pressing their arguments on legislators and on the government — with some quiet assistance from the U.S. embassy, when necessary — they obviously hope to be able to repeat the performance.

Almost everyone knows what it is like to be on the receiving end of a selling

WALTER GORDON
. . . He tried

campaign by aggressive U.S. circulation managers: the stream of special prices, glamorous competitions and give-away prizes. Well, parliamentarians and others now get all that junk mail plus special letters and booklets explaining the merits of the magazines in Canada.

Some if not all get free subscriptions to the magazines and copies of the books which the publishers put out.

The Digest seems to be more active in this form of lobbying, perhaps because it has more to say about its Canadian activities. In January, for example, Digest president E. P. Zimmerman sent to parliamentarians a free copy of the magazine's anthology, Canada — This Land, These People, noting proudly that it had sold 120,000 copies in English and French, and adding: "You may be interested that the volume was designed, edited, and illustrated in Montreal, printed in Vancouver, B.C., and that the paper, in this instance, came from British Columbia mills. The total typesetting, printing and binding bill was $375,100 and the mailing costs to date $56,479. This publication is but one facet of our company's continuing enterprise which, in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970, benefitted our national economy by more than $17 million.

"The Reader's Digest has been printing and publishing in Canada since 1943. In the years since, its direct and indirect employment has grown to more than 1,300 Canadians. Its management, staff and four of its six directors are Canadian citizens or landed immigrants. Its stock is 30 per cent owned by Canadians and is traded only on Canadian stock exchanges."

That's quite a lot of information to package with a free book, but Zimmerman's letter continued for two more pages arguing politely with the Senate committee's report. It made the point that the value of advertising carried by the Digest in Canada actually fell in the years 1960-69, while the value carried by Time jumped by over 100 per cent.

Two weeks after Zimmerman wrote to MPs, Time Canada's president, Stephen S. Larue also sent out a book and a letter, but it was a modest effort: a compilation of business articles published in the magazine in 1969-70.

A few weeks after the national policy conference of the Liberal Party voted in November to ask the government to remove the tax privileges enjoyed by the U.S. magazines, Zimmerman circulated a two page letter to delegates emphasing the Canadianization of the Digest, pointing out that its share of advertising has been declining, and explaining:

"Our Canadian shareholders, who number more than 1,000, have invested in Reader's Digest in the knowledge that the company has already met the standards of good corporate citizenship and that they could expect that the monies invested would not be subject to any greater risk than those implicit in any responsible corporate venture.

"Retroactive legislation, which could destroy shareholders investment in our company is not, we suggest, in the tradition of the Canadian government and neither, as we have tried to illustrate, can it be in the interests of the Canadian magazine industry nor the public."

This suggestion that legislation to remove the privileges enjoyed by Time and Reader's Digest would be retroactive and somwhow unfair is one of the main arguments being developed by the lobbyists. A second persuasive point is that advertising displaced from the U.S. periodicals would not in fact go to assist Canadian magazines.

Feeling the pressure developing, Senator Davey met some of the arguments in a recent speech in Montreal. He noted first that tax privileges, however granted, cannot be regarded as permanent and beyond change, so the retroactivity case is not accepted.

The second point is harder to deal with because Canadian publishers themselves took the unexpected position before the Senate committee that they are willing to live with their U.S. competitors, and asked for no change in the tax laws. They seemed to think that Time and Reader's Digest are so successful that they create a market for advertising without which Canadian magazines might not survive.

Canada—This Land, These People And That Sucker in Don Mills

Reader's Digest Is Stuffing The Mail Boxes of Our Nation

But if the business managers think this way, some of the leading Canadian editors of the same magazines do not. Doris Anderson, editor of the successful periodical Chatelaine, has written to Davey to say: "I am convinced that Canada can support a lively, vigorous, provocative industry and that there are talented Canadians to do the job . . .

A strong periodical press is as necessary to Canada as an airline. A railroad or the CBC — a periodical press is absolutely vital."

Davey himself says he is confident the cabinet will lift the tax privileges because this course has been urged by three influential political bodies: the all-party Commons committee on relations with the United States, the Senate committee, and the Liberal policy conference. He recalls with a small smile that Prime Minister Trudeua wrote to Liberal delegates after the conference to assure them their resolutions "will not be shelved somewhere to gather dust for a few years."

Perhaps not, but Time and Reader's Digest are striving to make sure that that is exactly what does happen.

B.C. Passes the Buck In Pollution Control

The Vancouver Sun
An Editorial

The fraud that is the B.C. government's anti-pollution program has been definitively exposed by William N. Venables, director of its pollution control branch and administrator of its Pollution Control Act. Because he is very much a willing party to the duplicity, Mr. Venables' sad, bumbling explanation of his department's inaction in the latest Kootenay mining pollution scandal may be his greatest contribution to ecological decency in his 2½ years in the job.

A little recent history is in order if one is to fully savor the reasoning behind Mr. Venables' admission that "there is nothing we can do about the problems" of the river-polluting effluent that is escaping from the Kaiser coal operation's holding ponds by the millions of gallons a month.

Let us first go back to the late Sixties when Kaiser Resources, with the government already sold on strip-mining, was engaged in the more challenging chore of selling a skeptical public.

"Fears that Kaiser is going to rape the land . . . are unfounded," said a Kaiser executive. What the company would be doing, he went on, would be beautifying what previously had been a "horrible" landscape. 'We don't run a sloppy organization" was another quote.

Ah, well; it didn't take long for the bloom to wear off. Silt from overburden at the mining operations was polluting the Elk River and its feeder creeks as early as the spring of 1969. Conservation officers with the government's own fish and wildlife branch feared a year's fish-egg production had been ruined. Mines Minister Frank Richter didn't think it was the company's fault but Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan, who did, told the company to construct settling ponds immediately.

So, in time, Kaiser built settling ponds. But although it may not be "a sloppy organization," the ponds it built were in the current opinion of the province's chief of fisheries, "a haywire contraption."

While these developments were taking place in the East Kootenay beautification program, back at the pass the government wasn't exactly idle either.

In 1969, it brought in a new mining bill that Frank Richter said "recognized the need to preserve as much as possible of the esthetic value of our land for the benefit of future generations." He called the bill the toughest in North America.

The opposition in the legislature, however, called it called it "a paper tiger," and this editorial column called it "another mining disaster." We called it right. And Resources Minister Ray Williston confirmed us right even before the Kaiser effluent did.

As a responsible corporate citizen should, Kaiser applied not once but several times for its permit to pollute. The applications were turned down, as Mr. Venables says, for various technical or legal reasons. And because Kaiser has no permit, it does not come under the authority of Mr. Venables' pollution control board, or, if it can be imagined, of apparently anybody else.

A loophole this large is more than ridiculous; it is obscene, and all the more so in the light of Mr. Venables' statement that "there are probably several hundreds more who don't have permits" and thus are beyond pollution act prosecution.

One can sympathize with Mr. Venables' desire to pass the buck to the politicians who give him his marching orders. What he calls the government's soft approach manifests itself constantly.

Yet, as its willing patsy, Mr. Venables can not get off the hook this easily. In a rare interview only last month, Mr. Venables not only likened himself to a missionary in the anti-pollution field but said he believed he is administering one of the best pollution control acts in Canada.

New Threat In Pakistan

LE MONDE
An Editorial

Pakistan bears all the signs of a nation settling into what could well be a protracted civil war. Far from seeking some accommodation with the East Bengali separatists, even a settlement favourable to the central government, General Yahya Khan is increasing the pressure — and with a brutality suggesting that the repression is premeditated.

●

His plan, however, seems to have miscarried. While it is true that the army has succeeded in reestablishing a semblance of order in Dacca — for how long is anybody's guess — it has failed to pacify the vast eastern area as a whole. East Pakistan's inadequate communications network makes effective military control difficult if not downright impossible. Even if the Pakistani Air Force is systematically bombing rebel-held areas, as sporadic reports suggest, it will not be enough to contain the dissidents. Sooner or later, the West Pakistan Army will be forced to extend its operations on the ground.

●

Following a very familiar sequence, one already tested under other skies, further repression can only provoke more determined resistance, widening the gulf between the two sides and making reconciliation an even more remote possibility.

●

In any case, a prolonged stuggle between the two wings of Pakistan would create a serious risk of international involvement in the conflict. It is doubtful that Peking will stand idly by, especially in view of the attitude of the Indian government. New Delhi is already considering steps to prevent Pakistani planes from flying over its territory, and has asked Ceylon to take similar measures.

Two Trilliums Make Spring

By ART STOTT

Spring came Tuesday to the small place at Cigar-makers' Bay. Two trilliums bloomed clean white by the path, opening with the morning sun on forest duff where boulders have grown a fine, bushy crop of moss during the chill rains of Easter. The evening before, trout dimpled the calm lake and swallows swooped low above it to drink or catch flies. When darkness came, frogs began a small chorus that will grow stronger as the days stretch out.

It has been a late season for that part of Shawnigan. Rain that fell at the lower levels was snow higher up the hills. The breeze sifting down from the crests carried a bite. In gusts it swept frigid waves up the little beach and drove all but the enthusiastic fishermen indoors.

The small boy, though, with the quiet manner which may make him an angler, managed his few hours on the water. And there he encountered one of the mysteries of fishing. Though his short rod was new, his tackle proven in other seasons, the trout were not biting for him. They chose, instead, the improbable gear of an aging fisherman who is trying to teach him that there is much more to fishing than catching fish.

For the small boy it is a difficult lesson. Last season he trolled briefly, caught a nice cutthroat and assumed that, in the normal course of fair shares, more would come his way whenever he went out. This Easter it didn't work that way. He tried. He concentrated, but without success. It seemed a little unjust to him that his mentor should land three pan-sized trout while he failed to attract a bite.

★ ★ ★

In a simple rationalization to bolster his confidence, he conceived the theory that the fish must have tried his line and then somehow been caught on the other. They might not have been exactly his fish, but he had acquired an interest in them through a sharing process much approved in the family.

Natural, I suppose, that he should allow the elderly fisherman to clean the trout before he packed them up to the house for display, with the modest explanation that "we" caught them close to the little jetty.

There is, nevertheless, some puzzlement in him. On the basis of last season's experience, he feels entitled to hook and land his percentage of the catch — particularly with a new rod, even if it's short.

★ ★ ★

Still, the fishing has been only one feature of a busy Easter visit for him—a visit in which he fell in only once and then only up to his knee on one leg. The major incident of his stay has been the miracle of the chocolate and candy eggs Sunday morning — and his faith has been renewed.

The renewal stems from his older sister, with whom he had discussed the possibility that perhaps his mother was the Easter Bunny. "Couldn't be," the sister explained. "Mummy would never let us have all that candy all at once." Which seems a reasonable materialist's interpretation by a practical young lady.

So the days of rain, sharp wind, chill and spotty sun have passed with no great hardship to the small people. A glazed look has come to the faces of elders through the constant enjoyment of little ones playing so much indoors, and the aging fisherman, who doubles as woodcutter, weeps inwardly at the manner in which his pile of fuel has melted to keep the house warm.

The two trillium blooms have restored hope. They whisper of softer days ahead, of evenings when a normal ration of fuel will be adequate to bring comfort to the cottage and, perhaps, when fishing may seem less Arctic.

★ ★ ★

Loons are calling on the lake, a lonesome sound speaking of cold northern reaches. The grouse the children startled as they rushed along a woods' path will soon be drumming. A few robins are hopping, heads canted, by the edge of the clearing, gathering home-making grass and binding material. In swamps, the yellow aram has flared its banners, and the deep red, ochre and green lakeside brush is misting with the beginning of new leaf.

As darkness falls, the frogs sound random notes of a symphony tuning up.

There will be wind storms and more rain, but the back of the harsh season is broken — and the back of the woodcutter is only bent a little more.

The company's annual report says 1970 earnings from operations were increased by $12,000 from the sale of land and investments. The 1969 total had been boosted by $512,000 from sale of investments.

Natural gas sales during the year increased 12 per cent with industrial sales up 20 per cent.

RCA Corp. reports a slight dip in first-quarter earnings despite a gain in sales.

Net profits in the latest quarter declined to $23.8 million, or 30 cents a share, from $25.5 million, (33 cents) a year ago.

Sales advanced to $908.1 million from $836.3 million.

Interplex

Interplex Mining and Industrial reports net profits of $243,219 in 1970, up 40 per cent from the previous year's $173,423. Sales rose from $1.88 million to $2.95 million.

The Vancouver-based firm operates the Palm Springs chain of health spa resorts in cities from Victoria to Winnipeg, and has made an agreement to purchase three American operations.

He also said Universal-Guardian Acceptance Corp. Ltd. has agreed to reduce its discount rate covering membership contracts purchased from the spas, which would add $240,000 to Interplex's income this year.

Ford

Extreme pressure on Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. profit margin is brought by increased costs in wages and salaries, materials, safety and mandatory pollution control equipment.

President Karl E. Scott said car and truck sales in 1971 should recover to a level almost equal to 1969 as the economy recovers.

Earlier Ford reported 1970 profit of $69.4 million ($8.37 a share) vs. $72.3 million ($8.72) in 1969.

IBM

International Business Machines Corp. reports an increase in both gross income and earnings for the first quarter.

Earnings were $250.8 million or $2.19 a share compared with $230.26 million ($2.02) at the same time a year ago.

Kaiser

Kaiser Resources Ltd. had consolidated net operating losses of 6.4 million for the first quarter 1971 on sales of $14.3 million.

Results reflect the total activities of the company, including interest and all expenses related to surface mining during the period.

In the first quarter 1970 the company reported a net loss of $486,000, which was related only to the old underground mining operations and certain exploration activities. Interest and preproduction expenses related to the new surface mining complex were deferred.

The company is using new mining practices, modifying its preparation plant and renegotiating its Japanese contract in an effort to improve its financial position.

Reynolds

Reynolds Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd. reports 1970 net earnings of $801,704 or $2.08 a common share, down from $1.6 million ($4.37) in 1969.

Andre Piche, executive vice-president and managing director, blamed unpegging the Canadian dollar last spring and reduction of import duties on certain aluminum products for the drop in profits.

Sales in the year ended Dec. 31 were $33.59 million up slightly from $33 million the previous year.

Exchanges to Link Computers

NEW YORK (AP) — The two largest stock exchanges in the United States are nearing a decision on a revolutionary plan to combine their computerized operations.

The New York and American Stock exchanges have been discussing details of the proposal since last June.

If an agreement is reached, and independent corporation — tentatively named Securities industry Automation Corp. — would be set up.

Such a start could possibly lead to further consolidation of NYSE and Amex operations.

But Ralph S. Saul, Amex president, said this week in an interview: "I don't think there is any intention at this time to merge the two markets."

The independent agency under consideration was described by stock exchange executives as a "consolidated operating facility" which would eliminate duplication of services and produce economies. Computers already have taken over much of the detail work that had been done by hand for generations on Wall Street.

Instead of physically delivering stock certificates, the NYSE now employs a system called Central Certificate Service — CCS.

Brokers deposit shares in CCS, which credits them with a deposit much the same as a cheqing account is credited with a deposit of cash. Brokers have on deposit more than 600 million shares worth about $25 billion.

Now, instead of physically delivering certificates between each other, the computers credit the shares electronically and provide a balance sheet to each broker.

It is felt that ultimately CCS could eliminate 75 per cent of the movement of securities.

The exchanges are moving to new and more advanced phases of automation because of the expectation of a explosive increase in trading volume. The NYSE anticipates that by 1980 its volume will average 30 million shares a day with peak days reaching double that figure. In 1970, the average daily volume was 11.56 million shares and the peak daily total was 21.35 million shares.

GM Head Rules Out Isuzu Motor Takeover

TOKYO (UPI) — James M. Roche, chairman of General Motors Corp., said today his firm has no intention of taking over Isuzu Motor, a leading automobile maker, through a capital tieup between the two companies.

Roche, who arrived for a series of talks with Japanese government and Isuzu officials to complete the proposed capital tie-up with Isuzu, told newsmen at Haneda airport:

"We have no plan to take over or control the management of Isuzu, now or in future.

"In the General Motors approach to Isuzu, we are seeking a toehold in the far east from which we may expand our business in Japan and to the world market."

Roche said his company's policy was to develop the enterprise to the "mutual benefit" of the two auto firms.

"Naturally, it is the intention of General Motors to respect the policies of the Japanese government and to conform to the business cutoms and practices of the country," Roche said.

Roche said GM hopes to secure 35 per cent of Isuzu stocks. However, the Japanese government was reported reluctant to approve such ownership by GM for fear of a future take over of the Japanese firm.

DuPONT BUSINESS 'NOT AFFECTED'

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Shareholders of the DuPont Co. have been told that bankruptcy of the son of the firm's chairman would have no effect on the giant chemical company's business.

Charles B. McCoy, DuPont president, made the comment at the annual shareholders' meeting here after he was questioned about the bankruptcy of La Mont DuPont Copeland Jr., 39, whose father is chairman of the firm.

"The financial difficulty of La Mont DuPont Copeland in no way affects the DuPont Co. and is completely separated from the conduct of our business," McCoy said.

The son filed for bankruptcy last October, reporting assets of $25 million and total liabilities of $62.8 million. He is a former publisher of daily, semiweekly and weekly newspapers in California.

Hong Kong Market Good for Clothing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hong Kong, the world's second largest exporter of wearing apparel, is a wide-open market for Canadian-made women's clothing, an official of a Hong Kong trade mission said here Tuesday.

"It's just a matter of snob appeal," said Robert S. Sun, project manager for the 19-member mission, which arrived here Sunday on the start of a three-week tour of Canada.

"Only Italy exports more clothing than Hong Kong," said Sun. "But people are funny. They still like to wear foreign-made clothing themselves."

He said Canadian manufacturers would find a good market for women's wear, furs and shoes.

Sun also said there has been an increase recently in imports of Canadian food products, particularly frozen meat and poultry. He added:

"Hong Kong is also an awfully good market for Canadian machine tools and hand tools."

He said Hong Kong-made wigs were popular in Canada with wig sales to this country totalling $7.7 million in 1970, more than double the amount sold in 1969.

Sun said a considerable amount of Hong Kong money is being invested in Vancouver and predicted this would continue.

"There's a lot of money in Hong Kong. There's so much money floating around that people don't know how to spend it.

"It is not only Hong Kong money but money from overseas Chinese throughout Southeast Asia."

$42 BILLION SUIT IN DRUG DEATH

WASHINGTON (WP) — A Washington man whose two-year-old daughter died last month from an accidental dose of methadone has sued 40 defendants — including the director of the Narcotics Treatment Administration (NTA) for $42.8 billion.

Joseph Wilkens, a methadone-maintained patient at NTA, sued on behalf of his daughter, La Tanya Sharon Wilkens, who died March 2, five days after drinking the methadone dose in the living room of her home.

La Tanya's death was the first of a child in the city attributable to a methadone overdose, authorities said.

Dr. Robert Dupont, director of the NTA, said that as a result of the child's death, the NTA had switched from liquid methadone to tablets, which are being dispensed in containers with "childproof" plastic caps.

Dupont's initial reaction to Wilkens' suit was that "I don't think it has much merit."

Furious Hoover Closing Offices

WASHINGTON (WP) — The FBI is planning to shut down some of its 500 resident-agent offices throughout the U.S. in hopes of preventing any more embarrassing buglaries.

Tighter security was ordered by FBI director J. Edgar Hoover who is said to have been furious over the theft of more than 1,000 secret FBI documents from its Media, Pa., office March 8.

The FBI had no comment on the proposed closings and apparently no final decision has been made on which ones will be axed.

According to one account, the 76-year-old Hoover was so annoyed by the countrywide bath of publicity over the Media raid that he initially wanted all the FBI's sub-offices closed, but sources at the justice department predicted that less than a third of them will be shut down. At many others, however, stricter security measures will be put into effect.

According to local police, the burglars forced their way into the Media office through an unused door by pushing aside a file cabinet that normally blocked it on the inside. The resident agent in charge was subsequently suspended without pay for 30 days and transferred to Atlanta.

SECURITY CHECK

The FBI is also understood to have dispatched a team of inspectors to check on the security of all its offices, big and small, as a first step in preventing a recurrence of what justice department officials have called "a new peacenik tactic."

Copies of 31 of the documents stolen in the Media raid have been mailed in a sporadic but continuing trickle of packets addressed to various newspapers and members of Congress. Responsibility for the theft has been claimed by a group calling itself "The Citizens' Commission to Investigate the FBI," but no arrests have been made.

With 8,400 agents, the FBI maintains 59 field offices or regional headquarters in major cities in the United States and Puerto Rico, along with 11 "liaison posts" in foreign countries.

Reporting to the Field offices, in turn, are some 500 "resident agencies" or sub-offices scattered about the country to provide wider geographic coverage and a ready response to cases requiring investigation.

Some of the sub-offices are one-man operations, with resident agents operating at times out of their own homes, while others keep more than a dozen FBI men at work. Whenever possible, the FBI sets up shop in a local federal building or post office, but in some small towns, such as college communities, the offices are located in commercial buildings that are more difficult to guard.

The FBI has maintained a level of approximately 500 sub-offices for the past nine years at least, with their locations varying more often than their number.

The closings, it was understood, will depend on the FBI's assessment of the need for a local office and the cost of guarding it adequately. Some, it was said, will "just be told to put more locks on their doors."

PLENTY OF LOCKS

The regional headquarters, in general, have plenty of locks already. The FBI's Los Angeles bureau, for example, is located on the top (17th) floor of the federal building where a guard is posted at the main entrance to the building 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Visitors find their handbags, briefcases and other packages searched on entering. And upstairs, the public entrance to the FBE office consists of a double door with two locks opening onto a reception room with nothing more than two desks.

Justice department officials have complained that the documents stolen in the Media raid and made public by the self-styled "citizens commission" were carefully plucked out of context to make the FBI look bad and create the impression that it uses police state tactics.

Big U.S. Bank Puts Pressure on GM

WASHINGTON (WP) — The 20th largest U.S. bank, the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co. of Philadelphia, will vote the estimated one million shares of General Motors stock it holds in trust to compel GM, in its annual report, to disclose statistics on its efforts to control car safety and increase minority hiring.

First Pennsylvania, the oldest bank in the U.S., thus becomes the first to endorse one of the three resolutions that "Campaign GM" will introduce at GM's annual meeting on May 21.

"Campaign GM" is an effort sponsored by the project for corporate responsibility, a Washington-based attempt "to make corporate decision-making accountable to the people affected by corporate action." It owns a dozen of the 286 million shares of GM stock.

Last year, when "Campaign GM" introduced similar resolutions for the first time, no bank supported it. The resolutions were massively defeated, and this year's are expected to be, too.

In Philadelphia, a spokesman for First Pennsylvania, the city's biggest and the state's second-biggest bank, noted that the disclosure resolution authorizes GM to omit specific disclosures that would put it at a competitive disadvantage.

With this qualification in mind, the spokesman said, the trust committee of the bank's board of directors decided that the resolution "does not unduly intrude on the prerogatives of management and at the same time permits General Motors to express their views on corporate responsibility."

Because of GM management's "outstanding records," however, the committee will vote against "Campaign GM's" two other resolutions, the spokesman said.

One of these proposals would allow stockholders to place candidates for GM's board on the proxy statement. The other would enable employees, consumers and dealers to nominate directors. The company listed the proposals in its proxy statement but opposes all of them.

As described by "Campaign GM," the disclosure resolution would require the company to list: the sums of money and numbers of employees GM assigns to pollution control, safety and minority hiring; details of vehicle-recall campaigns resulting from safety or pollution-control defects, and descriptions of any new safety or pollution-control techniques that GM has developed and proposes to the U.S. government for adoption.

Also, figures on the proportion of minority-group employees in each of nine employment categories, ranging from professionals to unskilled laborers. GM files these figures with the government but has "refused to make them public," "Campaign GM" says.

Finds $500 Bill

BELGRADE (Reuter) — A housewife in central Yugoslavia recently paid 10 dollars (67 cents) to a rag dealer for an old American jacket for her son, who found in a pocket a $500 bill wrapped in a handkerchief, the Belgrade newspaper Politika reports. Her husband exchanged the bill in a bank for enough dinars to buy a cow and put some money into a savings account.

Seeks Birth Curb

PRETORIA (Reuter) — A leading South African doctor has asked the government to establish a ministry of family planning. Dr. Nic Van Rensburg, deputy superintendent of Pretoria's H. F. Verwoerd Hospital, warned that the country is heading for famine and national disaster unless steps are taken for a drastic reduction of the birth rate of all races.

Ping-Pongers Blazing Trail For U.S. Diplomats in China

By JOHN RODERICK

PEKING (AP) — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai told a U.S. table tennis delegation today its visit to mainland China has opened "a new page in relations" between the peoples of China and the United States.

He added he believed their visit would lead to visits soon of more Americans, including newspaper men.

Chou, 73, regarded as China's leading moderate, spoke at a two-hour reception for table tennis teams from the United States, Canada, Britain, Nigeria and Colombia. They were invited to visit China when the world table tennis championships ended in Japan a week ago.

Chou asked the 15-member U.S. delegation—the first American group to visit the People's Republic of China—to extend the regards of the Chinese people to the American people.

'BEGINNING AGAIN'

"In the past," he said, "exchanges between the peoples of China and the United States have been very numerous. They have been cut off for a long time. Now, with your acceptance of our invitation, you have opened a new page in the relations of the Chinese and American people. I am confident that this beginning again of our friendship will certainly meet with the majority support of our two peoples."

Chou then asked the Americans: "Don't you agree with me?"

The Americans applauded.

Chou, who had recognized me earlier despite my absence of 23 years from mainland China, then turned to me and in a reference to visits by more American reporters said: "Mr. Roderick, you have opened the door."

I replied that the presence of U.S. correspondents could lead to deeper understanding between our two countries.

CHINA WANTS CONTACTS

Chou said this was up to Graham Steenhoven, the president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, and Steenhoven said afterward the Chinese had been invited to the United States.

Chou said China wants to have contacts with all countries, even those with which it has no diplomatic relations.

Chou said many "American friends" came to China in the past.

"You have made a start here, and I believe in the future more American friends will come to China," he said.

The peoples of China and the United States will "in the near future be able to have many contacts. I believe it will not be slow in coming."

During the reception in the Great Hall of the Peoples in the heart of the Chinese capital, Chou also engaged in a philosophical discussion of hippies with 19-year-old Glenn Cowan of Santa Monica, Calif., whose long hair and outlandish garb have been the talk of the Chinese.

Cowan was the cynosure of a thousand Chinese eyes in his flaring purple corduroy trousers, blue denim jacket, his usual floppy suede hat and a Mao badge.

The U.S. players met a Chinese team Tuesday before 18,000 cheering enthusiasts in a match that could be described as an exquisite display of Chinese tact and politeness. They could have fielded powerful players and humiliated their American guests but they didn't, and the Chinese men won by a score of only 5-3, while the women's division score was 5-4.

The British team which competed in the world tournament in Japan earlier this month arrived in Peking Tuesday night for a two-week stay.

Bourassa Seeking Funds For Big Power Project

LONDON (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec would welcome European capital for a proposed $2,500 million power project harnessing five rivers in the James Bay area, an aide said today.

He said Bourassa is carrying this message in his private talks with leading British industrialists and financiers during his two-day London visit which ends tonight after discussions with Prime Minister Heath and a Canada Club dinner speech.

The aide said that United States capital for the project, on which feasibility studies have been completed, is assured but Bourassa also would favor European participation.

A date for final approval of the project has not yet been set, but the Quebec government sees the hydro proposal as something on the scale of the Tennessee Valley Authority in the U.S.

The project would provide thousands of new jobs in northeastern Quebec and would generate a huge surplus of electricity which would be transmitted to the lucrative New York market.

Bourassa was questioned closely on Quebec economic problems Tuesday at a dinner by Kenneth Thomson, joint chairman of the Thomson Organisation Ltd. Among the guests were heads of British pulp and paper firms, shipping lines and representatives of merchant bankers.

The premier acknowledged the province faces inflation and serious unemployment problems. He said the Quebec people realize that the government is doing everything it can to face the challenges.

He explained his administration intends to introduce legislation to force a secret ballot on strikes before the end of the year. This would eliminate a situation where a small union minority tries to dominate the will of the majority, forcing strikes that kill economic growth and bring on more poverty.

In a quiet way, he also intended to be "very tough" in considering wage demands of civil servants and teachers.

Thomson, in introducing Bourassa, recalled that the premier, in his election campaign, had pledged to provide 100,000 new jobs in Quebec this year. Thomson said he was confident that Bourassa would live up to his promises.

Icebreakers Open Seaway for Summer

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—The 1971 navigation season on the St. Lawrence seaway opened today, though officials said lingering ice problems may slow shipping for several days at certain points on the inland channel.

Upbound vessels were scheduled to begin passing through the St. Lambert Lock into the Montreal-Lake Ontario section after 10:30 a.m.

Shipping in both directions will be limited to daylight hours, said seaway officials, until lighted channel markers are installed in the lake, river, and canal system that links the Great Lakes with the Atlantic.

Vessels were expected to have clear sailing up to the Beauharnois canal—Lake St. Francis area, where two Canadian icebreakers are opening a passage through remaining ice.

At the other end of the waterway, a field of mixed pack ice and broken ice extends for five miles into Lake Ontario, seaway officials reported here Tuesday.

Only ships of adequate power and construction were advised to try passage, authoritis said, although another Canadian icebreaker was in the area to assist ships.

ICE PERSISTS

Heavy ice conditions also persisted at the eastern end of Lake Erie from the Long Point Peninsula in Ontario to Port Colborne. Seaway officials said there were seven ships proceeding through that area with difficulty Tuesday, aided by still another Canadian icebreaker.

Two Great Lakes freighters, escorted by a pair of U.S. Coast Guard cutters, plan to fight their way through heavy ice off Buffalo harbor Thursday in an attempt to open the Port of Buffalo shipping season.

The cutters Kaw and Ojibwa arrived in Buffalo Tuesday and are scheduled to escort the freighters William G. Mather and Frontenac back to open water.

"The Frontenac will take the lead, weather permitting Thursday, and we'll follow whatever track is set up," said Captain Kenneth W. Lowrie, skipper of the Mather.

Harold R. Packer, skipper of the Kaw, said his vessel experienced the most difficulty off Point Abino, Ont., about 10 miles from Buffalo. He said shipping lanes are blocked by windrows as much as 30 feet above the water.

The cutter Bramble, larger than the Ojibwa or the Kaw, is coming to Buffalo from Detroit with several incoming freighters. The in-bound freighters are expected to reach the ice field Friday.

Bigger A-Blast Won't Halt Ship

VANCOUVER (CP) — The protest ship Greenpeace will sail into the Amchitka nuclear test area this fall despite a plan by the United States Atomic Energy Commission to increase the blast from 3.5 to five megatons.

Irving Stowe, a director of the 'Don't Make a Wave Committee,' said the U.S. announcement made the committee "even more determined to go ahead."

He described the latest test as an "escalating madness by people who should be put in an institution for the criminally insane."

The charter is at present being drawn up in Vancouver for an 80-foot halibut boat in which at least 25 protesters plan to sail to Amchitka.

"We can take about 25 people but already we have had a large number of letters from people who want to go along," said Mr. Stowe.

CALLED SLOWDOWN

"It is incredible when you realize that the AEC announced only yesterday that it was slowing down its test programs because of the Nevada radiation escape.

"Now instead of slowing down they have increased the size of the Amchitka test that was going to be 3.2 megaton this time and not five until the following test."

Mr. Stowe said the protest boat, which will be called Greenpeace, will probably call at Victoria, Port Alberni and another B.C. coast town on its way to Amchitka.

"People on Vancouver Island are very concerned about the test. A group has been formed in Victoria called Amchitka which is supported by the Sierra Club and the local branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control."

Mr. Stowe said that it was feared the AEC might step up the test scheduled for the fall to avoid the bad publicity.

INTEREST OTHERS

"I have always been an advocate of going up in advance of the test to generate international publicity and get other vessels to join us."

He said that the only comparable protest was made in the 1950s by a Quaker action group that sailed into the area of a U.S. atmospheric test at Bikini in the South Pacific.

"The boat was towed away by the U.S. navy," he said.

"But it is widely believed that the publicity was largely instrumental in the signing of the test ban signed by the U.S. and U.S.S.R."

Protesters to sail aboard the Greenpeace include nuclear physicists, marine oceanographers and geophysicists.

Confusion Set Back Food Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Indian affairs branch was accused Tuesday of setting back a food appeal for Sekani Indians living in reported misery at Fort Ware, B.C., by confusing them with another band further south.

The Union of B.C. Chiefs said a statement by the branch that it intends helping the Indians by building them new houses relates to Sekanis at Finlay Forks, not those at Fort Ware.

Bernard Charles, assistant director of the union, said the Fort Ware Indians were virtually cut off when Williston Lake was formed by the Bennett Dam. He said the Sekanis at Finlay Forks previously lived at Fort Grahame, now under water.

Mr. Charles said the union fully supports an appeal launched by Surrey resident Bob McEwan to fly a ton of fresh food to Fort Ware within the next two weeks.

Before the creation of Williston Lake, he said, the Indians could supplement their meagre fur trade by navigating the Finlay River to find work in communities further south. Now, he said, most were on welfare.

Mr. McEwan said his appeal has raised only about $150, and 10 times that is needed for the food.

Singing a Song Of 'One Canada'

By Jack Scott

We've a variety of opinions today to wrap up the subject of English-French bilingualism, beginning with a wry comment from Alan Simpson, a well-travelled business type of our town who has this to say:

"The English-speaking Canadian, especially if he's inclined to be prejudiced against the Quebecer, runs into something of an identity crisis when he is abroad. There is always one of those liquid parties where he is asked to lead in the singing of Canada's national anthem. That, of course, is Alouette."

Scott

* * *

And J. J. Zubick, out on William Head Road, who happens to speak a half dozen languages, notes, "But it was when I added French that I began to really understand English and to appreciate the marvellous richness and flexibility it has acquired by its universality of linguistic content.

"The best thing that ever happened to the English language was when French was 'forced' on the English by the Normans. It was from then on that the mishmash of Germanic dialects of the English began to grow because the people had the good sense to accept and incorporate into their weak linguistic structure words from anywhere and everywhere, especially from the French, so that educated English now is about 40 per cent of French origin, about the same percentage Germanic and the rest from other sources."

* * *

"I am of English origin," comments M.H., of our town, "got my naturalization papers about 15 years ago and have never been able to understand how the native-born Canadian can deliberately refuse to take advantage of bilingualism. If every Canadian were truly bilingual we'd have a better chance of amounting to something in world affairs."

* * *

"My husband and I lived for 20 years in different suburbs of Montreal," comments Mrs. Helen Lapp. "We found the city and the people had an animation that is reproduced nowhere in North America to our knowledge. Montreal is a vibrant, exciting city with a unique beauty.

"It is true that I couldn't believe how kind and helpful sales personnel in Victoria were in comparison to the 'drop dead' attitude often encountered in Montreal stores, but we have met so many wonderful, warm, kind French-Canadians that one looks beyond the facade of hostility presented by many of the young people. I feel that we of the English-speaking majority have prepared the soil in which such an attitude can thrive.

"The solution to the whole problem is love. This would dissolve the fear on both sides and open the door to compromises so that neither group would have to give up cherished rights, but have the joy of defending the rights of the other. We need an end to fear and selfishness."

* * *

"Victoria is beautiful," notes a correspondent who asks for anonymity, "but the narrow attitude that's taken here toward Quebec has to be experienced to be believed. The fact is it is a beautiful province and they are fine people."

* * *

H. F. Edmond, of Victoria, disagrees with the contention that Quebec separatism is rooted in exploitation and oppression by English-speaking Canadians.

"I submit that the true causes of the present conditions in Quebec are the educational system since 1867 and the long-standing enmities arising from the rivalries of European diplomacy which were transferred to the new world."

"Quebec has had separate schools since 1867. The English-speaking Canadians paid for everything they got through school fees and school taxes, much heavier than those paid by the French-speaking Canadians . . . because most of their teachers were Nuns or Brothers. They provided an excellent education in law, medicine, classics and theology. But they offered nothing to prepare their students for the industrial world.

"For years many French-speaking Canadians who wanted to enter the industrial world braved the disfavor of the parish priest and sought their education in the English universities or went to the United States or Europe. Obviously the French-speaking Canadians who could afford to provide such an education for their children were the professional class.

"The local priests discouraged any effort on the part of industry to settle in their small towns or villages. As the English-speaking Canadians were usually behind any industrial effort this helped to increase the anti-English feeling among the Habitant.

"Too often, the so-called oppression by the English has been used as a convenient excuse by the French-speaking Canadian to explain his own shortcomings."

* * *

Kenneth O. Clarke, a former Toronto high school principal "living in the sinful serenity of retirement at Sooke," adds this comment:

"Whether it is a token gesture or not to our compatriots in Quebec, the learning of French should certainly be upgraded in the schools of English-speaking Canada. As it is now 'high school French' is a pathetic farce. It should be taught conversationally, as you suggest, from the very first grade and made a living, enjoyable part of a nation fortunate enough to have two distinctive cultures."

* * *

Bill Stavdal, of Victoria, is another who disagrees that Quebec has been oppressed "except in the same way and for the same reasons that Canada has been 'oppressed' by the United States: match two cultures and one will dominate, anywhere, anytime.

"You know that the church and people like Duplessis collaborated to crush legitimate labor unions. The church feared communism and Duplessis wanted industry. You know that Quebec's incredibly archaic education system left most of the population with nothing more than a grade school education. Is it any wonder that English-speaking Canadians came to occupy the best jobs, the positions of influence?

"Let's recall that in 1759 Quebec had a population of about 65,000. The British left them with their language, religion and civil law. To this society was added a handful of British-Americans. Donald Creighton describes them as a tiny minority, without the power or the wish to alter the economic growth and social organization of the colony.' Why didn't the French simply absorb the English? My answer, in plain words is that the English culture was superior to the French."

* * *

Burke Cahill, an instructor in Canadian studies at the Adult Institute, points out the many adaptable faces of both English- and French-speaking Canadians.

"When the English Canadian feels fear of the United States," he writes, "he asserts his British heritage. Thus a Vancouver alderman says of riot control: 'Let's do it the British, not the American way here.'

'When the same English Canadian feels fear of the British fist here he asserts duality with the French, or his true Canadianism, as when he takes pride in the figure Trudeau cuts in London, as Laurier also did, inspiring the same peculiar pride of duality in nationhood.

"When the same English Canadian is in fear or resentment of the French here, however, he disastrously tends to assert his Americanism. So he harps on one language like the United States and appeals to his English-speaking 'cousins' to the south."

Airplane Roar Drowns Out Protest Meeting

By PAT MUNSON

The roar of aircraft passing overhead frequently drowned out complaints and explanations Tuesday night at a lively public meeting in Sidney on noise pollution.

About 100 people were on hand to hear a psychologist warn of physical dangers from noise and a government official explain developments at nearby Victoria International Airport.

They were on their feet shouting angrily at one point, the main target CP Air's jets which have been practising approaches bringing them low over Sidney.

One elderly resident, whose home on Sixth Street is in line with a runway, complained the plane had caused his newly-painted walls to crack, had broken four windows and dirtied the wash.

Loud applause supported another man who objected to the practice runs at all hours, including Sundays and holidays.

●

"If I started a cement mixer before 8 a.m. on Sunday I'd have the RCMP on my neck," he said.

The meeting was called by the Sidney and North Saanich branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control.

Dr. Frank Spellacy, a psychologist, and R. S. Heiliger, regional superintendent of airways for the federal department of transport, were among speakers.

"You are being physically pummeled every time you hear loud noises," said Stellacey.

While effects of noise on humans has not been sufficiently documented, he said loud noise involves psychologocal distress as well as physical impact.

"Deafness has long been thought to be normal in the process of aging but surveys in non-industrial areas have proved that aged persons not exposed to noise have a hearing acuity similar to the young."

Stellacey also said there is speculation that living near an airport can influence fetal development with distinct effect on a child's later reaction to noise.

Heiliger said residents were justified in complaining about disturbance by practising aircraft on holidays.

●

But he noted the airport had been there since 1939 "and anyone moving here since that time must have been aware that the airport would grow."

Victoria's airport is an alternate sometimes used by diverted aircraft and pilot proficiency regulations must include practice here, he said.

Jim McKeachie, public relations manager for CP Air in western Canada, said from Vancouver today the airline is sorry for the disturbance but practice approaches and landings are an operational requirement.

Of over 700 such flights conducted at various airports on the coast between mid-March and April 5 only 33 were at the Victoria airport.

An instrument landing system will be located at the west end of the airport, eliminating some of the noise problem for Sidney, Heiliger told Tuesday's meeting.

SPEC vice-president George Simmons asked whether noise control devices were a possible solution. Heiliger said no acceptable device which still allows enough thrust to maintain flight had been developed.

"But we hope to achieve this within five yeears."

A program to cut down the visual pollution from exhaust gases will be completed by the end of this year.

●

Dr. Joan Coldwell, chairman of the SPEC branch's noise committee, urged those present to write the department of transport and CP Air complaining of the practice flights and to petition for noise muffling devices.

SPEC will seek support from Sidney council in its letter-writing campaign.

Uvic Clerks Back Faculty And Students

Clerical employees at the University of Victoria Tuesday passed a resolution supporting students, faculty and the Canadian Association of University Teachers in the current faculty-administration dispute.

A resolution passed by a 33 to 23 margin said members of local 951 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees support the efforts of students and faculty members "to obtain justice for 11 faculty members whose cases are still in dispute by means of an impartial tribunal as recommended by the CAUT for three of the cases and a moratorium year without prejudice for these three as well as the remaining eight until their cases have been resolved."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Uvic president Bruce Partridge, the board of governors and the senate.

The resolution was proposed by Joan Hendrickson, a McPherson Library employee and seconded by Patrick Monk, also of the library.

The resolution came under new business at the end of the lengthy meeting, which had been called to discuss matters related to the clerical employees' contract negotiations with the university administration.

About 70 members attended the meeting, but some left toward the end, leaving 56 to vote on the special resolution.

The union local also authorized its negotiating committee to prepare a strike ballot at its discretion, and decided to apply for the services of a mediation officer, following receipt of a second contract offer from the university.

Environmental Control Meet To Hear Ministers

The provincial government and the province's 28 regional districts will start trying to get together on land use and environmental management at a one-day conference here Friday

More than 100 persons may attend the meeting which will hear papers from five departments represented on the provincial environment and land use committee.

Resources Minister Ray Williston and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell are also scheduled to speak at the conference which is aimed at closer administrative co-operation in the environment field.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. at Newcombe Auditorium.

Aged Protected From Flu Bug

Visits to patients at Mount St. Mary Hospital have been banned because of the high incidence of influenza, an announcement from the administration said today.

The ban does not include the volunteers who come to help feed the patients, a spokesman said.

Dry Cleaners Destroyed; Three Firemen Injured

Fire ruined the main plant of Individual Dry Cleaners at Oak Bay Junction Tuesday night but appeared to cause no damage to adjacent properties.

A large crowd gathered to watch the billowing smoke which spread for blocks around while police closed the Fort-Pandora-Oak Bay Avenue intersection to traffic.

City fire chief Eric Simmons said the cause of the fire is not known. No damage estimate was available.

He said because of the extensive damage, the investigation now under way will take some time. Adjacent premises were apparently undamaged.

Three firefighters suffered minor injuries while the blaze was brought under control and extinguished. Saanich and Oak Bay fire departments stood by, he said, but did not directly assist in the individual fire.

Gordon Carter, president of Individual Dry Cleaners, said he doesn't know what the damage will cost but put it in the tens of thousands of dollars.

"I think the building is a write-off, we will have to rebuild," he said as he surveyed the ruins this morning.

He said most of the clothing in the store was burned but insurance covers this. He said a temporary office will be established and other stores can assist those who had clothing in the main store.

Arrangements have been made with Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd. to use their facilities at night to handle Individual's laundry and dry cleaning, Carter said.

The fire forced the evacuation of 30 residents of nearby apartments above stores. The fire was reported to Victoria fire department by Mrs. Herman Quecksister, caretake of the apartments.

"The lights began to flicker and I got a call from one of the tenants that she was seeing flames out the window," she said.

The operator of a nearby service station, Alex Hutcheson, alerted Mrs. Hem Yee, wife of the proprietor of Junction Tailors, who fled the building with her young child. The Yees live at the back of the tailor shop.

Firefighters had the blaze under control by about 10 p.m., concentrating efforts on soaking down walls of the apartment building and Junction Tailors to prevent the fire spreading.

Woman Injured by Burns In Rockland House Fire

A Victoria woman was reported in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital following an early morning fire which caused extensive damage to a house at 1603 Rockland Avenue.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sassen was the scene of the second city fire within a few hours. The first ruined the main plant of Individual Dry Cleaners at nearby Oak Bay Junction.

While firefighters were at the Rockland Avenue house, a third fire was reported at Victoria Paving on Garbally Road. It was described as a rubbish fire and the fire department was there about an hour.

Fire chief Eric Simmons said an investigation is under way. While the cause was not determined, one theory was that the house fire was electrical in origin. It was not incendiary, he said.

Mrs. Sassen was taken to hospital suffering burns to her face and arms.

An elderly woman living with the Sassens, Mrs. Gwyneth MacKie, leaped from an upstairs window. Her fall was broken by neighbors waiting below. She was taken to hospital and released after treatment.

Roger Hemeon, an eyewitness to the fire, said he first noticed the whole of one side of the house ablaze, then the front. He helped break Mrs. MacKie's fall.

Project Short On Concern

An attempt to form a local Project Concern committee has failed.

Only two people attended the organizational meeting Tuesday night — one of them the group's sponsor Gary Weir, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Weir had hoped to set up an independent, non-political group to carry on the work of Dr. Jim Turpin, the founder of Project Concern.

The group provides medical care and training for people in remote areas. Clinics have been established in Hong Kong and Vietnam. Teams of volunteers provide free health services and train the local population to help themselves.

Weir said that he was "very disappointed" and hoped to try again next year.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A WHILE AGO, I ASKED for information about the trade in handcrafted souvenirs of local origin. The replies constitute a mixed bag.

No problem, said a man whose wife has been working in ceramics for a number of years. The selective visitor who wants to take home an authentic reminder of Victoria will find the choice as wide as the price range.

Another caller stressed the variety and quality of the pottery turned out on this peninsula.

A girl showed me a ring crafted with artistry and skill. It was designed for her by a Victoria silversmith whose work goes almost entirely to choosey young buyers.

"But I wouldn't call this a souvenir," said the ring-wearer. "After all, I'm not a visitor. I live here, and know where to look for the things I like."

She then went on to talk about the lively local youth trade in items of use and beauty that flourishes between buyer and maker, or finds an outlet in tucked-away boutiques.

She sees it as a turning away from the ready-made and mass-produced, and feels that tougher times have intensified rather than diminished this trend.

A woman who recently added a handicraft department to her store tells me that her chief problem is to find enough local suppliers, Indian craftsmen included.

"We're trying to get in touch with people who do craft work," she explained. "Good work that will sell."

She mentioned ceramics, paintings, carvings and rock jewelry among the sought-for wares. Some of her present suppliers work in the Victoria area. Others ply their cottage crafts up-Island or in Gulf Island homes.

They bring or send in their work. A retail price, from which the store takes a 33⅓ percentage, is agreed upon.

"Some of them are unrealistic when it comes to putting a price on their arts or handicrafts," she added, "and that's a mistake. But so far, we've found that not too many make it."

For one supplier's viewpoint, here's a letter from a Victorian who is less than happy with the handcrafter's trade as she's found it. She and a friend, both artists of experience, decided to try their luck with leather accessories and copper enamelled jewelry.

"Some stores that were stocking handcrafted items were interested," Mrs. G. S. Mitchell of 538 Linden Avenue writes, "and would take a few to try out. But to allow them to make a profit of 33⅓ to 50 and 100 per cent, we had to keep our prices to them so low that we were making less than $1.50 an hour.

"I am sure that other craftsmen could relate the same story, and a further deterrent to home industries is a licence to be paid to city hall. This isn't exorbitant in itself, but one licence covers only one person working at one address.

"Then another problem arose of which we, as babes-in-the-wood, were not aware." Mrs. Mitchell continues. "Those stores which did decide to stock some of our work, mostly small gift shops, had to be very careful to hold back any items of original design. These are bought up early in the season, shipped to Japan, reproduced by the thousand or million, and sent back here to be sold in department stores.

"You must have seen the B.C. Indian designs in beadwork sent back to us from Japan and selling at one third the price of the Indian product."

This producer of handcrafted work has become increasingly disillusioned.

"As a B.C. product myself," she concludes, "I find the lack of pride in what is under our noses frustrating, a little bewildering, but not inconsistent with what is happening to our natural resources."

Is her outlook justified? Or can the local handcrafter who produces an equivalent of the better mousetrap expect an adequate reward for time and skill expended?

We'll keep this topic open for further answers.

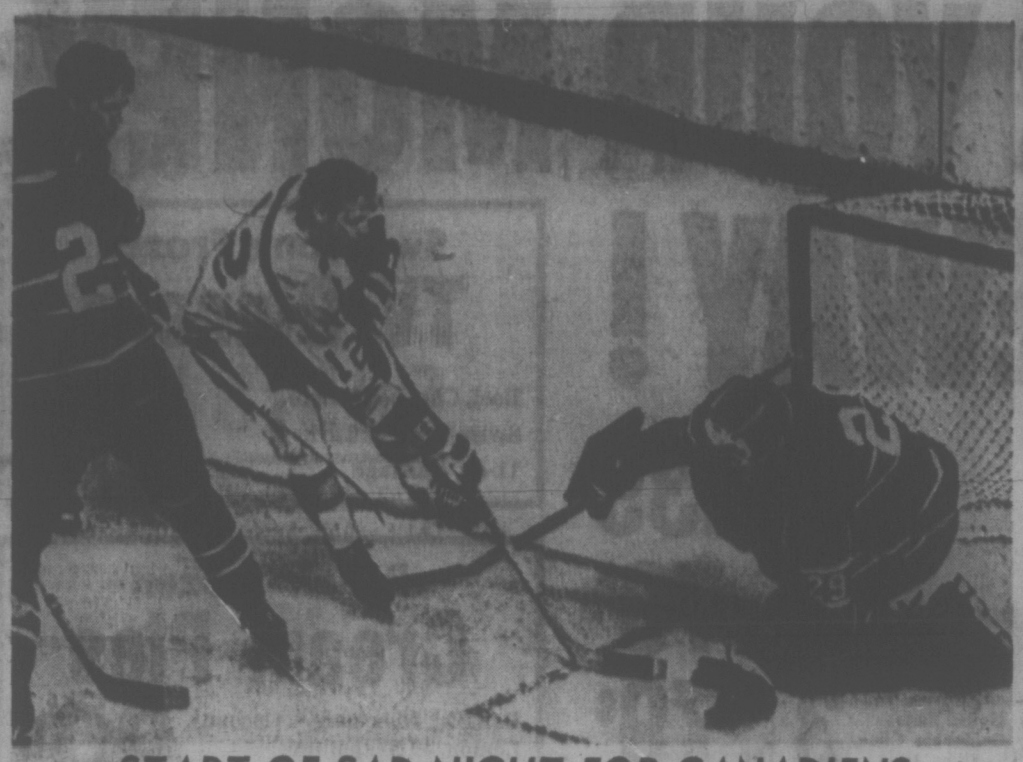
Rangers Cruise Ahead, But Francis Is Fussing



START OF SAD NIGHT FOR CANADIENS

Troubles started early for Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night in fifth game of Stanley Cup hockey playoff series at Boston. Bruins needed only 57 seconds to score first goal as Wayne Cashman (12), unexpectedly unmolested by Montreal defenders as he cuts in from left side, flips puck past glove of goalie Ken Dryden into far corner of net. Bruins went on to whip Canadiens 7-3 and take 3-2 lead in best-of-seven quarterfinal. (AP Wirephoto)

'Lay-Back' Trend Avoided As Bruins Trim Canadiens

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers cruised to their second consecutive National Hockey League playoff victory over Toronto Maple Leafs and their coach was unhappy. Boston Bruins did the same to Montreal Canadiens and their coach is worried.

The Rangers beat the Leafs 3-1 Tuesday night in New York to go ahead 3-2 in their best-of-seven East Division Stanley Cup semi-finals and the Bruins overpowered the Canadiens 7-3 in Boston, also to lead their series 3-2.

But New York coach Emile Francis thought his Rangers should have had a shutout. And he was also critical about the refereeing.

Francis, commenting on Leafs' only goal, said:

"I'll bet my last dollar that Jim McKenny's stick was over his shoulders when he scored Toronto's goal. It's a shame we missed a shutout because the boys played a great game."

He said he would look at films of the game to determine for himself whether the Toronto goal was scored legally.

Boston coach Tom Johnson was worried at a tendency of his team to "lay back" when it gets a lead and let the other team come to them.

Johnson, mindful of the comeback 7-5 win Thursday night by the Canadiens after they trailed the Bruins 5-2, had visions of a repeat performance Tuesday night when his club led the Canadiens 5-1 after two periods and the Montreal team narrowed the margin to 5-3 midway in the third.

But the Bruins, after some encouragement from Johnson, poured on the heat to score two quick goals and put the game out of reach of the Canadiens.

The series resume Thursday night with New York playing in Toronto and Boston in Montreal.

NORTH STARS WIN

In the remaining West Division semi-final game, Minnesota North Stars defeated St. Louis Blues 4-3 to lead their best-of-seven series 3-2.

Rangers scored in the first minute of play against Leafs and from then on dominated play. The two teams, hit $16,550 in fines for brawls in the second game of the series in New York last week, stuck strictly to hockey.

Left winger Ted Irvine scored New York's first goal with the game only 34 seconds old when he rapped Bruce MacGregor's rebound past goalie Bernie Parent, whose sensational netminding kept Toronto in the game in the first period when they were outshot 17-4.

Vic Hadfield made the score 2-0 in the second period and Bob Nevin increased the lead to 3-0 in the third period when he rammed the puck past Parent after batting it out of the air.

Then, with less than seven minutes left in the game, goalie Ed Giacomin was robbed of his shutout when McKenny scored with Rangers Rod Gilbert and Jim Neilson in the penalty box.

CLAIM STICK HIGH

The Rangers argued that McKenny's goal had come with the stick above his shoulder but referee Ron Wicks allowed the goal and gave Neilson a 10-minute misconduct.

Francis was incensed at the play immediately preceding the double penalty to Gilbert and Neilson.

"The irony of the penalty was that (Bob) Baun caught (Pete) Stemkowski with a knee at centre ice and got no penalty," he said. "But on the subsequent play we got two penalties."

The Bruins got goals from Wayne Cashman, Phil Esposito, Mike Walton, John McKenzie, Ed Westfall, John Bucyk and Ken Hodge while Yvan Cournoyer, Frank Mahovlich and John Ferguson scored for the Canadiens.

Bruins were leading 5-1 in the third period when goals by Mahovlich and Ferguson narrowed the score to 5-3. But Bucyk came off the bench, picked up a loose puck and went in to score his first goal in five playoff games.

Hodge completed the Boston scoring with an unassisted goal on a 30-foot shot with less than five minutes remaining in the third period. That was also his first in the series.

Hodge said Johnson told his players to stop "laying back" when the Canadiens appeared to be rallying.

"I guess we were conscious of the fact they came back in the other game and scored five goals to win," Hodge said, referring to last Thursday night. "Occasionally you find that with a lead you are inclined to fall back into a shell."

Espo Played No Favorites

(Times News Services)

Phil Esposito played no favorites.

The Boston Bruins' record-breaking centre jumped on all rivals en route to his 76-goal season during the past National Hockey League campaign.

Esposito scored more goals against pre-expansion teams than against the new teams on a goal-per-game basis.

In 30 games against the old guard—Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit Red Wings, Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs — the powerful Esposito scored 30 goals.

He had 46 goals in 48 games against the post-1967 teams.

Esposito, leader of the Boston onslaught which resulted in the Bruins breaking 35 of the 47 league records established this season, earned $2,000 for his scoring binge.

Final scoring figures for all league teams:

Lou's Pleas Unheeded But Rebound Does Job

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Seconds before he scored the winning goal in Minnesota North Stars' 4-3 victory over St. Louis Blues Tuesday night, Louis Nanne didn't think he'd get the puck.

With less than four minutes in the National Hockey League West Division semi-final playoff game, team-mate Murray Oliver failed to hear Nanne calling for the puck and took the shot on net himself.

But the Minnesota utility man trapped the rebound and fired it past Blues' goalie Glenn Hall to give the North Stars a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven series with St. Louis.

The sixth game in the series is in Minneapolis Thursday and the seventh, if needed, in St. Louis Sunday.

Chicago Black Hawks wrapped up their best-of-seven West Division semi-final series in four straight games over Philadelphia Flyers and wait to meet the winner of the New York Rangers-Toronto Maple Leafs East Division semi-final series which New York leads 3-2.

MEET EAST TEAM

St. Louis or Minnesota meets the winner of the Boston Bruins-Montreal Canadiens East semi-final which Boston leads 3-2.

"I started walking in on goal, but Murray didn't hear me yell," said Nanne, whose first goal in 10 games in Stanley Cup competition came with 3:35 remaining.

"It was a good thing," he added. "Glenn Hall made a good stop on Murray's shot, but he didn't have the angle to stop me."

The goal by Nanne, captain of the 1968 United States Olympic team at Grenoble, France, came after two-goal productions by North Stars' rookie Jude Drouin and Blues' right wing Craig Cameron left the teams deadlocked 3-3 midway in the second period.

Cameron and Drouin scored seven seconds apart in the second period and set an NHL playoff record for the two fastest goals by two teams.

RECORD AN OLD ONE

The previous record of 10 seconds was set in 1936 in a game between Toronto and Detroit Red Wings and later equalled in 1947 in a game be ween Toronto and Montreal.

Nanne, a right winger who also fills in on defence, considered the goal revenge for an earlier effort that went awry.

"In the second period Hall robbed me when I was in the crease," he said. "Danny Grant took the shot, and the rebound came to me but I couldn't get it past."

Lamented by Blues' general manager-coach Scotty Bowman were his team's wasted advantage of 36-22 in shots and five squandered opportunities to score while Minnesota was short-handed because of penalties.

"We just aren't taking advantage," Bowman noted. "They beat us on a mistake. We just haven't been getting many like that."

FAITH A FACTOR IN SUSPENSION?

TORONTO (CP) — The coach of the first-place Annunciation team in the suburban Scarborough Catholic Hockey League said Tuesday his team has been suspended because he had "two or three Protestants" on his roster.

Coach Lonzel A. Pike said the second-place Precious Blood team also was suspended for using ineligible players.

Pike said Annunciation and Precious Blood were about to begin peewee vision playoffs when he called league president Anthony Lant to complain that some Precious Blood players were not registered.

"He told me we were suspended, too, because we were using Protestant players," said Pike.

"I've been coaching in this league five years. The only requirements for a team is that all members sign before Dec. 2 and all reside within the parish. Religion has never entered into it."

Pike said he himself is not Catholic.

"I have no idea why this decision was made. All I can say is that last year, when my team wasn't so strong, there were no complaints."

The league president was not available for comment.

Briere Loses Lengthy Fight

MONTREAL (CP)—On April 12, 1970 at the Oakland Coliseum, young Michel Briere, a rookie centre with Pittsburgh Penguins, enjoyed his finest hour in the National Hockey League.

Briere scored at 8:28 of the first overtime period to give his team a 3-2 triumph over Oakland Seals and a berth in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Last May 15, Briere was involved in a serious car accident near his hometown of Malartic, Que., and Tuesday he died from the injuries suffered in the accident, after 11 months in hospital.

Briere suffered brain damage and a fractured skull in the accident when his sports car skidded off the road and crashed into a tree, killing one of his companions and injuring two others.

The accident took place about a month before the young hockey star was to be married.

HAD FOUR OPERATIONS

Briere was flown to Montreal from Val d'Or and taken to Notre Dame Hospital where he underwent four brain operations.

He died about 4 p.m. EST Tuesday at the Maria-Claraci Rehabilitation Hospital where he had been transferred three weeks ago.

Doctors at the hospital said "he had died a fighting death."

During his stay in hospital, Briere regained enough consciousness to be able to recognize certain familiar people, including Dick Coss, the man who scouted him for the Pittsburgh club. Briere also was able to recognize his parents and sister.

On every trip to Montreal this season, members of the Penguins stopped in to visit their team-mate at the east-end hospital.

RUSTLERS FACE SAINTS AFTER OUSTING BRONCS

RED DEER (CP) — Brian Ogilvie, who has a knack for scoring when the games count most, scored three goals as the Red Deer Rustlers defeated Penticton Broncos, 8-2, Tuesday to advance to the Centennial Cup Western Canada finals.

Ogilvie scored four goals in the final game when Red Deer defeated Lethbridge, 4-1, to win the Alberta Junior Hockey League championship.

Red Deer, which won the best-of-seven semi-final 4-3, now advances against St. Boniface Saints.

Red Deer, leading 2-1 and 4-1 by periods, also got goals from Wynn Dempster, Terry Wedderburn, Doug Stumpf, Ken McLash and Dwayne Bolkowy.

Penticton's goals were scored by Fred Parent and Bruce Affleck.

Opening Batsman Unbeaten at 102

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuter)—The West Indies, led by Gary Sobers and later Joey Carew, minimized the disadvantage of losing the toss in the vital fifth and final test against India and at the close of play Tuesday had captured five Indian wickets for 247 runs.

India, fighting for at least a draw to win the Indo-West Indies rubber for the first time, might have been in a difficult position Tuesday night were it not for a chanceless and unbeaten 102 by their 21-year-old opening batsman Sunil Gavaskar.

CLUBS FINED $5,000 EACH . . . . . . 'DEPLORABLE, FUTILE'

Leafs, Rangers Pay $16,550 for 'Spectacle'

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers were hit with stiff fines Tuesday for their bench-clearing brawl in a National Hockey League Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff game last Thursday in New York.

NHL president Clarence Campbell slapped the two teams with a total of $16,550 in fines including $5,000 fines to each team.

A total of $6,550 in fines was spread among 27 players—14 for their part in the two major brawls that occurred in the third period.

Brad Park of New York and Toronto rookie Darryl Sittler were hit with fines of $250 each as a result of the fights.

Campbell called the brawling a "deplorable spectacle" and accused the top-level management of the NHL's 14 clubs of not co-operating in a drive to eliminate such incidents.

"These incidents reflect no credit on the league or any of the participants and were a blatant violation of the declared policy of the league.

"The time consumed in these futile brawls extended the final period to 60 minutes and would have been longer had it not been for the excellent efforts of referee Lloyd Gilmour and the two linesmen, Claude Bechard and Pat Shetler, whose work was commended by all parties."

The first brawl started with a fight between Vic Hadfield of New York and Toronto's Jim Harrison. All players on the ice joined in the melee and when the combatants were separated, Hadfield threw Leafs' goaltender Bernard Parent's mask into the crowd.

Sittler and Park also were the second pair to start fighting and received majors and misconducts while Hadfield and Harrison each were tagged with game misconducts.

Less than 30 seconds after play resumed, Leafs defenceman Jim Dorey and Ted Irvine of Bill Wakeham came back. So did Vaughan Trapp.

The two are among eight professionals, outnumbered by 154 amateurs, who have designs on the Times Vancouver Island Open golf championship.

The 162-man field was drawn into starting positions Tuesday night. The 22nd annual tournament gets under way Sunday at Victoria Golf Club with an 18-hole qualifying round.

The low 32 gross scorers will qualify for match-play that winds up May 23. Another 32 golfers — the low 32 net scorers — will scramble for the Hugh Francis Trophy, emblematic of handicap supremacy.

But before is all starts; Trapp and Wakeham stand front and centre as leading favorites.

FORMER CHAMPS

Both are two-time winners of the Island's major match-play tournament, and both passed up their annual challenges last year because the tournament conflicted with the $20,000 Payless tournament in Eugene, Ore.

Wakeham and Trapp both campaigned extensively as touring professionals during the past two years.

Defending champion Earl Davies, Gorge Vale's professional, Norm Boden of Marsh Meadows near Cowichan Lake and Colwood amateur Laurie Kerr are the other former winners in the classy field.

Kerr, defending B.C. amateur champion Carl Schwantje and Dave Mick head an imposing list of amateur challengers.

SIX-WEEK MARCH

Virtually all of the district's leading amateurs are in.

It's a six-week march to the prize table. The route is loaded with pitfalls, but always exciting.

Competitors must contend with the elements, the vagaries of five different courses, and the ability of rivals.

City Bowlers Finish Sixth At Vancouver

VANCOUVER — Victoria fivepinners finished in sixth place as Northern Ontario won the junior girls' team event in the seventh annual National Youth Bowling Council tournament, which ended here Tuesday.

Representing British Columbia, Jill Hickman, Elaine Tass, Julie Scott, Nancy Beale and Therese Andersen of Town and Country Lanes in Victoria won their three games against Newfoundland but then lost all three games to Saskatchewan on the final day of the three-day tourney.

Miss Beale notched a high single game of 240 Tuesday and had a 619 total for three games. Miss Anderson fired a triple of 634 and Miss Hickman posted a 613 series.

Southern Ontario bowlers dominated championship competition and captured the overall aggregate crown with a total of 2,778 points.

ROOKIE OF YEAR

SEATTLE (CP) — Salt Lake City winger Jack Rathwell edged Phoenix defenceman Al Beaule in balloting for the Western Hockey League's rookie of the year.

Vikings Test Wests In Trophy Contest

There will be something new in an old competition when University of Victoria Vikings clash with Victoria West in the Jackson Cup soccer final tonight at 7:30 in Royal Athletic Park.

Playing in the final of the trophy test that was launched in 1915 is nothing new to the Wests. They have won the historic cup eight times.

It is a different story for the Vikings, who have reached the final round of the knockout competition for the first time.

Wests, currently tied for first place with Gorge Molsons in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division, have chalked up more Jackson Cup triumphs than any other club. The former Esquimalt team is next in line with seven victories and Gorge squads have won the trophy on six occasions.

Starting at 6:45 tonight will be a challenge match between girls' teams from two high schools—Esquimalt and Mount View.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Sparkling finish helped John Broste back into winners' circle in Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest for fourth straight season during 25th week of eighth annual competition. John toppled pins for 214-375-378—967 series in Monday Classic League at Gibson's Bowladrome to earn men's fivepin award and berth in Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on May 2.

Alley Frets on Buc Bench While Jackie's Bat Booms

By Associated Press

Gene Alley, Pittsburgh's shortstop for years, is sitting on the bench hoping Jackie Hernandez' hot hitting streak will cool off.

Alley, who suffered a broken hand in spring training and now is ready to play, was replaced by Hernandez, an American League castoff with a .209 lifetime batting average in five major league baseball seasons.

But Hernandez is playing out of character, clouting .444 with six RBI, including a three-run homer Tuesday night that helped the Pirates whip Philadelphia Phillies 9-3.

"I could be playing," says Alley, "but he's doing such a good job, they can't afford to take him out."

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds nudged Atlanta Braves 5-4; Chicago Cubs shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2; Houston Astros outscored St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 and Montreal Expos mauled New York Mets 4-1. The San Diego-San Francisco contest was wiped out by rain.

BENCH HOMERS AGAIN

Johnny Bench uncorked his third home run in two nights and keyed a seventh-inning rally with a single in the Cincinnati success.

Don Kessinger's eighth-inning single scored Jose Ortiz with the winning run for Chicago. Ortiz walked to start the rally, was sacrificed to second and roared home on Kessinger's bullet between shortstop and third base.

The loss was the third straight for Dodger ace Bill Singer, who only gave the Cubs two hits in the first six innings.

Montreal's Steve Renko beat New York for the second time this season, scattering eight Met hits. John Bateman's first homer of the season gave Montreal a 2-0 lead in the second for all the runs the Expos needed.

DENNY BELTED

In the American League, Denny McLain's fast ball came and went — followed closely by McLain himself after a faulty second fling for Washington Senators.

"The harder I threw it, the harder they hit it," McLain said Tuesday night following his early departure in the Senators' 5-3 loss to Boston Red Sox.

McLain, winner last Friday night in his 1971 debut, was tagged for all five Boston runs before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the fifth inning. He gave up seven hits, including homers by Carl Yastrzemski and Duane Josephson.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City Royals downed Minnesota Twins 5-3 in a game marked by seven hit batsmen, Oakland Athletics blanked Milwaukee Brewers 2-0 behind Vida Blue's two-hitter, California Angels topped the Chicago White Sox 3-1 in 10 innings and New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 5-2. The Baltimore-Cleveland game was rained out.

Resilient David Lewis Holds Cards for NDP Leadership

OTTAWA (CP) — Even in the darker days of the old CCF party, David Lewis had an air of supreme confidence.

He was the workhorse national secretary of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation for 14 years, starting in 1936 as a young lawyer, and what he said often went despite pretty consistent opposition from the party's left wing.

Like the CCF itself, he could be defeated in election after election, as he was in 1940, 1943, 1945 and 1949. But that confidence never appeared to wane.

Now, he appears equally confident that he stands on the threshold of achieving leadership of the New Democratic Party, the CCF's successor which he helped fashion in 1961. It is a position, some critics say, he has pursued single-mindedly over the years from a position at the philosophic and bureaucratic heart of Canada's socialist party.

Mr. Lewis finally made it to the Commons in 1962 with the NDP, formed from the CCF with official support from the Canadian Labor Congress.

LOST IN HOUSE

He lost the 1963 election but bounced back in 1965, serving then and after the 1968 election as parliamentary leader while T. C. Douglas marked time pending byelection victories following defeats in Regina and Burnaby-Coquitlam.

Mr. Lewis is opposed by four other candidates for the job held by Mr. Douglas since the NDP founding.

The party will choose the successor Saturday, April 24 at the end of a four-day leadership convention in Ottawa's Civic Centre.

Mr. Lewis says he has been leading the other four candidates all through the leadership campaign and that he will still be the leader after the first ballot.

Modestly, he declines to predict a first-ballot victory.

Max Saltsman, MP for Waterloo and chief Lewis backer, says the campaign started out as a youth-versus-experience contest but rapidly became a left-versus-centre fight with Mr. Lewis leading the centre against the radical Waffle wing.

LEWIS . . . personal touch

However, Mr. Lewis' opponents insisted that as far as Mr. Lewis was concerned it was age versus youth.

OLDER THAN OTHERS

Mr. Lewis is 61. The Waffle candidate, James Laxer, is 29; MP Ed Broadbent 34; John Harney 39; and MP Frank Howard 45.

Sources close to Mr. Douglas, 66, said the leader submitted his resignation on the understanding that a successor would be picked from a younger generation.

Mr. Douglas has carefully avoided favoring any candidate but some insiders say he was not pleased by the candidacy of Mr. Lewis, only five years younger.

But Mr. Lewis, at least at the start of the campaign, held all the cards. He had known all the party officials and hundreds, if not thousands, of the party members for years. His strong labor ties appear an advantage, as they were for son Stephen when he won the Ontario party leadership.

In political leadership conventions, there is nothing like the personal touch.

Mr. Lewis had cultivated this personal touch for decades in his long and strenuous party work.

BORN IN POLAND

A Jew, he was born June 23, 1909, at Swislocz, Poland, to Morris Los, a leatherworker and, naturally, a socialist. The family moved in 1921 to Montreal where the name was changed to Lewis.

David Lewis started Grade 1 in Montreal at age 12, learned English and French, and became a Rhodes scholar and the first Canadian to head the Oxford Union.

In 1935, he married Sophie Garson of Montreal. They have four children: Stephen, Michael, a political organizer of note, and twin daughters, Janet and Nina, who are also politically minded.

After only a year as a patent attorney, Mr. Lewis became national secretary of the CCF in 1936 at $100 a month. He left the job in 1950 to become a successful labor lawyer.

THINKS FAST

But he continued to hold office in the party: national vice-chairman, national chairman, national president.

In these posts and as a labor lawyer he helped to cement the alliance which became the NDP.

As deputy leader of the party in the Commons since 1965, Mr. Lewis showed time and again that he can think fast on his feet and that he is afraid of no other politician.

During last year's sweeping emotional public support for invoking the War Measures Act during Quebec's kidnapping crisis, Mr. Lewis stood firm in contending the government had over-reacted at the expense of civil rights, and harvested a bitter crop of hostile letters.

He once silenced Prime Minister Trudeau with the crack: "There but for the grace of Pierre Elliott Trudeau sits God."

The NDP, like the CCF, has always had some of the nation's great speakers and parliamentarians, including leaders M. J. Coldwell and Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Lewis has been in this same vein. Moreover, he can say it in French.

Even so, the Lewis bilingualism may be wasted if the NDP's Quebec wing carries through on hints to disengage federally, hewing much closer to the separatist views of Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois than to the main stream of the federal party.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING SELLS THE MOST

Go ahead and buy that new home you've always wanted.

We'll be glad to help with a $1000 Home Acquisition Grant or $5000 Second Mortgage Loan.

Go ahead and look around. We can make it easier for you to buy a new home of your choice or build one by providing an outright $1000 Home Acquisition Grant or a $5000 Second Mortgage Loan that may be used as part or all of your down payment.

To qualify: You must be the first occupant of the new home and must have lived in British Columbia for 12 months immediately preceding the date of purchase or completion of construction.

The Loan can equal but cannot exceed the difference between the cost of the property and the first mortgage. Previous British Columbia Government Annual Home-owner Grants will be deducted from the $1000 Grant, but not if you choose a Second Mortgage Loan.

Interest lower than on Federal N.H.A. first mortgages

If payments are made promptly there will be an annual refund of up to 10%, reducing the effective interest rate on a 25-year Second Mortgage Loan to 7½%. For example, the monthly payment on a $5000, 25-year Second Mortgage Loan is $41.00 but the 10% refund would in effect reduce this to $36.90.

All mortgages Fully Insured—without extra charge

If the borrower who is the principal supporter of the family dies, the Government of British Columbia will forgive the remaining debt. There is no charge for this insurance – nor are there any application, legal or registration fees or charges.

Annual Home-owner Grants reduce your property taxes

Once you have purchased your new home you become eligible for the British Columbia Government Home-owner Grant of up to $170 annually – an important factor in helping to reduce the amount of your property taxes.

CONSERVATION SANS SERMONS

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Geographic series, in its windup program of the season Tuesday night, was dedicated to conservation activities in the Arctic.

The CBS hour concentrated on Al Oeming, a naturalist with a 1,500-acre game preserve in Alberta, where he breeds rare and threatened species including caribou, musk ox and the Arctic hare. Much of the film was shot on an Arctic expedition last summer when he was collecting animals to improve his breeding stock or to try to start new families.

They used helicopters and airplanes in the hunt. Musk ox were herded by low flying planes into water so the young could be separated from the herd. An attempt to catch a male and female caribou in a net ended in failure when two young females were caught. The program showed a white whale chase and the capture of a narwhal—a whale with a single horn growing from his head—which ended with the animal's accidental death. There was a merry sequence with nets running around wildly trying to capture scurrying Arctic hares.

The film work was excellent. Best of all there was no lecturing on conservation. With all the editorializing in the last couple of seasons by nature programs, the public must be aware of endangered species. Journey to the High Arctic didn't nag, since conservation was implicit throughout, and was the better for it.

REFLECT ON MY LAI

Co-hosts Morley Safer, former CBC correspondent from Toronto, and Mike Wallace of 60 Minutes went globe-trotting to put together Tuesday night's program. Safer visited My Lai with a camera crew and had some sober, philosophical reflections on the massacre.

It was, as usual, a good mix of material and well put together.

Aline Saarinen, the network's art and women expert, has been named to the foreign post—NBC's first woman bureau chief.

U.S. May Lose Control Over Satellites

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States voting power over international communications satellite policies would be cut to 40 per cent under an agreement which may be concluded here among member nations in the next few weeks.

The interim international telecommunications satellite system (Intelsat), set up in 1964, provided for a weighted voting formula giving the United States 52 per cent—a majority—control.

As a matter of declared national policy, however, the United States has sought for several years to move toward a co-operative international arrangement in which its power would be gradually diminished.

Representatives of 79 Intelsat member nations and a dozen observers, including those from Communist countries, scheduled the opening today at the state department of what they hope will be their final negotiating and organizing session.

For the first time delegates are working with a text which has won general agreement.

CONTROL IN QUESTION

A major controversy from the beginning of negotiations in 1969 was the amount of policy and operational control which the United States would retain.

The formula so far has given the United States an unchallengeable majority in line with its major contributions to installation of the system and its role as a heavy user of international communications.

Under the proposed agreement, a country's voting power would be based on its use of the international satellite system. But U.S. power would be limited to 40 per cent, declining with growing use of other countries.

The manager of Intelsat operations for the last 10 years has been a U.S. government-chartered corporation known as Comsat, or Communications Satellite Corp. Comsat also has been the U.S. member of the managing board. Canada is represented by the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp.

In meetings during the last two years many smaller nations and some larger European countries have insisted on radical reduction of Comsat's role.

The proposed agreement defers the issue while a new secretary-general seeks to build an international staff of communications experts who eventually could replace Comsat in its operational role.

In the meantime, Comsat's role as manager would continue six years.

Gallup Poll

VOTERS PREDICT TORY VICTORY

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

(World Copyright Reserved)

William Davis, new premier of Ontario, starts his mandate in a province where almost half the voters think that when the Conservatives elected him as leader, he was their best choice.

Weight of voter opinion also predicts that Conservatives will win the next election in Ontario, expected some time this year, with the Liberals trailing far behind.

Because of the importance and influence the Ontario Provincial Government represents in Canada, the Gallup Poll made a special study in this province to assess voter reaction to Mr. Davis and his party, by asking two questions.

First:

"From what you have heard or read, do you think the Ontario Conservatives did, or did not, elect the best man, Mr. William Davis, to replace Mr. John Roberts as premier of this province?"

A third of the voters are undecided, but among the remainder Mr. Davis gets a "Yes" vote, by a ratio of more than two-to-one, over the "No's".

YES	48%
NO	18
UNDECIDED	34
	100%

The second question:

"Apart from your own political feelings, which provincial party do you think will win most votes in the next provincial election, expected sometime soon?"

Mr. Davis and his Conservative Party get another two-to-one opinion, that they will be returned to power over the Liberals. Less than one-in-ten voters expect the NDP to win the coming election.

Liberals will win	22%
Conservatives will win	44
NDP will win	6
Other Parties	1
Undecided	27
	100%

Poverty Report 'Politically Edited'

TORONTO (CP) — The four staff members who quit the Senate committee on poverty last week said Tuesday they may produce their own report on the committee's findings without the "political editing" of Senator David Croll.

In interviews on CBC television, writers Ian Adams and William Cameron and economists Brian Hill and Peter Penz said the committee apparently intended to build its report around a proposal for a guaranteed annual income, ignoring other policies "directed at the sources of poverty within the economy."

The four contended Senator Croll's editing avoided references to controversial issues and cut out references to people who had appeared before the committee.

Subjects cut out of the report included workmen's compensation and poverty problems involving Indians, they said.

Mr. Adams said Senator Croll had ordered references to Toronto councillors John Sewell and Karl Jaffray eliminated from the report.

REFUSES COMMENT

Senator Croll, who refused to comment on the resignations when they were announced Sunday night, said Tuesday he would write the report, along with his own staff.

He denied the report was built mainly around the proposal for a guaranteed annual income. He said it will make recommendations on a series of supporting programs, including manpower policies and unemployment insurance.

Mr. Adams said his position as a writer was "untenable."

"It was impossible to talk about the relationship between economic power and political power. In other words, we couldn't talk about the rich in this country who made the laws and managed the country—and how the poor suffered from that."

Mr. Cameron said:

"It became apparent . . . that what the senator wanted was a report that would not confront power. But we were never told this at the beginning. We were told that we would be writing a blueprint for the next generation.

"If the next generation has to go with the sort of blueprint that I suspect the Senate committee on poverty is going to come up with, they're going to turn right and fall off at Newfoundland."

Mr. Cameron said "you don't hire people like us" if the intention is to produce a "political" document and suggested the committee would have been better advised to have hired "hacks."

The four said they decided to tell their story to "try to throw some kind of a monkey wrench into the idea of a single solution, a guaranteed annual income."

NDP Plans Anti-War Protest

NANAIMO — A spontaneous, symbolic anti-Vietnam war protest will be held by the Waffle group of the Nanaimo New Democratic Party Association at Nanoose on April 24.

Protesters plan to have a picket line at the Island Highway and Dolphin Road, near the joint torpedo testing range of the Canadian Forces and U.S. Navy.

The protest will start at 9 a.m. and end at 9 p.m. It will be followed with a torchlight parade to the Nanoose flats and wiener roast and barbecue.

The group expects support from high school and Malaspina College students.

Subway in Seoul

SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee-Park has broken ground for South Korea's first subway system. Costing $81.4 million, the six-mile line will link the central railway station and Chongyangni on the eastern side of the capital.

Embryos Grown in Test Tubes

CHICAGO (AP) — A medical researcher reported Tuesday that he has been successful in growing mouse embryos in test tubes up to the heartbeat stage.

Describing his work at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, Dr. Yu-Chih Hsu, of Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene, Baltimore, said the embryos lived the equivalent of one-third of the normal mouse gestation period of 21 days.

Previous experiments have been able to keep mouse embryos alive only 3½ days, Dr. Hsu said.

His work is said to be the first time that mammalian embryos have been raised outside the uterus to the point where the embryo is usually implanted in the uterus—or the yolk—sac phase.

Dr. Hsu said the experiments with mice may yield information about the development of human embryos which would be useful in the study of problems related to human fertility.

In Dr. Hsu's experiments, fertilized mouse eggs were grown in a tissue culture made of collagen from the tails of mice. Collagen is a gelatinous protein substance.

Dr. Hsu said the experiments succeeded in bringing the embryos from the blastocyst stage following division of the egg to the early somite stage where the segments of the body first appear.

But Dr. Hsu said the development of the embryos in test tubes did not parallel the development of embryos in the uterus.

All embryos developed in test tubes with present methods "seemed to be defective in one organ or the other," he said.

No actual hearts developed in the embryos, Dr. Hsu reported, but rhythmical contractions of 70 to 80 beats a minute resembling the heartbeat were seen in seven of 25 embryos which lived beyond the implantation stage.

The embryos died after seven or eight days, Dr. Hsu said, because there was inadequate circulation to nourish them.

MILES FOR MILLIONS

Sore Feet to Benefit 21 Groups

Twenty-one local, national and international organizations will be beneficiaries of the Miles for Millions March in Victoria May 8.

The local groups are: Environment 100, 10 per cent; Queen Alexandra Solarium, 6 per cent; Victoria Youth Council, 5 per cent; Saanich Indian School Board Association, 3 per cent; Victoria Outreach Program, 1.5 per cent; Detached Worker Program, 1.5 per cent.

Biggest percentage recipients of the proceeds are four international organizations: Unitarian Service Committee; Canadian University Service Overseas; Canadian UNICEF Committee; and Oxfam of Canada. Each will receive 12 per cent.

Miles for Millions is mainly focused at international development but organizers said that in Victoria other needs and concerns must be taken into consideration.

The proceeds, for Environment 100 will allow it to operate at an increased level during summer months, organizers said.

Money for the solarium will be used to purchase 16 cribs for patients who receive no public funds for support.

Funds for the Victoria Youth Council will be used for a down-payment for Emmanuel Baptist Church property on Fernwood, which is to be converted into a youth resources centre.

The Saanich Indian School Board Association, concerned about the future of Indians, owns and operates a school bus program and runs a co-op nursery school and pre-school classes.

Victoria Outreach Program works with low-income group children and the Detached Worker Program also works with children of the poor and young school dropouts.

General information and details about the Miles for Millions March next month are available at 477-1863.

FIRED FIREFIGHTER'S JOB HOPES RAISED

Dale Kuster, the Saanich fireman dismissed for wearing glasses, hopes Mayor Hugh Curtis will help him get his job back.

"Curtis didn't make a solid statement, but he intimated that if enough taxpayers were concerned, he would comply with their wishes. He really listened and I'm convinced he is a true gentleman," Kuster said after a meeting with the mayor.

Kuster was fired June 30.

Seven other fire fighters were wearing glasses at the time, Kuster said, including the chief. He wore contact lenses for two years after a suggestion by his superiors. When he became a first-class firefighter he noticed several others wearing glasses, so he returned to wearing his.

Kuster intends to keep picketing.

DISPUTED UVIC PROFS GET AWARDS

Two professors at the University of Victoria whose contract renewals have been in dispute have been awarded Canada Council bursaries.

Dana Atchley and Peter Dalglish, both assistant professors in the studio visual arts department of the faculty of fine arts, will receive $4,000.

Both will be travelling this summer and using the money to continue their particular art interests. Atchley will be travelling in the U.S. and Dalglish will be visiting Scotland.

Building Active In Rural Areas

Building permits worth $2.4 million have been issued in non-municipal areas of southern Vancouver Island in the first three months of this year.

This compares with $1.2 million in the same period last year. However, permits were valued at $10 per square foot for full basement houses last year and this has been switched to $17 per square foot to be comparable with municipal areas.

Permits have been issued for 121 new houses so far this year compared with 103 new houses in the same period last year.

UVIC STUDENT LANDS GRANT FOR $11,400

A National Research Council federal grant of $3,800 a year for three years has been awarded to Allan Wilson, 1-2566 Prior Street

The grant also includes a travel allowance for graduate work on his doctorate in England. Wilson plans going to England next summer. He has not yet decided on a university for his studies.

Wilson has his masters in psychology and is working at his doctorate at University of Victoria.

PUB RUNS DRY

CHRISTCHURCH, England (UPI) — When 50 rugby players invaded Dave Davies' pub last year while on their annual outing, they drank the place dry. This year Davies put in an extra supply to make sure it did not happen again — but it did.

"Quite honestly, I didn't think they could do it again," said Davies. He said they and pub regulars drank through 1,400 pints of draft beer and an equal amount in bottles.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Word Trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Enclosed is a clipping from your column as it appeared in the New Orleans States Item:

"CONFIDENTIAL TO AT WITS' END: It seems inconceivable to me that a registered nurse would be 'ashamed' to take her child to a doctor with recurring pinworms. Quit treating the boy with over-the-counter drugs and get that child to a doctor!"

Abby, shouldn't it be equally inconveivable to you, as it is to me, that a physician should have recurring pinworms? — Philip C. Sperier, Editor, Dixie Roto Magazine.

DEAR MR. SPERIER: I goofed and there is no worming my way out of it! Of the hundreds of editors and proofreaders who saw that item, few caught the error before it went to press, and you are the only editor to have called it to my attention afterward. Only two readers, Mrs. J. L. Harris of Portland, Ore., and Art Moyer of Albany, Ore., wrote to remark on it. Mea culpa.

DEAR ABBY: You advised "Best Friend" to tell her girl friend that cross eyes can be corrected by surgery. You even suggested that the cross-eyed girl may not be "aware" of how she looks.

Abby, in the first place, if she is over three years old she knows how she looks. She will have heard nice older people say time and again, "Such a pretty child. Too bad about her eyes."

And from kindergarten on she'll have heard cruel remarks from other children to remind her that her eyes are "different," and if her eyes are like mine, and do not focus properly, people will keep asking her, "What are you looking at?"

Surgery doesn't always help. I have had two operations on my eyes. Neither one worked.

I used to be handicapped. But I'm not anymore, simply because I refuse to allow my defect to be the most important thing in my life. I do the best I can with what I have. My husband thinks I'm beautiful. And because he does. I am. — Sign me, Aware.

DEAR AWARE: A thousand apologies. Others wrote to tell me that not all crossed eyes can be corrected with surgery. Please forgive me.

DEAR ABBY: Please, keep on telling young girls to never give in to a guy no matter what he says or how hard he begs. A guy who really loves a girl will never leave her, regardless.

I talked a girl out of her virginity. I am ashamed to say that she was only 14. (I was 18.) I caused her a lot of trouble, and now she won't even speak to me. But that's my fault, not hers.—"B"

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

EGGPLANT SLICES TOP CASSEROLE

Traditional Greek Mousaka Uses Eggplants and Spices

Mousaka is a traditional Greek dish which combines a variety of herbs and spices to give a sweet, hot flavor.

The basic ingredient is eggplant, now in good supply, which needs oil and liquid to bring out its delicate flavor.

Mousaka is simple to prepare, and may be served either hot or cold.

MOUSAKA

1 medium eggplant.
4 tablespoons cooking oil.
1 medium onion, chopped.
1 pound ground beef.
1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste.
1 (14 oz.) can kidney beans, undrained.
¼ teaspoon cinnamon.
½ teaspoon cloves.
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg.
¼ teaspoon thyme.
¼ teaspoon oregano.

Topping

2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons flour.
½ cup cream.
1 cup cottage cheese.
1 teaspoon fresh chopped parsley (or ¼ teaspoon dried parsley flakes).
Salt and ground white pepper.
1 egg slightly beaten.

Slice eggplant, unpeeled, and place in cold water which has been slightly salted.

Saute onions in oil for one minute, add meat and brown well over medium heat. Add tomato paste and spices, toss together and taste, add more spices if necessary, as well as salt and freshly ground black pepper. Add kidney beans, toss lightly and remove from heat.

Place meat mixture in a two-quart square casserole dish. Arrange eggplant slices on top and brush with peanut oil.

Bake in a pre-heated 300 degree F. oven for 25 minutes. Remove from oven and flatten gently with a spatula until casserole becomes more compact and juices of meat are absorbed in the eggplant. Bake for another 10 minutes.

To make topping, melt butter over low heat in a saucepan, add flour and stir to form paste, add cream, parsley, salt, pepper and cottage cheese. Stir until thickened. Transfer a few tablespoons of hot mixture to beaten egg, mix well, then add egg to cheese sauce.

Spread cheese sauce over mousaka and return to oven for 5 minutes. Serve hot or cold. (Serves six.)

Firms Agree to List Cosmetic Ingredients

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, announced Tuesday that cosmetics manufacturers had agreed to register with the food and drug administration and tell the agency what ingredients go into their products.

In announcing the agreement, Mrs. Knauer praised industry, but also called for elimination of possibly hazardous ingredients in cosmetics and said the contents of all cosmetic products should be listed on the label.

Both Mrs. Knauer and FDA commissioner Charles C. Edwards have urged the cos hazardous cosmetics ingredients. Under the law, the FDA cannot demand ingredient information on cosmetics although it can seize products judged hazardous or contaminated.

metics industry voluntarily to help the FDA police possibly hazardous or contaminated.

Mrs. Knauer released a letter she received from James H. Merritt, president of The Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association, Inc., in which the trade group said manufacturers would register with the FDA and advise the agency of the ingredients of their products.

Merritt said the industry was considering adoption of quality guidelines for cosmetics products, plus a system under which manufacturers would tell the FDA of any ill effects from a cosmetic.

Grey Flannel Suits Back on the Scene

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Clothes are going classic for men and women alike in the Italian ready-to-wear collections now jamming buyers into the white and gilt salons of the Pitti Palace.

Grey flannel suits, blazer jackets, cardigan sweaters and polo coats marked the classic look of men's clothes shown Monday night, the first of three days of shows by 81 houses.

The opening women's shows of high fashion ready-to-wear stressed tailored suits, shirt-waist blouses and a return to the suit for cocktail and evening wear. Every house showed hemlines at the bottom of the kneecap, even when a few microskirts were tucked into collections, or when a rare pair of shorts peeped out from a slit skirt.

The biggest men's applause-getter was Ugo Coccoli's line of classic grey flannel suits with one or two buttons. He also drew praise with pale grey trousers and medium grey blazers, worn with regimental striped ties and shirts of so pale a blue they seemed nearly white.

Baratta was big on polo coats, plain or with thick beaver collars. There was a cape look to his flared Dracula coat in dark green. It had a very high collar into which the wearer could sink his chin.

Miguel Cruz for Litrico liked all grey knits in cardigans and matching slacks. Some sweater tops were sashed or had geometric insets in rust color. Shoes were in matching shades of grey suede.

Filippo Nativo did a burgundy overcoat with white pin dots, worn with a burgundy suit and a white shirt with burgundy pin dots. His suit jackets had buckled back belts.

Pale beiges and muted, pale plaids were popular, as at Sir Bonser, the shirt maker, where many shirt jackets had patches sewn on the elbows.

Women's evening gowns were romantic again. A long red coat with knife pleats falling from an empire waist topped a white empire gown of pleats with a narrow embroidered ban for a top, from the Fontana sisters. It was strictly for the flat of chest.

Blazers came into their own for evening. Ognibene-Zendman did them in horizontal striped satin with long satin skirts. Barocco's blazers were of black sequins and Renato Balestra's of black and gold glitter threads.

Former Reporter Happy as Apprentice Printer

As a registered printers' apprentice, Joy Langan was permitted to touch the type when she visited the Times composing room, during a visit from Vancouver. Five-year-old daughter Lisa must keep hands off, though, according to a long-standing rule of the International Typographical Union, stating that no-one but printers may touch the metal.

Former Times reporter Joy Langan has transferred to another newspaper department, a switch that may well be unique in Canada.

She is now an apprentice printer at Pacific Press in Vancouver, the first woman to train in a print shop in Western Canada.

After eight months in the composing room Joy is sure she made the right choice.

"I've never worked with a group of people I've liked as much. I feel I can get along with anyone there," she said during a brief visit to her former home town this week.

Joy has worked in several other newspaper departments, including the library. She has written advertising copy for department stores, and was top writer for a radio station in Trail.

She gave two main reasons for her change of career:

"Once you're a journeyman printer, travel opportunities are more or less unlimited — and I can earn a man's wages."

Most jobs for women writers, she found, do not pay well, and these jobs are scarce. Joy decided she would be better off in a so-called man's world.

The few problems she has encountered so far have nothing to do with being a woman.

One of them is height, "or rather, lack of."

"The printers built a little box for me to stand on while I work at the make-up tables. It even has a handle so I can carry it around to different jobs."

Pushing the heavy tables takes a special technique.

"My arms aren't as strong as men's, so I have to throw my whole weight behind it," Joy explained. "But it's not too bad. Even the men wrench a shoulder occasionally."

The major terror, Joy says, was using the electric saws to trim leads to the required length.

"Most of the boys had already used saws in industrial arts, but I had to grit my teeth and make myself do it at first. Now I'm fairly comfortable, but I'm still very careful.

"The trouble with the saws is they're just machines and they don't stop to think they might be cutting a finger as well as metal."

Being short is a disadvantage at the saws, too.

Metal chips hit the men at chest level: they hit Joy at eye level, and she has been to the first aid room three times to have bits of lead removed from her eyes. She now remembers to wear glasses.

There was an initial reluctance to give Joy preliminary tests required for an apprenticeship and some hesitation by the foreman about letting her into the shop. Since they Joy has been accepted by the men.

"I went to work on the understanding that I would be treated exactly like the men, with no concessions. The journeymen are anxious to help, and the foreman seems satisfied."

Before she becomes a journeyman printer Joy must complete four years of on-the-job training in all phases of the printers' craft.

Apprentices must also attend night school for four years, studying related subjects such as the history of printing, typography and new cold-type printing processes.

Joy does not look on her new career as a gesture for women's lib.

"I'm not a liberationist," she explained.

"One women's lib type did try to use my case as an example of equal rights or something, but after a while she said something peculiar. 'Don't be too good. Remember other women may follow you, and if you set too high a standard . . .'

"I was appalled.

"I'm training for a job so that I can earn a man's wage.

"I'll be as good as I can."

University Students Tutor Needy Children

HALIFAX (CP) — A group of university students and faculty members here, organized under the name Reach-Out Tutors, see education as a two-way street.

Anxious to share their experiences with those who need help in their studies, the "tutors" are assisting school-age children from primary to Grade 12.

Each tutor has one youngster with whom he works one day a week. He keeps a progress file and reports back to the parent body at regular intervals.

Initated by Christine Ghose, a fourth-year arts student at Dalhousie University, and Patrick Mabey, a third-year sociology major, the Reach-Out Tutors include fellow Dalhousie students, some faculty members and a group of students from Mount Saint Vincent University.

They are sponsored by the Dalhousie student union which provides funds for teaching aids, remedial materials and bus fare.

The tutors promoted their service through posters in schools and publicity in community newspapers, and waited for invitations for their help to come in.

The idea caught on, and requests for an extension of the tutoring service have come from various city agencies.

The tutors are working in the city's low-income north end but if interest remains high they hope to extend their work to other sections of the city, and to recruit workers from other universities here.

Next year they will consider the preparation of a brief on their findings and experiences.

The Organized Bride Starts Countdown Early

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bride who doesn't want to approach her happy wedding day with a thousand worries simply must resolve three months ahead to make a plan — and stick with it.

The following timetable, say the authorities, will get you through with little trauma, assuring that you'll have the legendary radiant look that wedding day.

THREE MONTHS BEFORE THE WEDDING: Decide on the type of wedding, whether formal or informal.

Consult with your clergyman to arrange necessary details; make up your guest list, consult with bridegroom's family about same.

Also: Make arrangements for reception, catering and music; choose your bridal party; order your bridal gown and plan what bridesmaids will wear.

Also: Select your silver pattern as well as your china and crystal, and register your choices with your jeweller. Decide on decor and furnishings for your new home or apartment.

TWO MONTHS UNTIL W-DAY: Order your invitations, announcements and personal stationery; buy now what you will need and use for your trousseau; set a date for wedding rehearsal and arrange for rehearsal supper.

ONE MONTH TO GO: Address and mail invitations; buy gifts for attendants and bridegroom, and make plans for luncheon for your attendants.

Finish your shopping for lingerie, linens and household furnishings.

Also: Check up on outfits for bridal party, and have fittings on your wedding gown.

Buy bridegroom's wedding ring and he should get yours. Go with him to apply for a marriage licence.

Also: Remind bridegroom to order boutonnieres and flowers for wedding party and the two mothers; consult your caterer about reception menu and cake.

Take up the matter of decoration with florist. Arrange accommodations for out-of-town guests.

JUST ONE WEEK LEFT: Send wedding announcement to the local papers.

Check on arrival of gowns, trousseau items.

Make a beauty shop appointment for wedding hairdo. Have bridesmaid's luncheon.

Put your gifts on display. Be as prompt with your gift acknowledgements as you can.

Pack uncrushables when you have free time, and spend leisure time with your family.

THE DAY BEFORE: Tell someone your honeymoon itinerary, and arrange for someone to check your new home while you are gone.

Go to hairdresser's early and then to wedding rehearsal and dinner. Check your luggage and — go to bed early.

Cross-Canada Survey Shows VD Increasing

By KARIN MOSER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An American doctor-author recently outlined a simple plan whereby venereal disease could be almost wiped out, but even with 34,000 cases reported in Canada alone in 1970, one expert doesn't think his idea would work.

"Are you kidding?!" said Maureen Warden, supervisor of Vancouver's VD clinic, when asked what she thought of the idea of one day being set aside to inject a large segment of the population with penicillin.

"That would mean bringing the program into high schools and treating students, and society isn't ready for that yet. It just wouldn't work.

"There would be an uproar if we did this kind of thing. I can just hear the mothers saying, 'You're not going to treat my daughter for something like that.'"

It was Californian Dr. David Reuben who suggested in his book, Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex, that one day of the year be proclaimed Victory over VD Day, during which every American in the age group where sexual intercourse is possible receives one injection of penicillin. Those allergic to penicillin would be given an alternative antibiotic.

While this would not wipe out the disease 100 per cent, it could probably be almost totally eliminated within two years through an aggressive program, he wrote.

With millions of dollars being set aside to fight the disease in Canada, the alarm has gone out from health clinics and hospitals that venereal disease, soaring on the wings of ignorance and freedom, has reached epidemic proportions and that in 1971 150,000 people will become infected.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that the most prominent age group with syphilis and gonorrhea is the one between 15 and 24 years, while in British Columbia those between 18 and 24 make up the largest age group afflicted.

In Manitoba, during the first two months of this year alone, 517 cases of gonorrhea were reported compared with 361 for the same period last year and 50 cases of syphilis turned up on record compared with only 30 during the same eight-week period in 1970.

Dr. Emmanuel Snell of Winnipeg, director of the province's preventive medical services branch, said control measures adopted in Manitoba can't be effective unless other areas take proper steps.

"If control measures break down anywhere else in Canada or the United States, the effect on our situation can be devastating."

He said doctors are barely managing to cope with what he termed an epidemic situation in Manitoba.

The Cross-Canada Survey revealed these statistics of venereal disease throughout the country in 1970. The figures came from both the federal health department and individual provincial records. These represent reported cases only, and health officials estimate that for every case reported there are at least three or four unreported ones.

British Columbia — gonorrhea 6,010; syphilis 364.

Alberta — gonorrhea 4,290; syphilis 139.

Saskatchewan — gonorrhea 2,191; syphilis 140.

Manitoba — gonorrhea 2,856; syphilis 235.

Ontario — gonorrhea 8,386; syphilis 970.

Quebec — gonorrhea 4,569; syphilis 390.

New Brunswick — gonorrhea 528; syphilis 9.

Nova Scotia — gonorrhea 989; syphilis 246.

Prince Edward Island — gonorrhea 21; syphilis 1.

Newfoundland — gonorrhea 461; syphilis 1.

The Yukon and Northwest Territories reported 230 and 944 gonorrhea cases respectively in 1970 and five cases each of syphilis.

In Ontario, government and health organizations will commit almost $2 million in the next fiscal year to combat the diseases, and have approved the establishment of three additional VD clinics to be located in Cornwall, Kitchener and Scarborough. There are already 10 other clinics operating in the province.

In B.C., programs are under way through which workers associated with venereal disease clinics and the health department go out "into the field," said Mrs. Warden, "to skid road, communes and derelict houses" and treat persons with oral doses of penicillin if they are suspected of having gonorrhea or refer them to clinics for injections if they have syphilis.

In the first month of 1970, she said, there were 300 cases of gonorrhea at the Vancouver clinic. She also said more syphilis cases, among males were coming to light since the clinic has been treating homosexuals.

Health departments' information indicated that in Canada for every female with gonorrhea there are three males who also have the disease.

In Fredericton, Dr. H. W. Wile of New Brunswick's communicable disease centre said the rate of gonorrhea in 1970 was 84.4 per 100,000 persons in the province, up from the 68 per 100,000 in 1969.

In Halifax, Dr. H. B. Colford, Nova Scotia director of communicable disease control, blamed both school boards and physicians for contributing to the spread of venereal disease.

He criticized physicians for not reporting syphilis and gonorrhea cases and contacts to the provincial health department as required by law. He also rapped school boards for resisting the introduction of sex-education courses in Nova Scotia schools.

He said physicians argued that patients are embarrassed by interviews with public health officials and that reporting their names is a violation of patients' trust.

Dr. Colford said such reasons are "a farce." Health officials maintain confidences at all times, he said. When a name is reported to his department it is kept in a locked file for two years and then is destroyed.

Nova Scotia school boards, he said, "view sex education as immoral; the real problem is education of school boards."

Widespread increase of venereal disease is attributed by health officials to increased sexual freedom, particularly among young people who, said Dr. Ralph Persad, medical officer, venereal disease control section for the Ontario department of health, are "doing it, doing it more often."

The contraceptive pill too has helped eliminate fears of pregnancy and has led to increased sexual activities.

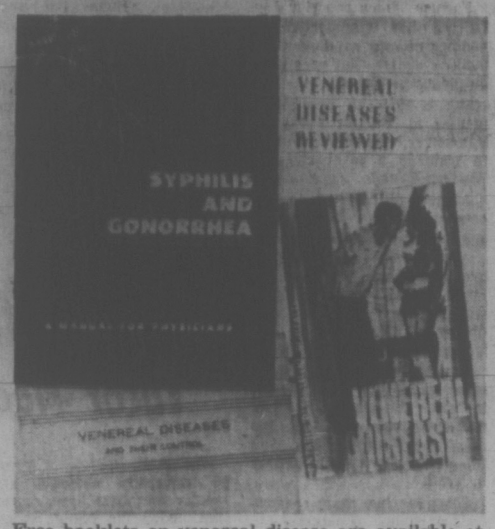
Dr. C. S. Nicol, a British health consultant commenting recently on a report that a five-year-old boy in the United States had undergone treatment for venereal disease after a nine-year-old girl had infected him, stressed the fact that "many people do not know that infection can be spread by close genital contact without sexual intercourse."

Contrary to some popular beliefs, there was no evidence to show that syphilis can be transmitted through contact with dishes, cutlery, linen or toilet facilities. The fragility of the causative organism meant that indirect transmissions is virtually impossible.

The syphilis germ is carried to all parts of the body by the blood stream. Untreated, it can result in damage to the brain, heart and spinal cord. Treated promptly, it can be cleared up quickly.

Gonorrhea, however, does not spread further than the genital and urinary regions and damage is usually limited to those areas.

Sterility may be a consequence if the disease is not treated.



Free booklets on venereal disease are available at the provincial health department, 1947 Cook Street. There is a wide-spread increase in cases reported in Canada, particularly among young people.

Free treatment for venereal disease is available at the provincial health department clinic, 1947 Cook Street.

The clinic is open Monday to Friday from 8:30 a.m. to noon and no appointment is needed. All records are strictly confidential.

Parents are not informed unless the patient is under 12 years of age.

High Cost of Hospital Beds Adds to Patients' Anxieties

TORONTO (CP) — The cost per day of a hospital bed is one that can puzzle and disturb people, even in these days of insurance. It's a figure that seems incomprehensible to many, and somehow part of the worry that comes with illness.

Aware of this, J. Douglas Snedden, executive director of the Hospital for Sick Children here has explained the total at that hospital in the hospital's employees magazine. He says he would like them to be able to answer questions asked by patients and friends.

He says their rate of $100.70 sounds like a lot of money for one day's care for a sick child.

But on a 24-hour basis, he explains, it costs $23.05 to cover building and administration services. Nursing services cost $30.90 a day, other patient-care services add up to $34.45 and education costs $12.30.

The building and administration costs include the steam to heat the building, electricity, depreciation on furniture and equipment, the salaries of doormen, cleaners, admitting clerks, purchasing and stores staff.

"Other" patient are services including surgical supplies and drugs, $5.20; x-ray and diagnostic services, $9.80; food services, $3.25; preparing medical record, $1.45. Such services as physiotherapy, social work, psychology or dentistry total another $7.10.

The hospital has a computer project that accounts for another $4.30 every patient day, though Mr. Snedden says the costs to develop a regional computer facility are part of the project. There are two computers, one a pilot project medical computer for monitoring a patient's vital signs.

The other is the business computer that should eventually handle business and medical record functions for downtown Toronto teaching hospitals.

The education costs in the $100.70 include those for interns, residents, technicians and nursing assistants, the hospital's school of nursing.

Mr. Snedden says the $100.70 per diem rate is reached by dividing the amount of the hospital's operating budget paid by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission for standard ward allowable cost by the number of patient days.

The total cost of operating the hospital for 1971 is estimated at $32,540,000, of which $3,115,000 is for research. Of the remainder, $24,463,000 is charged to the OHSC to cover in-hospital operating costs at standard ward level.

About half the OHSC money comes from the federal government, the rest from the provincial treasury and hospital insurance premiums paid by Ontario residents.

Of the nearly $4 million remaining in the total budget, Mr. Snedden says almost half comes from the hospital's annual Christmas appeal, endowment income and foundation grants. The rest is from such sources as the cafeteria, out-patient charges or semi-private room differentials.

Strike 'Illegal'

EDMONTON (CP) — Any strike by employees of the Alberta Liquor Control Board would be illegal, Social Development Minister Ray Speaker told the legislature Tuesday.

Speaker, the cabinet minister in charge of personnel matters, said legislation spells out what steps can be taken in negotiations and "any steps beyond that would not be legal."

Under the Crown Agencies Act which governs negotiations for employees of government agencies, there is no provision for a strike.

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Administration of Indian affairs in the Fraser valley by the newly formed Chilliwack area Indian council has been delayed by a federal government decision to issue grants to Indian bands only, and not councils. Spill Exaggerated

BURNS LAKE (CP) — A spill at a safety pond at the Endako molybdenum mine last week has been exaggerated Bill Richmond, conservation officer for the Burns Lake area, said Tuesday.

He said he inspected the area Monday and found that "about a wheelbarrow full" of silt sludge, mostly water, has spilled over the top of the dam into Francois Lake.

He said the dam has since been raised and samples taken from the lake have shown nothing unusual.

It was feared fish might be killed by tailings containing residues of cyanide, heavy metals and processing chemicals.

THE WEATHER

Sunny skies and a warmer air mass boosted temperatures in the interior of the province Tuesday to the high sixties and middle seventies. Hope recorded 70 degrees and Kamloops reached 65 degrees.

Cloud cover which has now spread into the south coast and Vancouver Island regions in advance of the next Pacific systems was expected to hold temperatures down today but the entire system is weakening and a building ridge of high pressure gives promise of sunshine to most regions Thursday.

Cold Slows Oil Spills In Arctic

SEATTLE (AP) — Oil spills apparently do not spread as rapidly in Arctic waters as they do in temperate zones, the United States Coast Guard reported Tuesday in findings from tests conducted last summer.

Controlled amounts of oil were released from the ice-breaker Staten Island, which was anchored to a large ice floe near Point Barrow, Alaska.

"Cleanup techniques also were tested," the coast guard said.

"Through absorbents or burning, virtually all of the 25 barrels of oil released were removed successfully."

The study was prompted by discovery of large oil deposits in the Arctic along Alaska's north coast. Further tests may be conducted during winter conditions.

Sept. 1 Deadline Set For Auditorium Funds

DUNCAN — A theatre auditorium will be built in Duncan if the Cowichan Valley Regional Arts Council can raise $75,000.

Aldermen unanimously endorsed a resolution Tuesday that they go ahead with the proposed $110,000 centennial library and senior citizens' project and drop plans for the meeting hall.

•

Chairman of the centennial committee Ald. Martin Lukaitis recommended to council the $75,000 saved from the deleted meeting hall be put aside for the arts council to match dollar for dollar by September.

•

Then if the arts council can raise the money by public subscription a $150,000 theatre can be built.

The arts council has already agreed to the proposal and will contribute $2,500 towards revision of the architect's plans.

Duncan Seeks 'Second Place' In Loveliness

DUNCAN — The city could be the second loveliest on the island if owners were made to clean up their messy properties Ald. Allan Kerr told city council Tuesday.

He didn't specify which city is the loveliest.

Aldermen agreed to crack down on violators of the city's nuisance bylaw.

A spring clean-up campaign will be held April 18 to 22 and residents who refuse to participate can be fined up to $100.

Kerr also advised council the rats, garbage and old cars at the city garbage dump are out of control.

Council agreed to hire a Victoria firm to rid the dump of rats and arrange in intermunicipal meeting with North Cowichan to determine if arrangements can be made to use its garbage incinerator.

"No matter what the cost we should reach an agreement with North Cowichan," Ald. Martin Lukaitis said.

LAPORTE TRIALS POSTPONED UNTIL MAY 3

MONTREAL (CP) — Three persons accused of the kidnapping and murder of Pierre Laporte and seven others charged with being accessories after the fact, appeared in court briefly Tuesday and had their trials postponed to the next criminal assizes opening May 3.

* * *

However, outbursts like those that have punctuated previous court proceedings in connection with the kidnap-slaying of the late Quebec labor minister interrupted Tuesday's appearances.

Jacques Rose, 23, brother of Paul Rose who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Laporte case March 13, Francis Simard, 23, and Bernard Lortie, 19, all smiled at friends and waved clenched fists in the air during an appearance that lasted less than a minute.

Jacques Rose cried out "Power to the people of Quebec," before being led from the courtroom.

Later, Lise Rose, 25, sister of Paul and Jacques, was ejected from the same courtroom for shouting and laughing during the postponement to the next assizes of the cases against those charged as accessories after the fact.

* * *

The accused are Francis and Francine Belisle, Denise Quesnel and her daughter Helene, Richard Therrien, Yves Roy and Louise Verreault.

Mr. Justice Antonio Lamer said proceedings should move faster in May and June when three and possibly four divisions of Court of Queen's Bench would be made available so that trials arising from last October's political kidnapping crisis could proceed simultaneously.

Authorities would do their best to complete all legal proceedings by the end of the summer.

"It is obvious that we can't do so now," the judge said, "if every trial is going to last seven or eight weeks."

The slow-moving Paul Rose trial began Jan. 25 and ended March 13.

* * *

All those who appeared were arrested after the abduction of British envoy James Cross and the abduction-slaying of Mr. Laporte. The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec claimed responsibility for the crimes.

Lortie was arrested early in November following a police raid on a northwest Montreal apartment. The Rose brothers and Simard were among those arrested Dec. 28 at a St. Luc, Que., farmhouse near Montreal.

The trial of Michel Viger, a 31-year-old insurance salesman charged with being an accessory after the fact for concealing the three in the farmhouse, currently is proceeding in another court.

HOME GARDEN

Discovering the Flower of the Box

By HILDA BEASTALL

It may be perversity in one's nature which leads to close observation of minute details in a plant's growth. While other gardeners enjoyed the gaiety of colorful tulips, hyacinths and daffodils, one of them studied a small shrub of Box or Boxwood, Buxus sempervirens.

Hilda

This is quite a common shrub in older gardens locally, and likely to become popular again for edgings to terraces in small gardens, but it was the fact of the shrub being covered with flowers that stopped this gardener in his work of pruning.

It was much like being aware for the first time of flowers on a maple tree. Sure, he knew about the seeds, or in the case of the Box, black berries, but he had always missed seeing the flowers that made those berries.

On touching the shrub, a cloud of pollen went drifting away on the breeze. Oho! so the flowers must all be wide open. Off came a twig, with tight clusters of tiny yellowish buds at the tip of every twiglet.

Under a handglass it was discovered what had been suspected, that the Box flower has no petals. As soon as the enclosing yellowish calyx opens, the anthers ripen a mass of pollen out of all proportion to the tiny individual flower.

This is where quanitity of flowers count. Only by the presence of hundreds of tiny buds on a plant is one aware of their existence.

Leaves of all Box have a characteristic odor; people like it or dislike it. Warm sun brings it out, both in variegated forms and the green.

Box will usuallly grow only in gardens where winter temperatures do not reach to zero, yet one plant was discovered some years ago to have survived minus 30 deg. F. in Hamilton, Ontario. An enterprising nurseryman propagated the shrub for gardeners in that area, where any broadleaved evergreen is more than welcome.

Relatives of the Box, also with evergreen foliage and petalless slightly fragrant flowers are Sarcococca ruscifolia grown here for its lustrous green leaves and faint winter scent; and Pachysandra terminalis another evergreen low-growing enough to be useful as an acid-loving groundcover.

Box edges and hedges can be trimmed every April and August to keep them to a desirable size, but just for the fun of it, wait just one April until you see the pollen-laden flowers.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

There is nothing "brilliant" or even "very good" in the play of South's slam contract in today's deal. In a sense, it is an everyday, run-of-the-mill type of hand. However, the deal does serve as an illustration of a deviation from a basic principle of play, the principle being that declarer should draw trumps as soon as he obtains the lead. Had he done so on this hand, he would have gone down.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

SOUTH

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

As to whether South had the values for a two-over-one response in a new suit, is a moot question (about 10 points are required). And as to why North elected to play the final contract at six clubs rather than six diamonds (with 100 in honors), I do not know. Possibly it was because he might have felt that South was a better player than he was; and that South had a better chance of bringing home the slam.

West's opening heart lead was won by dummy's ace. If the trump finesse were now taken, South would end up (in theory) with either 13 tricks or 11: if the finesse lost, the defenders would surely cash the spade ace; and if the finesse won, then after drawing trumps South would discard his three spades on the board's high diamonds.

But South was not interested in gambling for 13 tricks when in so doing he might be jeopardizing the making of 12 tricks. So, after cashing the king of hearts at trick two, declarer next led a trump to his ace, spurning the finesse.

The queen of hearts was cashed next, upon which dummy's eight of spades was discarded. Then came another trump, West's king taking the trick. The rest of the tricks now belonged to declarer.

Of course there was a certain amount of risk in declarer's cashing of the king of hearts at trick two: in theory, one of the opponents might have ruffed this lead. But surely the greater risk was for declarer to have taken the trump finesse at trick two, thus staking his existence on a 50-50 proposition.

It is quite apparent, of course, that if the trump finesse had been taken at trick two, declarer would have been defeated. West, upon winning the trump king, would surely have then led a spade.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

Red Cross . . . For Humanity

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Does the fact that she is the first woman to hold the office in 16 years, loom large in Dr. Olgar Jardine's thinking as new president of the British Columbia - Yukon division of the Canadian Red Cross Society?

She laughs when you ask that question. Then comes back with the statement that while she is conscious of the honor she is more interested in having people work together on the broad program of the Red Cross, "not with thought of whether they are men or women but rather of the best ways to make our principles operational and vital in the social situation that we now face."

Forbes

Today's problems demand that the Red Cross take note of the changing patterns of need. These problems also point up the importance of co-operation with other humanitarian organizations to avoid massive duplication of services.

PLANNING STUDY

With this last in mind a long-range planning study has been instituted at national level that in the next two years will explore all possibilities of closer co-operation with other groups.

"This could eventually mean phasing out some services that overlap," Dr. Jardine explains. "We might drop some things and take up others. Programs could even be changed as need in a community was shown."

Here she made it quite clear that if such changes do come about "they will not affect our big purposes . . . and they are big!" Then she listed blood services, water safety, outpost hospitals, loan cupboards and the junior Red Cross.

IN PERSPECTIVE

She reeled off figures to place these services in proper perspective in the British Columbia-Yukon area.

There are over 80 Red Cross branches. "Some are no more than a place to house records and loan cupboard supplies. Others, like Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, are large organizations and active in all phases of Red Cross work."

In 1970 total number of blood units collected in the area was 98,886 and the number of patients helped by this service numbered 29,873. Staffs of seven Red Cross outpost hospitals served 4,515 patients, made 4,693 outpatient visits, 756 school visits and held 529 public health clinics.

Water safety program had 88,000 pupil training participants with 907 leaders and instructors.

YOUTH PROGRAM

"We increased swimming programs for Indian people with co-operation of the Indian chiefs who are providing the required resources for these expanded programs throughout the area."

One of the most interesting phases of the work, the new president says, is the Red Cross youth program.

"It is active in 556 schools, has 3,367 youth clubs and a membership of 99,229. These young people raised $14,620 in 1970 through various projects and over two-thirds of that sum was spent on needy children and students in the area."

Loan cupboards keep sick room and patients supplies on hand to assist in rehabilitation and convalescence. "Right here in Victoria we have 30 beds and 50 wheelchairs ready for loan as well as many other needed supplies."

RELIEF PROGRAM

These programs along with homemakers and women's work of making and repairing garments for emergency use, are listed under a development plan, one of two basic programs of the Red Cross.

The other is the relief program "in which we are geared for disaster and emergency service."

Here Dr. Jardine concluded with "all our programs are carried out under the first basic principle — humanity. We try to create the climate, the atmosphere, in all our spheres of influence that will favor mutual understanding and trust amongst people here, across Canada and throughout the world."

Haunt of Prime Ministers, Celebrities The Hotel Walper Is Now Up for Sale

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Walper Hotel, haunt of Canadian prime ministers and an endless parade of international celebrities from Will Rogers to Eleanor Roosevelt, is for sale.

The hotel's acclaim has been built on its renowned German, Swiss and Austrian-style cuisine.

It is located in the heart of southwestern Ontario's German area, astride the main route of thousands of theatregoers bound for the Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, barely 25 miles away.

Owner Joseph Zuber, Sr., 75, himself of German descent and as much of an institution at the Walper as the kaiserschnitzels, bratwurst and Waterloo County ham, is retiring.

Burdened with management of the year-old Inn of the Black Walnut, built here by his son before the latter became seriously ill, Mr. Zuber says his work load is too much.

But the Walper, purchased for $74,500 by his father in 1908 and listed with a Toronto realtor recently for $1.3 million, will not be torn down, he says. "We want it to remain a hotel."

Several chains have inquired since the 146-room, five-storey Walper was listed.

Chef Edward Ruppe brought the Walper's Baroque Room, in a Maclean's magazine survey in 1969, a nomination as one of the 10 best dining rooms in the country. Crowds bound for Stratford stopped almost accidentally at first, then made it a point to visit the Walper again when they returned.

Despite its mushrooming reputation, when up to 10,000 persons were dining in the Baroque Room monthly, it was open only 2½ hours daily. Lineups halfway down the winding staircase to the main lobby were common.

Those who have stayed or dined at the hotel include Nelson Eddy, Jeannette MacDonald, Bob Hope, Liberace and a host of big band leaders including Paul Whiteman, Vaughan Monroe, Skitch Henderson, Woody Herman and others.

Sir Robert Borden and every Canadian prime minister from Mackenzie King to Pierre Trudeau visited. King grew up nearby and Mr. Zuber delights in relating their casual chats.

The Walper was built in 1892 by H. (Curry) Walper who sold out to Joseph Zuber's father in 1908.

Over the years, the emphasis was on interior improvements and the drab, red-brick exterior of the five-storey structure belies the warmth and innovations of the Baroque Room and the Hofbrau —a luncheon room opened in the mid-1960s.

The Baroque Room was described as "an oasis of crisp linen, fresh flowers and bright airy spaces in what is an unglamorous hotel," by Maclean's. Its linen color changes each week—pink, red and green.

The Walper's popularity among guests is matched by a deep loyalty among its 125 employees. Chef Ruppe, Yugoslavian-born and trained by a man the hotel brought from Switzerland in the 1930s, has had tempting offers from millionaires and hotel owners in the United States and Canada over the years. He has turned them all down.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1971 —PAGE 37

'THERE CAN BE NO POSSIBLE DAMAGE'

Amchitka Doesn't Worry Diefenbaker

That five megaton nuclear blow the Americans plan to deal Amchitka Island's bedrock in October doesn't frighten former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

The Chief flew into Victoria Tuesday for a brief visit and told reporters at International Airport he saw no reason "to arouse fear and trepidation" over possible effects of the blast.

The bomb packs a force equal to an earthquake reading of 7.0 on the Richter scale, but American scientists say only a bomb greater than 25 megatons could trigger a large earthquake at the island.

Diefenbaker said he has no reason to disbelieve U.S. assurances that no radiation or earthquake danger could result from the test.

The bomb, code-named Cannikin, is the second planned for Amchitka, the first having been detonated Oct 2, 1969. That one brought an official note of concern from the Canadian government to the U.S.

Of the October shot, Diefenbaker said: "There can be no possible damage. The United States must have the right to determine its own policy in this regard."

The former Progressive Conservative Party leader praised the Victoria Low Income Group's plan to serve a wiener and beans dinner to Queen Elizabeth during her family's visit in May.

"Free dinners are always appropriate," he said, "I think it's a novel suggestion."

SCORN

But for Prime Minister Trudeau's frequent absences from Parliament and frequent mocking treatment of the opposition, Diefenbaker had only scorn.

He accused Trudeau of playing "presidential" politics with parliamentary traditions and said his house behavior shows "obvious contempt" for parliament.

Of Manitoba's plan to introduce a guaranteed income, Diefenbaker said he is against it, that it won't work and will kill personal initiative.

Here to open the new quarters of Royal London Wax Museum today as a favor to some old friends, Diefenbaker said he also plans to stalk some salmon — hopefully with better luck than his last attempt seven years ago.

He expects to leave Thursday.

DIEFENBAKER: Scorn for Trudeau

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

A while ago I read the report of hospital authorities who had studied 2,210 soldiers who, on their way home from war, found themselves in states of neurosis, anxiety, headache from perhaps a blow on the head, indigestion, and fatigue. They were also subject to stammering, fainting spells, mental disturbance, sleep walking, night blindness, itching, breathlessness, sweating, strange feelings, loss of appetite, dizziness, and fear of heart failure.

Some of the soldiers who were induced to exercise every day got over their distresses, but those who would not exercise did not improve much, if at all. Questioning showed that one in four of these soldiers had never gone in for exercising of any type, and one in three, when told to exercise, soon lost their interest in it.

In the review of an article on the warning symptoms of a heart attack, Drs. M. Stowers and D. Short, of Scotland, wrote that a high percentage of patients destined to have a major heart attack experienced warning symptoms, especially chest pain, for as long as two months in advance of the actual event. Such symptoms were present in 122 of 180 patients hospitalized with proved heart attacks.

Either the onset of attacks of pain in the crest, or an intensification of the pain, heralded an infarction (plugging of a heart artery) in 99 patients. And this pain occurred only, or mainly, on effort, in four-fifths of these individuals. Thirty-three patients described other threatening symptoms, particularly tiredness or breathlessness.

Only 36 of the 122 patients who had warning symptoms consulted their physicians about them.

* * *

Dr. Bernard Brandstater, at a panel discussion of obstetrical anesthesia, recently objected strongly to the double standard which exists among many doctors in regard to pain — a double standard which causes the pain of childbirth to be almost disregarded, while when a man is operated on, every effort is made to make him comfortable and to make his operation painless.

I regret to see this, because I see no need for letting women suffer. Back in 1907 to 1909, when I had a big obstetric practice, I never had any trouble giving women relief of pain during childbirth, and my patients were very grateful.

The obstacle to the use of new technics for women in labor, is the shortage of skilled medical personnel, according to Dr. Brandstater. Only very large obstetrical centres can afford to have anesthesiologists on duty all around the clock. Surgery can be scheduled, but not childbirth. As Dr. Brandstater said, "We have to teach more young obstetricians to seek additional training in anesthesiology."

WOMEN'S GEORGIA STRAIGHT

No Four-Letter Words Here

VANCOUVER (CP) — Women's liberation groups ended their take-over of Vancouver's underground newspaper, the Georgia Straight, Tuesday after bringing out an issue free of four-letter words and ads dealing with eroticism.

The front cover carries the legend "Women's Liberated Georgie Straight" and a picture of two laughing female laborers, fully clothed, pushing a lawnmower and a wheelbarrow along a deserted city street.

The women, who included a number of regular female employees marched into the Straight's offices in Vancouver's Gastown district last week and announced they were taking the paper over for one issue to protest the cover of that week's issue. They described the cover as "sexist, exploitive and very offensive."

Male employees made no effort to dislodge them and editor Dan McLeod announced he would pay the women $800 for producing the paper, which he said was the normal weekly payroll.

He had no comment on the omission from the women's issue of the four-letter words normally liberally sprinkled through the paper and the numerous sex-oriented classified ads that usually appear.

In an editorial, the women said they feel "much of the paper on a continuous basis is sexist, that it objectifies and exploits women, rather than seeing women as human beings, with the right to the full equality that is the right of all people."

The press run for Tuesday's issue was increased to 16,000 from 13,000. It is the first issue under a new Straight policy to publish twice a week.

No City Support Seen for Protest

Greater Victoria school board likely will not go along with a nation-wide protest by teachers and school trustees against plans by the federal government to deduct unemployment insurance from teachers.

The board's five-member finance and legal committee voted four to one Tuesday not to support a campaign spearheaded by the Canadian School Trustees' Association and endorsed by the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

Trustee Allan McKinnon, the only member to support the protest, said the new measure would mean deductions from teachers' cheques in Greater Victoria would total around $100,000.

GOING BROKE

"This whole thing is just a policy of enforcing failure," McKinnon said. "The fund is going broke because people are abusing it so they want to make more people pay into it."

Trustee Peter Bunn said collecting unemployment insurance from teachers should be viewed as a question of social progress.

"This is part of the social concept of being my brother's keeper," Bunn said.

The matter will come before the full board at its meeting Monday without a recommendation from the committee.

CAPITAL SCENE

The Shakespeare Readers, 2120 Cadboro Bay Road, Suite 204, Sunday at 7:45 p.m.

Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, Douglas Building Cafeteria, Thursday at 8 p.m. Bill Ward, editor of Wildlife Magazine, will speak on "Curiosities of a Wildlife Magazine." A film entitled "Valley of the Swans" will also be shown.

SAN FRANCISCO — Archbishop Joseph McGucken has suspended a 49-year-old priest after it was revealed he had been married for seven years and had a five-year-old son named after Pope Paul. The Rev. Robert Duryea, a priest for a quarter of a century, was removed from his church at nearby Pacifica after serving his last mass Easter Sunday with his 30-year-old wife and their son sitting unnoticed among the faithful.

AMSTERDAM — The Dutch are preparing a royal welcome for the arrival today of Gov-Gen. Michener on his first state visit to a European country. Queen Juliana of The Netherlands and her consort, Prince Bernhard, are set to greet the Micheners and External Affairs Minister Sharp as they step on Dutch soil at a landing stage here.

MAPLE RIDGE — While Ald. George Davison opposed a motion at a council meeting Tuesday for an emergency telephone number for this Fraser Valley community's fire department, his $30,000 barn burned to the ground. The motion was defeated after Davison said when fire breaks out people don't remember the number anyway.

SHERWOOD, Ore — Martha Ficken is trying to egg the voters into choosing Joe Adams, a candidate for the school board. After she gathers eggs from the 600 chickens on her ranch each morning, she stamps each with the message: "Joe Adams is a Good Egg," then she delivers them.

Plug Pulled On Pool

Sidney's centennial pool has gone down the drain.

Ald. Norma Sealey announced at council meeting Tuesday that the centennial committee had "with very great regret" been forced to choose a substitute project. "It is a most unfortunate commentary on support provided by this community," said Mrs. Sealey.

A total of $12,000 has been raised locally but this is far short of the $32,000 required. Instead, the centennial fund will be spent on landscaping and improvements of the seafront at Beacon Avenue, with provision for parking and pleasant access to the new museum (formerly the old Customs House).

Sidney council approved the plans designed by architects Siddall, Dennis, Warner, which is estimated to cost somewhat less than the $9,100 centennial grant.

Centennial committee chairman John Callard said he hoped those who had made donations will leave this money for continuation of the project in the near future. A follow-up letter on this matter is expected from the centennial committee within two weeks.

CHEERS FOR CHOIR

The Claremont High School choir Tuesday was warmly applauded in its first concert in a small church in the heart of London, England.

The Saanich students performed before a small audience of businessmen and office workers.

Sponsored partly by a $2,500 grant from the Canadian government, the 34-member choir is on a three-week tour of Britain. It will return to Victoria April 26.

Larry Booth, vice-principal of the school, and tour organizer, said collections taken at tour concerts will go to British charities.

YES TO SMOKING BUT NO DRINK

EDMONTON (CP) — Smoking yes, alcohol no.

These were the decisions of the Edmonton public school board Tuesday as they passed a resolution to allow smoking in public high schools but unaminously voted to continue its "no booze" policy.

The smoking resolution, to be reviewed in a year, authorizes the principal to "work with his staff, students and parents in adopting regulations governing smoking by staff, senior high school students, parents, and other adults in school buildings and property."

The smoking privileges are extended to students 16 years of age and older.

In confirming its "no booze" policy the board denied a request that sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages be allowed at adult functions sponsored by an incorporated society, charitable or social group for which a liquor permit has been issued by the Alberta Liquor Control Board.

Back to Drawing Board

It's back to the drawing board for a school district 61 corporate symbol, Greater Victoria school trustees decided Tuesday.

The board held a contest among students at six senior secondary schools to design a new logo to be used on stationery and vehicles.

At an education committee meeting Tuesday the trustees had a look at the three best designs, and decided none of them are suitable.

Call to Open Schools

Trustee Peter Bunn wanted to know Tuesday why all Greater Victoria schools can't be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. during Education Week.

Bunn was dismayed at the fact the public was invited to visit some schools for only a short period, an hour or less at a few schools during the Education Week last month.

Parents can't organize their day around a one-hour visiting period to the schools, he said, and if they knew the schools were open for five whole days perhaps more of them would take an interest in the schools' operations.

District superintendent Jake Longmore said "gentle persuasion" had been used on principals in the past to try to get them to open schools to the public, but it was not enough. Something else might have to be tried in future, he said.

Trustee Daphne Temple said it doesn't matter if an influx of parents into the schools causes a disruption for a week.

Trustees Debate Educational TV

Greater Victoria school board may ask the Canadian Radio Television Commission to set a special educational rate for schools using cable facilities.

The board will consult with the Vancouver school board on the possibility of submitting a brief to the CRTC's public hearings on cable policy due to begin April 26 in Montreal.

Greater Victoria trustees, meeting as the board's education committee Monday, were presented with projected costs of installing cablevision in district schools, but were dubious about rental rates quoted by Victoria Cablevision Ltd.

Cost of a pilot project involving 19 schools was put at about $12,700. Capital outlay, which made up $10,100 of the total, would be shared 50-50 with the provincial government, conditional on approval by ratepayers in a referendum.

Service to all schools in the district (58) would be in the neighborhood of $40,000, about $31,000 in capital expenditures.

Main capital expenses include bringing service to the schools — costs vary acording to the distance — installation charges, and one black and white monitor for each school.

The report on educational TV was prepared by Colin Glover, acting director of curricular services.

Just Leave It to Bill School Trustees Told

Greater Victoria school trustees were told Tuesday to leave up to their community information officer Bill Stavdal the business of finding the best way to give the general public a voice in education.

"If you want this job done give it to Bill, leave him alone and let him get it done," said director of instruction Dr. John Wiens.

Several months ago the board asked Stavdal to investigate the alternative approaches to community involvement. Since then, Wiens said, some trustees have added their proposals on how this should be done, and the result has been that Stavdal has had no clear direction from the board of what it wants.

SOUNDED OUT

Stavdal said Tuesday he had sounded out opinions among various interest groups, and general feeling favored increased public involvement.

However there was widespread criticism of one trustee's proposal to appoint one senior student and one teacher to the education committee because they would only be a token representation.

The idea which seems to have the most support is establishment of committees in each area around the senior secondary schools. These committees would be composed of students, teachers, principals, parents and non-parents, and would have an advisory role.

The six area groupings in the Greater Victoria district would be similar to six Project Learning committees set up last year to work out objectives of the school system.

"Couldn't we just resurrect Project Learning and get it running again?" asked trustee Walter Donald.

Trustee Allan McKinnon expressed doubt that any group of citizens would have the enthusiasm to sit on such a committee for any length of time.

Before the Judge

Rudolph P. Ohm, of Cobble Hill, pleaded guilty Tuesday in court here to firing a pistol during an argument with occupants of a car he felt was improperly parked.

Judge William Ostler remanded Ohm to April 28 for sentence on charges of using a firearm in a manner dangerous to others and possessing a restricted weapon.

A Saanich policeman testified that Ohm was driving south on Holland Ave. in Saanich last Dec. 12 about 1:50 a.m. and stopped for a car in the 3800 block.

The officer said the other vehicle partly blocked the roadway and the high headlight beams were on.

The accused left his car and began to argue with the occupants.

The policeman said the argument developed into a shouting match and two other persons who had been in a nearby shed became involved.

At one point, the officer said, Ohm produced a .25-calibre pistol and fired it once into the road before driving off.

When he shot the pistol one person was about a foot away and another felt a spray of rock chips from the impact of the bullet with the road surface.

Investigating officers later took two pistols from the accused.

A 62-year-old widow was fined a total of $500 and sentenced to one day in jail when she pleaded guilty to charge of shoplifting and false pretences under $50.

Margaret Thompson, 1065 Monterey, had earlier pleaded guilty to another shoplifting count.

A security officer from The Bay testified that the woman was observed in the store about 2:45 p.m. March 24 wandering through several departments.

She was seen to pick up items and put them in a bag she was carrying and at one point received a refund for a pair of scissors taken from The Bay.

said the offences were more

Prosecutor John Macintyre serious than the normal impulse shoplifting cases and added that the accused had engaged in "deliberate fraud."

Ostler fined the woman $250 for one shoplifting offence and the false pretences offence and sentenced her to a minimum one day in jail for the second shoplifting charge.

He gave her one year to pay the fines.

Thomas D. Cogley, 22, of no fixed address, was sentenced to one month in jail and placed on an 18-month probation for theft under $50.

He had earlier pleaded guilty to taking a pair of pants, valued at $9.99, from The Bay without paying for them.

Cogley who had previous convictions, asked Ostler before sentence if he could have the supervision of a probation officer because he had been addicted to heroin and had used methadone for withdrawal purposes.

He said he was not now addicted to anything and with some supervision he felt he could get control of himself.

Stanley Michell, 45, of Bellingham, Wash., was fined $400 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told that the accused was driving approximately 50 to 65 miles an hour on Douglas near Vernon about 6 p.m. April 11 before he was stopped.

He was changing lanes and his car was observed fishtailing over the double line.

He had a breathalyzer reading of .20 per cent blood-alcohol content at the time.

Gregory R. Darling, 21, of 829 Hillside, was fined $350 when he pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

He was searched in Bastion Square April 10 and a quantity of the substance was found.

Stanley C. Walter, 54, of 1765 Haultain, was sentenced to 20 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to being in care and control of a vehicle while he was impaired.

He was found behind the wheel of a car in the 900-block Richmond Feb. 6.

He had an earlier conviction for impaired driving in August of 1969.

WIDER SAANICH ROAD FOR CONSIDERATION

Saanich public works committee recommended Tuesday night that Saanich Road between Douglas Street and Vernon Avenue be improved.

The recommendation will be considered later this month when council considers this year's municipal budget.

Cost of improving Saanich Road was put at $57,000 which would raise the provisional roads budget to $462,750.

Engineer Neville Life recommended that Saanich share in the cost of widening Saanich Road to four lanes as far as Seymour. This would cover the road immediately adjacent to Town and Country Shopping Centre.

He said present levels of congestion and anticipated traffic problems make improvements necessary. It was also desirable to widen and rebuild the road up to Vernon Avenue which is "deteriorating seriously."

The committee also recommended approval for a traffic signal at McKenzie and Blenkinsop. If a traffic count formula is met, signals were also recommended at McKenzie and Gordon Head Road and McKenzie and Cedar Hill Road.

A major street lighting program in Gordon Head was recommended for approval, following the deletion of a minor area including Mileva, Eva, Daphne, Juniper and Bonita roads.

The area is bounded roughly by Feltham, Cedar Hill Road, Robinwood, the sea and Torquay. Nearly all the objections came from the Mileva Lane area, where 34 were against street lights.

Cost of the program to property owners is $9.88 a year for 10 years.

INFLUENZA OUTBREAK BELIEVED ON DECLINE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city's deputy health officer, Dr. G. A. Mott, says the flu outbreak which indirectly caused seven deaths in the Vancouver area and about 10 in nearby New Westminster, appears to be on the decline here.

Dr. Mott said Tuesday it will be impossible to assess the exact number of deaths for the outbreak until the end of the year.

"It's very difficult to get the exact figures because influenza is not usually the single cause of death," he said.

"There are occasionally flu deaths, usually among children, but we haven't had any of those.

"What we are getting are deaths that were expected anyway among members of the older age group."

Dr. Mott said flu outbreaks rarely last longer than eight to 10 weeks.

"We're in the sixth week now, so it should be running out soon."

The 10 deaths in New Westminster were recorded over a period of about a month, the last coming Saturday.

New Westminster Coroner Doug Jack said the outbreak there appeared to be confined to the age group between 30 and 55.

Alaska Governor Wants Big Pipeline PR Drive

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska Governor William A. Egan has proposed that his state launch a $500,000 nationwide public relations drive aimed at winning public support for the controversial trans-Alaska pipeline.

Egan introduced a bill in the Alaska house of representatives Tuesday proposing creation of a citizens commission on Alaskan resources education to correct "misinformation and misconceptions about Alaska."

The bill was accompanied by a measure to appropriate $500,000 from the state's general fund to finance the commission.

"I think that generally speaking throughout the other states there is a misunderstanding of what Alaska's plan for development of natural resources is all about," Egan said.

"The misconception has grown that we are depleting our non-renewable natural resources as rapidly as possible, which is exactly the opposite of what has been happening in Alaska.

"Our approach from the very first upon obtaining statehood," said Egan, "has been a striving to develop our natural resources in an ordered and paced manner that best serves both the state's and nation's needs."

The pipeline, proposed by seven oil companies to bring oil to market from Alaska's North Slope, is opposed by conservationists and still in need of federal interior department approval for construction to start.

Alaska Attorney-General John Havelock said the proposed commission could dispatch Alaska representatives across the country to appear on radio and television talk shows and deliver speeches.

The commission also would be authorized to bring others to Alaska "to view resource management at first hand."

Community Housing Plan

Anyone who wants to participate in a community housing project is invited to attend a meeting on the subject sponsored by the Victoria Low Income Group on April 19.

Low Income Group president Walter Olszewski says he has been told financing for a project consisting of 50 or 100 townhouses could be made available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

But before a start is made the Low Income Group wants to consult with people who might live in the project to find out what kind of features they would like, what they feel about community living and how much say they would like in the running of the project.

"We don't want another Rose-Blanshard," Olszewski said.

"We want to involve the people in the community so that this project won't be a place where you stick all the poor people, like in Rose-Blanshard."

Architects will attend the April 19 meeting which will be held in the basement of St. Andrew's Cathedral at Blanshard and View.

Inflation Vigil Begins Again

Basford Hints Pay Controls

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said today another year of inflationary price increases may force the federal government to establish wage and price controls.

Basford, in a telephone interview from Vancouver, refused to specify what sort of controls the government may have in mind, but he warned that the watch against inflation is being strictly kept.

"It would be very difficult to deal with another round of inflation without some form of enforceable incomes policy," he said.

STILL STRONG

He noted that while the 12-month, 1.9 per cent increase in consumer prices through March 1971, was the "best in the western world" and below the two per cent considered to be the maximum non-inflationary gain, cost pressures are still strong in the economy.

"In another few months we are going to have to watch it very carefully."

In March, the consumer price index rose four-tenths of a point to 131.3 on a base of 1961 prices. The increase was due to higher prices for food, clothing and housing, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

In February, the index was 130.9. And in March, 1970, the figure stood at 128.9.

The only components of the index which did not rise last month were tobacco and alcohol.

LADS HAVE RIPPING TIME WITH $2,900

TORONTO (CP) — Seven Toronto boys found $2,900 in 1937, $10, $20 and $100 bills while playing in a city ravine Tuesday.

Robert Primmer, 7, literally fell face first into the cache of soggy, partially-frozen bills hidden under grass.

"I thought it was Monopoly or some other kind of phoney money," said Jeff Guenther, one of the finders of the bills bearing the likeness of King George VI.

The boys started ripping up some of the money and throwing it into the air before they thought it might be valuable.

They split up the money and took it to their homes, where their parents called police.

Police are circulating notices to see whether anyone claims it. Should no one claim the money, the boys can have it at the end of 90 days.

"I'm going to buy bubble gum, lots and lots of bubble gum," said Kirk Coggon, 6, another of the finders.

Four Nations Back Ceylon In Battle Against Rebels

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike thanked "friendly countries" Tuesday night for supplying urgently needed equipment for her troops and police fighting youthful insurgents.

Mrs. Bandaranaike did not name the countries or specify the equipment in her broadcast. But India, Pakistan, Britain and the United States all have sent arms or equipment to her leftist regime.

Indian and Pakistani helicopters can be seen taking off from a Colombo athletic field for areas where rebel attacks continue unabated. Britain is sending six more helicopters and a U.S. Air Force plane arrived Tuesday with spare parts badly needed by the Ceylonese air force.

Today is New Year's Day on the Buddhist calendar. But the three-day celebration was blighted by the uprising launched April 5 by young Marxist extremists who call themselves Che Guevarists after the Latin-American revolutionary.

Mrs. Bandaranaike said she was deeply grieved by the activities of the insurgents whom she said have abandoned the decencies of civilized life.

HIT REBEL HIDEOUT

Government forces assaulted an insurgent hideout at Maho in the northwest region killing 10 young rebels and capturing food and arms supplies, the government said today.

A spokesman said 65 bags of rice, large quantities of ammunition, guns and bombs, a tractor and a store of police tunics were recovered in the raid Tuesday. The tunics were apparently taken during the raids by the insurgents on police posts.

The government claims the insurgents are running out of food and arms and are turning to looting from civilians to bolster their dwindling stocks.

In a second engagement along the Puttalam-Anuradhapura road in the jungled northern sector of the island five rebels were killed, the government said.

Hundreds of insurgents have been reported killed in the last week.

The island's 16-hour daily curfew was lifted this morning and will be reimposed again at dusk.

Finance Minister N. M. Perera said the price the country is paying for the insurgents' campaign of destruction is "terrific."

SHIPS, PLANES STAY—LAIRD

WASHINGTON (WP) — U.S. ships and warplanes will remain on duty in Southeast Asia long after the last American soldier leaves Vietnam, U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird indicated Tuesday.

He told newsmen at a press conference at the Pentagon that these naval and air forces "would be a part of the realistic deterrent which we will maintain in Asia."

The defence secretary thus hardened the impression that President Nixon is counting on warships off Vietnam and planes in Thailand to offset any diplomatic leverage he loses in Asia by the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam.

WINE, LIQUOR PLANNED FOR ALBERTA TAVERNS

EDMONTON (CP) — The Journal said today wine and liquor will be permitted in Alberta taverns under legislation now being considered by the provincial government.

Extension of licences to beverage rooms meeting certain standards likely will be an additional amendment introduced by the government through Provincial Treasurer Anders Aalborg during committee stages of Bill 88.

The bill would permit exhibition associations to have "beer gardens" at annual fairs, and also smaller restaurants to have beer and wine licences.

B.C. Teachers Vote To Keep Strike Tactic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the British Columbia Teachers' Federation voted in a special session Tuesday night to retain the strike tactic as a legitimate method of obtaining better pensions.

The vote, on a show of hands, was approved by a large majority of the 1,000 teachers, who were joined by about 22,000 other federation members Mar. 19 in staging a one-day strike on the contentious pension issue.

They also passed a resolution making the escalations of pensions to keep up with the cost of living a major objective.

The teachers walked out last month to protest the provincial government's lack on improvement in pensions for 2,200 of their retired fellow workers.

The B.C. government had introduced legislation calling for a seven-per-cent increase for retired teachers, bringing maximum monthly payments to $271.

However, teachers still working would receive a 50-percent hike.

REJECT PROPOSAL

Majority of the resolutions laid before the delegates were referred back for executive consideration, but the teachers voted around 75-25 against one motion that called on Premier W. A. C. Bennett to redirect the March 19 pay of striking teachers to retired teachers' pensions.

Delegates said it would be as "unworthy" as the premier's tactic of calling on teachers to donate a day's salary to the fund "if they really cared" about retired colleagues.

At the outset, the teachers knocked back a resolution asking that pensions be a subject for negotiation between the federation and the provincial government with impartial arbitration failing agreement.

Delegates sent the motion to pension and executive committees after pension committee chairman Tom Hutchinson warned of "implicit dangers."

Mr. Hutchinson said the federation would have to carefully determine just how strong a stand it was prepared to take to persuade the government to relinquish its the pension field.

"unquestioned authority" in

He said delegates had to bear in mind the possibility of an independent arbitration board working within a dollar framework set by the government.

Nixon Announces Five Steps To Ease Peking Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today five new steps to ease relations with China, including a move toward direct trade between the two countries.

The other steps:

● The United States is prepared to expedite visas for visitors or groups of visitors from the Peoples Republic of China to the U.S.

● U.S. dollar currency controls are to be relaxed to permit the use of dollars by the Peoples Republic. Previously the U.S. treasury department had to grant a licence for the use of dollars.

● Restrictions will be ended on American oil companies providing fuel to ships or aircraft travelling to or from China except for Chinese-owned or chartered carriers bound to or from North Vietnam, North Korea or Cuba.

● U.S. vessels or aircraft now may carry Chinese cargoes between non-Chinese ports and U.S.-owned foreign-flag carriers may call at Chinese ports.

Nixon said that he asked for a list of items of non-strategic nature which could be placed under general licence for direct export to the Peoples Republic of China.

"Following my review and approval of specific items on this list, direct imports of designated items from China will then also be authorized," the president said.

He said that after consideration is given to the results of these changes in trade and travel restrictions "I will consider what additional steps might be taken."

Soldiers Aflame From Firebombs

BELFAST (AP)—For seven hours, 1,000 British troops battled 2,000 Protestants trying to firebomb a Roman Catholic church Tuesday night in the bloodiest rioting in Northern Ireland in weeks.

Four soldiers were set ablaze by Molotov cocktails at the height of the fight, but other troops doused the flames before they suffered serious injury.

The violence began after a 12-year-old Protestant, Harry Martin, was felled by a burst of automatic fire as a Protestant parade wound up four days of Easter demonstrations that until then had been peaceful.

Martin was either in the parade or watching it when some of the 3,000 young marchers broke through a protective police cordon around a Catholic section. The Protestants waved Union Jacks, the Catholics waved the Irish Republic's tricolor; then the burst of firing came, wounding young Martin and grazing three adults.

A bullet was removed from the child's thigh and he was reported in satisfactory condition. But an angry crowd of Protestants gathered and after an hour attacked St. Matthew's Church, which the Protestants charge is a sanctuary and snipers' post for the terrorist Irish Republican Army.

ERECT BARRIERS

The British troops threw up barriers of barbed wire and armor to keep back the mobs. The Protestants attacked with gasoline bombs, concrete slabs, bottles, rocks and iron.

"They started it, let us finish it," one Protestant shouted at the security forces who sealed off the area.

When the mob was finally put to flight, at least 13 civilians and several soldiers had been injured, and 27 persons had been arrested.

Several missiles hit the church but caused little damage.

A shop was set afire and windows of other stores were smashed and their contents strewn in the roadway. An army water cannon put out the blaze, and the troops fired several rounds of rubber bullets.

It was the first serious encounter between the troops and the Protestants since last October. Recently the trouble has been between the British and IRA extremists fighting to reunite Ireland.

Toothbrush Hijackers Fooled by Pilot

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three young hijackers armed with sharpened toothbrush handles failed in an attempt Tuesday to divert a light passenger plane from its destination in Winnipeg, where they were being sent to make a court appearance.

The youths told the pilots to fly them "any place but Winnipeg" but their scheme was foiled when the pilots flew the plane through clouds to keep its course secret until the seven-passenger Navajo, owned by Midwest Airlines, was above Winnipeg.

The plane left Dauphin, Man. on a scheduled noon flight to Winnipeg carrying three other passengers—Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg and his wife, who had been in the west-central Manitoba town since Monday, and another unidentified passenger.

In Dauphin, probation officer Don Anderson said the youths were on their way for a scheduled court appearance in Winnipeg on a theft case. They had not been charged in the case.

He said the youths, from the Dauphin area, were being sent to a Winnipeg detention home.

Mr. Anderson said the practice has been to have such youngsters escorted to a waiting plane and to allow them to make the flight unescorted. An escort is appointed to meet the plane at its destination.

Pilot Robert Taylor outwits hijackers

"Of the hundreds of juveniles we've transported this way, we've never before had a single case of trouble."

In Winnipeg, Mr. Juba said today he wants a full investigation of the affair. He said the youths were "victims of circumstances" and he had promised to try to help them in their plight. He did not elaborate.

The mayor's executive assistant said Mr. Juba appeared upset and shaken when he was in his office Tuesday afternoon.

A spokesman for the airline said it has always regarded juveniles in detention on its planes as "clients of the welfare authorities."

He said the company now will start determining if the clients are known offenders

Singing a Song Of 'One Canada'

By Jack Scott

We've a variety of opinions today to wrap up the subject of English-French bilingualism, beginning with a wry comment from Alan Simpson, a well-travelled business type of our town who has this to say:

"The English-speaking Canadian, especially if he's inclined to be prejudiced against the Quebecer, runs into something of an identity crisis when he is abroad. There is always one of those liquid parties where he is asked to lead in the singing of Canada's national anthem. That, of course, is Alouette."

Scott

* * *

And J. J. Zubick, out on William Head Road, who happens to speak a half dozen languages, notes, "But it was when I added French that I began to really understand English and to appreciate the marvellous richness and flexibility it has acquired by its universality of linguistic content.

"The best thing that ever happened to the English language was when French was 'forced' on the English by the Normans. It was from then on that the mishmash of Germanic dialects of the English began to grow because the people had the good sense to accept and incorporate into their weak linguistic structure words from anywhere and everywhere, especially from the French, so that educated English now is about 40 per cent of French origin, about the same percentage Germanic and the rest from other sources."

* * *

"I am of English origin," comments M.H., of our town, "got my naturalization papers about 15 years ago and have never been able to understand how the native-born Canadian can deliberately refuse to take advantage of bilingualism. If every Canadian were truly bilingual we'd have a better chance of amounting to something in world affairs."

* * *

"My husband and I lived for 20 years in different suburbs of Montreal," comments Mrs. Helen Lapp. "We found the city and the people had an animation that is reproduced nowhere in North America to our knowledge. Montreal is a vibrant, exciting city with a unique beauty.

"It is true that I couldn't believe how kind and helpful sales personnel in Victoria were in comparison to the 'drop dead' attitude often encountered in Montreal stores, but we have met so many wonderful, warm, kind French-Canadians that one looks beyond the facade of hostility presented by many of the young people. I feel that we of the English-speaking majority have prepared the soil in which such an attitude can thrive.

"The solution to the whole problem is love. This would dissolve the fear on both sides and open the door to compromises so that neither group would have to give up cherished rights, but have the joy of defending the rights of the other. We need an end to fear and selfishness."

* * *

"Victoria is beautiful," notes a correspondent who asks for anonymity, "but the narrow attitude that's taken here toward Quebec has to be experienced to be believed. The fact is it is a beautiful province and they are fine people."

* * *

H. F. Edmond, of Victoria, disagrees with the contention that Quebec separatism is rooted in exploitation and oppression by English-speaking Canadians.

"I submit that the true causes of the present conditions in Quebec are the educational system since 1867 and the long-standing enmities arising from the rivalries of European diplomacy which were transferred to the new world."

"Quebec has had separate schools since 1867. The English-speaking Canadians paid for everything they got through school fees and school taxes, much heavier than those paid by the French-speaking Canadians . . . because most of their teachers were Nuns or Brothers. They provided an excellent education in law, medicine, classics and theology. But they offered nothing to prepare their students for the industrial world.

"For years many French-speaking Canadians who wanted to enter the industrial world braved the disfavor of the parish priest and sought their education in the English universities or went to the United States or Europe. Obviously the French-speaking Canadians who could afford to provide such an education for their children were the professional class.

"The local priests discouraged any effort on the part of industry to settle in their small towns or villages. As the English-speaking Canadians were usually behind any industrial effort this helped to increase the anti-English feeling among the Habitant.

"Too often, the so-called oppression by the English has been used as a convenient excuse by the French-speaking Canadian to explain his own shortcomings."

* * *

Kenneth O. Coarke, a former Toronto high school principal "living in the sinful serenity of retirement at Sooke," adds this comment:

"Whether it is a token gesture or not to our compatriots in Quebec, the learning of French should certainly be upgraded in the schools of English-speaking Canada. As it is now 'high school French' is a pathetic farce. It should be taught conversationally, as you suggest, from the very first grade and made a living, enjoyable part of a nation fortunate enough to have two distinctive cultures."

* * *

Bill Stavdal, of Victoria, is another who disagrees that Quebec has been oppressed "except in the same way and for the same reasons that Canada has been 'oppressed' by the United States: match two cultures and one will dominate, anywhere, anytime.

"You know that the church and people like Duplessis collaborated to crush legitimate labor unions. The church feared communism and Duplessis wanted industry. You know that Quebec's incredibly archaic education system left most of the population with nothing more than a grade school education. Is it any wonder that English-speaking Canadians came to occupy the best jobs, the positions of influence?

"Let's recall that in 1759 Quebec had a population of about 65,000. The British left them with their language, religion and civil law. To this society was added a handful of British-Americans. Donald Creighton describes them as a tiny minority, without the power or the wish to alter the economic growth and social organization of the colony.' Why didn't the French simply absorb the English? My answer, in plain words is that the English culture was superior to the French."

* * *

Burke Cahill, an instructor in Canadian studies at the Adult Institute, points out the many adaptable faces of both English- and French-speaking Canadians.

"When the English Canadian feels fear of the United States," he writes, "he asserts his British heritage. Thus a Vancouver alderman says of riot control: 'Let's do it the British, not the American way here.'

"When the same English Canadian feels fear of the British fist here he asserts duality with the French, or his true Canadianism, as when he takes pride in the figure Trudeau cuts in London, as Laurier also did, inspiring the same peculiar pride of duality in nationhood.

"When the same English Canadian is in fear or resentment of the French here, however, he disastrously tends to assert his Americanism. So he harps on one language like the United States and appeals to his English-speaking 'cousins' to the south."

Airplane Roar Drowns Out Protest Meeting

By PAT MUNSON

The roar of aircraft passing overhead frequently drowned out complaints and explanations Tuesday night at a lively public meeting in Sidney on noise pollution.

About 100 people were on hand to hear a psychologist warn of physical dangers from noise and a government official explain developments at nearby Victoria International Airport.

They were on their feet shouting angrily at one point, the main target CP Air's jets which have been practising approaches bringing them low over Sidney.

One elderly resident, whose home on Sixth Street is in line with a runway, complained the plane had caused his newly-painted walls to crack, had broken four windows and dirtied the wash.

Loud applause supported another man who objected to the practice runs at all hours, including Sundays and holidays.

●

"If I started a cement mixer before 8 a.m. on Sunday I'd have the RCMP on my neck," he said.

The meeting was called by the Sidney and North Saanich branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control.

Dr. Frank Stellacey, a psychologist, and R. S. Heiliger, regional superintendent of airways for the federal department of transport, were among speakers.

"You are being physically pummeled every time you hear loud noises," said Stellacey.

While ceffects of noise on humans has not been sufficiently documented, he said loud noise involves psychologocal distress as well as physical impact.

"Deafness has long been thought to be normal in the process of aging but surveys in non-industrial areas have proved that aged persons not exposed to noise have a hearing acuity similar to the young."

Stellacey also said there is speculation that living near an airport can influence fetal defelopment with distinct effect on a child's later reaction to noise.

Heiliger said residents were justified in complaining about disturbance by practising aircraft on holidays.

●

But he noted the airport had been there since 1939 "and anyone moving here since that time must have been aware that the airport would grow."

Victoria's airport is an alternate sometimes used by diverted aircraft and pilot proficiency regulations must include practice here, he said.

Jim McKeachie, public relations manager for CP Air in western Canada, said from Vancouver today the airline is sorry for the disturbance but practice approaches and landings are an operational requirement.

Of over 700 such flights conducted at various airports on the coast between mid-March and April 5 only 33 were at the Victoria airport.

An instrument landing system will be located at the west end of the airport, eliminating some of the noise problem for Sidney, Heiliger told Tuesday's meeting.

SPEC vice-president George Simmons asked whether noise control devices were a possible solution. Heiliger said no acceptable device which still allows enough thrust to maintain flight had been developed.

"But we hope to achieve this within five yeears."

A program to cut down the visual pollution from exhaust gases will be completed by the end of this year.

●

Dr. Joan Coldwell, chairman of the SPEC branch's noise committee, urged those present to write the department of transport and CP Air complaining of the practice flights and to petition for noise muffling devices.

SPEC will seek support from Sidney council in its letter-writing campaign.

Uvic Clerks Back Faculty And Students

Clerical employees at the University of Victoria Tuesday passed a resolution supporting students, faculty and the Canadian Association of University Teachers in the current faculty-administration dispute.

A resolution passed by a 33 to 23 margin said members of local 951 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees support the efforts of students and faculty members "to obtain justice for 11 faculty members whose cases are still in dispute by means of an impartial tribunal as recommended by the CAUT for three of the cases and a moratorium year without prejudice for these three as well as the remaining eight until their cases have been resolved."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Uvic president Bruce Partridge, the board of governors and the senate.

The resolution was proposed by Joan Hendrickson, a McPherson Library employee and seconded by Patrick Monk, also of the library.

The resolution came under new business at the end of the lengthy meeting, which had been called to discuss matters related to the clerical employees' contract negotiations with the university administration.

About 70 members attended the meeting, but some left toward the end, leaving 56 to vote on the special resolution.

The union local also authorized its negotiating committee to prepare a strike ballot at its discretion, and decided to apply for the services of a mediation officer, following receipt of a second contract offer from the university.

Environmental Control Meet To Hear Ministers

The provincial government and the province's 28 regional districts will start trying to get together on land use and environmental management at a one-day conference here Friday.

More than 100 persons may attend the meeting which will hear papers from five departments represented on the provincial environment and land use committee.

Resources Minister Ray Williston and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell are also scheduled to speak at the conference which is aimed at closer administrative co-operation in the environment field.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. at Newcombe Auditorium.

Aged Protected From Flu Bug

Visits to patients at Mount St. Mary Hospital have been banned because of the high incidence of influenza, an announcement from the administration said today.

The ban does not include the volunteers who come to help feed the patients, a spokesman said.

Dry Cleaners Destroyed; Three Firemen Injured

Fire ruined the main plant of Individual Dry Cleaners at Oak Bay Junction Tuesday night but appeared to cause no damage to adjacent properties.

A large crowd gathered to watch the billowing smoke which spread for blocks around while police closed the Fort-Pandora-Oak Bay Avenue intersection to traffic.

City fire chief Eric Simmons said the cause of the fire is not known. No damage estimate was available.

He said because of the extensive damage, the investigation now under way will take some time. Adjacent premises were apparently undamaged.

Three firefighters suffered minor injuries while the blaze was brought under control and extinguished. Saanich and Oak Bay fire departments stood by, he said, but did not directly assist in the individual fire.

Gordon Carter, president of Individual Dry Cleaners, said he doesn't know what the damage will cost but put it in the tens of thousands of dollars.

"I think the building is a write-off, we will have to rebuild," he said as he surveyed the ruins this morning.

He said most of the clothing in the store was burned but insurance covers this. He said a temporary office will be established and other stores can assist those who had clothing in the main store.

Arrangements have been made with Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd. to use their facilities at night to handle Individual's laundry and dry cleaning, Carter said.

The fire forced the evacuation of 30 residents of nearby apartments above stores. The fire was reported to Victoria fire department by Mrs. Herman Quocksister, caretake of the apartments.

"The lights began to flicker and I got a call from one of the tenants that she was seeing flames out the window," she said.

The operator of a nearby service station, Alex Hutcheson, alerted Mrs. Hem Yee, wife of the proprietor of Junction Tailors, who fled the building with her young child. The Yees live at the back of the tailor shop.

Firefighters had the blaze under control by about 10 p.m., concentrating efforts on soaking down walls of the apartment building and Junction Tailors to prevent the fire spreading.

Woman Injured by Burns In Rockland House Fire

A Victoria woman was reported in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital following an early morning fire which caused extensive damage to a house at 1603 Rockland Avenue.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sassen was the scene of the second city fire within a few hours. The first ruined the main plant of Individual Dry Cleaners at nearby Oak Bay Junction.

While firefighters were at the Rockland Avenue house, a third fire was reported at Victoria Paving on Garbally Road. It was described as a rubbish fire and the fire department was there about an hour.

Fire chief Eric Simmons said an investigation is under way. While the cause was not determined, one theory was that the house fire was electrical in origin. It was not incendiary, he said.

Mrs. Sassen was taken to hospital suffering burns to her face and arms.

An elderly woman living with the Sassens, Mrs. Gwyneth MacKie, leaped from an upstairs window. Her fall was broken by neighbors waiting below. She was taken to hospital and released after treatment.

Roger Hemeon, an eyewitness to the fire, said he first noticed the whole of one side of the house ablaze, then the front. He helped break Mrs. MacKie's fall.

Project Short On Concern

An attempt to form a local Project Concern committee has failed.

Only two people attended the organizational meeting Tuesday night — one of them the group's sponsor Gary Weir, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Weir had hoped to set up an independent, non-political group to carry on the work of Dr. Jim Turpin, the founder of Project Concern.

The group provides medical care and training for people in remote areas. Clinics have been established in Hong Kong and Vietnam. Teams of volunteers provide free health services and train the local population to help themselves.

Weir said that he was "very disappointed" and hoped to try again next year.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A WHILE AGO, I ASKED for information about the trade in handcrafted souvenirs of local origin. The replies constitute a mixed bag.

No problem, said a man whose wife has been working in ceramics for a number of years. The selective visitor who wants to take home an authentic reminder of Victoria will find the choice as wide as the price range.

Another caller stressed the variety and quality of the pottery turned out on this peninsula.

A girl showed me a ring crafted with artistry and skill. It was designed for her by a Victoria silversmith whose work goes almost entirely to choosey young buyers.

"But I wouldn't call this a souvenir," said the ring-wearer. "After all, I'm not a visitor. I live here, and know where to look for the things I like."

She then went on to talk about the lively local youth trade in items of use and beauty that flourishes between buyer and maker, or finds an outlet in tucked-away boutiques.

She sees it as a turning away from the ready-made and mass-produced, and feels that tougher times have intensified rather than diminished this trend.

A woman who recently added a handicraft department to her store tells me that her chief problem is to find enough local suppliers, Indian craftsmen included.

"We're trying to get in touch with people who do craft work," she explained. "Good work that will sell."

She mentioned ceramics, paintings, carvings and rock jewelry among the sought-for wares. Some of her present suppliers work in the Victoria area. Others ply their cottage crafts up-Island or in Gulf Island homes.

They bring or send in their work. A retail price, from which the store takes a 33⅓ percentage, is agreed upon.

"Some of them are unrealistic when it comes to putting a price on their arts or handicrafts," she added, "and that's a mistake. But so far, we've found that not too many make it."

For one supplier's viewpoint, here's a letter from a Victorian who is less than happy with the handcrafter's trade as she's found it. She and a friend, both artists of experience, decided to try their luck with leather accessories and copper enamelled jewelry.

"Some stores that were stocking handcrafted items were interested," Mrs. G. S. Mitchell of 538 Linden Avenue writes, "and would take a few to try out. But to allow them to make a profit of 33⅓ to 50 and 100 per cent, we had to keep our prices to them so low that we were making less than $1.50 an hour.

"I am sure that other craftsmen could relate the same story, and a further deterrent to home industries is a licence to be paid to city hall. This isn't exorbitant in itself, but one licence covers only one person working at one address.

"Then another problem arose of which we, as babes-in-the-wood, were not aware," Mrs. Mitchell continues. "Those stores which did decide to stock some of our work, mostly small gift shops, had to be very careful to hold back any items of original design. These are bought up early in the season, shipped to Japan, reproduced by the thousand or million, and sent back here to be sold in department stores.

"You must have seen the B.C. Indian designs in beadwork sent back to us from Japan and selling at one third the price of the Indian product."

This producer of handcrafted work has become increasingly disillusioned.

"As a B.C. product myself," she concludes, "I find the lack of pride in what is under our noses frustrating, a little bewildering, but not inconsistent with what is happening to our natural resources."

Is her outlook justified? Or can the local handcrafter who produces an equivalent of the better mousetrap expect an adequate reward for time and skill expended?

We'll keep this topic open for further answers.

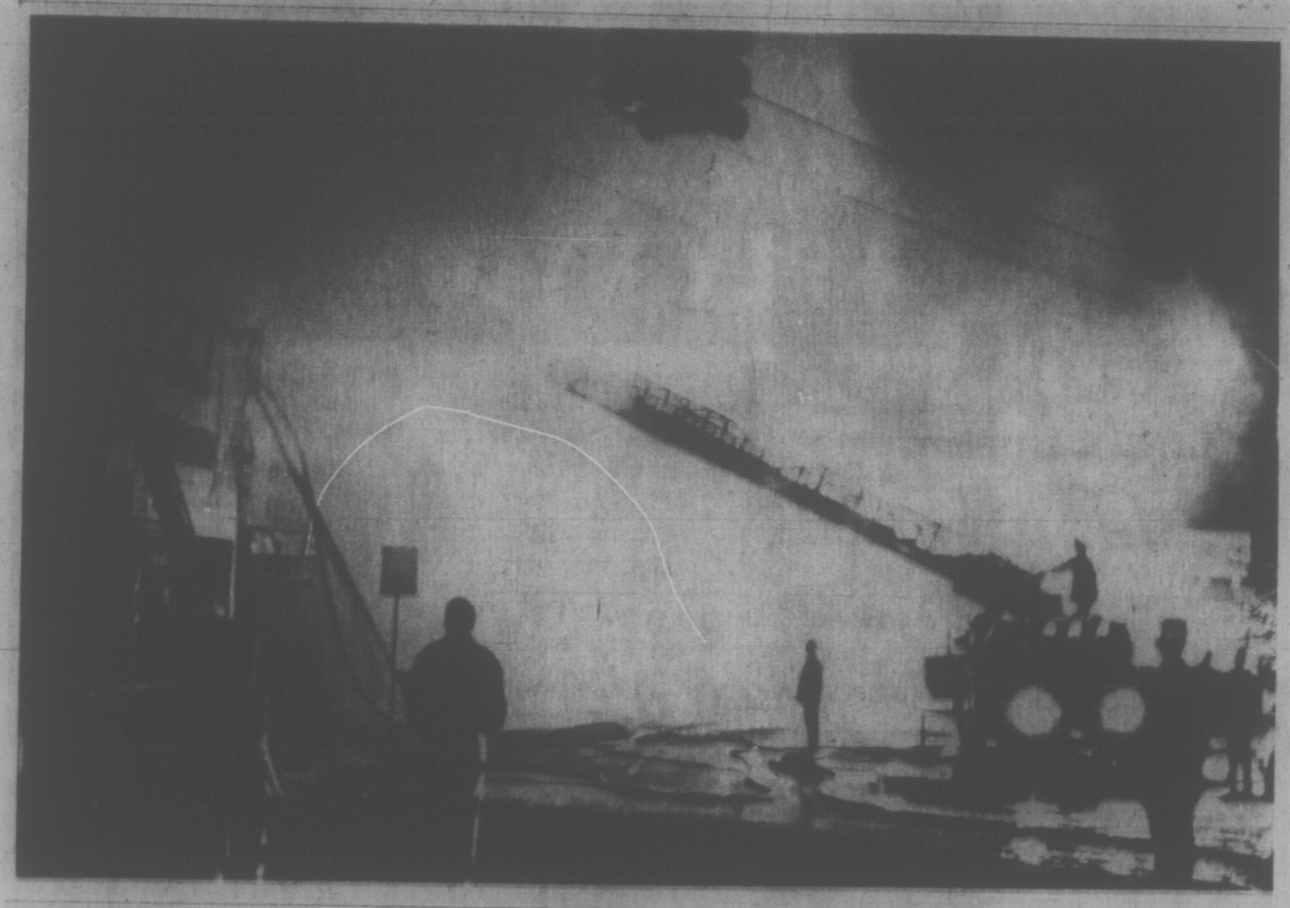
INFLATION VIGIL RESUMES

Wage, Price Controls Hinted



FIREFIGHTERS battle blaze Tuesday night which ruined the main plant of Individual Dry Cleaners, 1536 Fort. Several hundred persons gathered to watch smoke billow for blocks around. Residents in neighboring apartments were evacuated but damage appeared confined to the dry cleaning shop. See story Page 13. (Gary Nelson Photo)

Economy Under Pressure

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said today another year of inflationary price increases may force the federal government to establish wage and price controls.

Basford, in a telephone interview from Vancouver, refused to specify what sort of controls the government may have in mind, but he warned that the watch against inflation is being strictly kept.

"It would be very difficult to deal with another round of inflation without some form of enforceable incomes policy," he said.

STILL STRONG

He noted that while the 12-month, 1.9 per cent increase in consumer prices through March 1971, was the "best in the western world" and below the two per cent considered to be the maximum non-inflationary gain, cost pressures are still strong in the economy.

"In another few months we are going to have to watch it very carefully."

In March, the consumer price index rose four-tenths of a point to 131.3 on a base of 1961 prices. The increase was due to higher prices for food, clothing and housing, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

In February, the index was 130.9. And in March, 1970, the figure stood at 128.9.

The only components of the index which did not rise last month were tobacco and alcohol.

LADS HAVE RIPPING TIME WITH $2,900

TORONTO (CP) — Seven Toronto boys found $2,900 in 1937, $10, $20 and $100 bills while playing in a city ravine Tuesday.

Robert Primmer, 7, literally fell face first into the cache of soggy, partially-frozen bills hidden under grass.

"I thought it was Monopoly or some other kind of phoney money," said Jeff Guenther, one of the finders of the bills bearing the likeness of King George VI.

The boys started ripping up some of the money and throwing it into the air before they thought it might be valuable.

They split up the money and took it to their homes, where their parents called police.

Police are circulating notices to see whether anyone claims it. Should no one claim the money, the boys can have it at the end of 90 days.

"I'm going to buy bubble gum, lots and lots of bubble gum," said Kirk Coggon, 6, another of the finders.

Soldiers Aflame From Firebombs

BELFAST (AP)—For seven hours, 1,000 British troops battled 2,000 Protestants trying to firebomb a Roman Catholic church Tuesday night in the bloodiest rioting in Northern Ireland in weeks.

Four soldiers were set ablaze by Molotov cocktails at the height of the fight, but other troops doused the flames before they suffered serious injury.

The violence began after a 12-year-old Protestant, Harry Martin, was felled by a burst of automatic fire as a Protestant parade wound up four days of Easter demonstrations that until then had been peaceful.

Martin was either in the parade or watching it when some of the 3,000 young marchers broke through a protective police cordon around a Catholic section. The Protestants waved Union Jacks, the Catholics waved the Irish Republic's tricolor; then the burst of firing came, wounding young Martin and grazing three adults.

A bullet was removed from the child's thigh and he was reported in satisfactory condition. But an angry crowd of Protestants gathered and after an hour attacked St. Matthew's Church, which the Protestants charge is a sanctuary and snipers' post for the terrorist Irish Republican Army.

ERECT BARRIERS

The British troops threw up barriers of barbed wire and armor to keep back the mobs. The Protestants attacked with gasoline bombs, concrete slabs, bottles, rocks and iron.

"They started it, let us finish it," one Protestant shouted at the security forces who sealed off the area.

When the mob was finally put to flight, at least 13 civilians and several soldiers had been injured, and 27 persons had been arrested.

Several missiles hit the church but caused little damage.

A shop was set afire and windows of other stores were smashed and their contents strewn in the roadway. An army water cannon put out the blaze, and the troops fired several rounds of rubber bullets.

It was the first serious encounter between the troops and the Protestants since last October. Recently the trouble has been between the British and IRA extremists fighting to reunite Ireland.

Four Nations Back Ceylon In Battle Against Rebels

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike thanked "friendly countries" Tuesday night for supplying urgently needed equipment for her troops and police fighting youthful insurgents.

Mrs. Bandaranaike did not name the countries or specify the equipment in her broadcast. But India, Pakistan, Britain and the United States all have sent arms or equipment to her leftist regime.

Indian and Pakistani helicopters can be seen taking off from a Colombo athletic field for areas where rebel attacks continue unabated. Britain is sending six more helicopters and a U.S. Air Force plane arrived Tuesday with spare parts badly needed by the Ceylonese air force.

Today is New Year's Day on the Buddhist calendar. But the three-day celebration was blighted by the uprising launched April 5 by young Marxist extremists who call themselves Che Guevarists after the Latin-American revolutionary.

Mrs. Bandaranaike said she was deeply grieved by the activities of the insurgents whom she said have abandoned the decencies of civilized life.

HIT REBEL HIDEOUT

Government forces assaulted an insurgent hideout at Maho in the northwest region killing 10 young rebels and capturing food and arms supplies, the government said today.

A spokesman said 65 bags of rice, large quantities of ammunition, guns and bombs, a tractor and a store of police tunics were recovered in the raid Tuesday. The tunics were apparently taken during the raids by the insurgents on police posts.

The government claims the insurgents are running out of food and arms and are turning to looting from civilians to bolster their dwindling stocks.

B.C. Teachers Vote To Keep Strike Tactic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the British Columbia Teachers' Federation voted in a special session Tuesday night to retain the strike tactic as a legitimate method of obtaining better pensions.

The vote, on a show of hands, was approved by a large majority of the 1,000 teachers, who were joined by about 22,000 other federation members Mar. 19 in staging a one-day strike on the contentious pension issue.

They also passed a resolution making the escalations of pensions to keep up with the cost of living a major objective.

WALKED OUT

The teachers walked out last month to protest the provincial government's lack on improvement in pensions for 2,200 of their retired fellow workers.

The B.C. government had introduced legislation calling for a seven-per-cent increase for retired teachers, bringing maximum monthly payments to $271.

However, teachers still working would receive a 50-percent hike.

Majority of the resolutions laid before the delegates were referred back for executive consideration, but the teachers voted around 75-25 against one motion that called on Premier W. A. C. Bennett to redirect the March 19 pay of striking teachers to retired teachers' pensions.

Delegates said it would be as "unworthy" as the premier's tactic of calling on teachers to donate a day's salary to the fund "if they really cared" about retired colleagues.

At the outset, the teachers knocked back a resolution asking that pensions be a subject for negotiation between the federation and the provincial government with impartial arbitration failing agreement.

Delegates sent the motion to pension and executive committees after pension committee chairman Tom Hutchinson warned of "implicit dangers."

Mr. Hutchinson said the federation would have to carefully determine just how strong a stand it was prepared to take to persuade the government to relinquish its the pension field.

He said delegates had to bear in mind the possibility of "unquestioned authority" in an independent arbitration board working within a dollar framework set by the government.

Nixon Announces Five Steps To Ease Peking Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today five new steps to ease relations with China, including a move toward direct trade between the two countries.

The other steps:

● The United States is prepared to expedite visas for visitors or groups of visitors from the Beoples Republic of China to the U.S.

● U.S. dollar currency controls are to be relaxed to permit the use of dollars by the Peoples Republic. Previously the U.S. treasury department had to grant a licence for the use of dollars.

● Restrictions will be ended on American oil companies providing fuel to ships or aircraft travelling to or from China except for Chinese-owned or chartered carriers bound to or from North Vietnam, North Korea or Cuba.

● U.S. vessels or aircraft now may carry Chinese cargoes between non-Chinese ports and U.S.-owned foreign-flag carriers may call at Chinese ports.

Nixon said that he asked for a list of items of non-strategic nature which could be placed under general licence for direct export to the Peoples Republic of China.

CLOUDS USED TO HIDE AIRCRAFT COURSE

Toothbrush Hijackers Fooled by Pilot

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three young hijackers armed with sharpened toothbrush handles failed in an attempt Tuesday to divert a light passenger plane from its destination in Winnipeg, where they were being sent to make a court appearance.

The youths told the pilots to fly them "any place but Winnipeg" but their scheme was foiled when the pilots flew the plane through clouds to keep its course secret until the seven-passenger Navajo, owned by Midwest Airlines, was above Winnipeg.

The plane left Dauphin, Man. on a scheduled noon flight to Winnipeg carrying three other passengers—Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg and his wife, who had been in the west-central Manitoba town since Monday, and another unidentified passenger.

In Dauphin, probation officer Don Anderson said the youths were on their way for a scheduled court appearance in Winnipeg on a theft case. They had not been charged in the case.

He said the youths, from the Dauphin area, were being sent to a Winnipeg detention home.

Mr. Anderson said the practice has been to have such youngsters escorted to a waiting plane and to allow them to make the flight unescorted. An escort is appointed to meet the plane at its destination.

Pilot Robert Taylor outwits hijackers

"Of the hundreds of juveniles we've transported this way, we've never before had a single case of trouble."

In Winnipeg, Mr. Juba said today he wants a full investigation of the affair. He said the youths were "victims of circumstances" and he had promised to try to help them in their plight. He did not elaborate.

The mayor's executive assistant said Mr. Juba appeared upset and shaken when he was in his office Tuesday afternoon.

A spokesman for the airline said it has always regarded juveniles in detention on its planes as "clients of the welfare authorities."

He said the company now will start determining if the clients are known offenders

Icebreakers Open Seaway for Summer

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—The 1971 navigation season on the St. Lawrence seaway opened today, though officials said lingering ice problems may slow shipping for several days at certain points on the inland channel.

Upbound vessels were scheduled to begin passing through the St. Lambert Lock into the Montreal-Lake Ontario section after 10:30 a.m.

Shipping in both directions will be limited to daylight hours, said seaway officials, until lighted channel markers are installed in the lake, river, and canal system that links the Great Lakes with the Atlantic.

Vessels were expected to have clear sailing up to the Beauharnois canal—Lake St. Francis area, where two Canadian icebreakers are opening a passage through remaining ice.

At the other end of the waterway, a field of mixed pack ice and broken ice extends for five miles into Lake Ontario, seaway officials reported here Tuesday.

Only ships of adequate power and construction were advised to try passage, authoritis said, although another Canadian icebreaker was in the area to assist ships.

ICE PERSISTS

Heavy ice conditions also persisted at the eastern end of Lake Erie from the Long Point Peninsula in Ontario to Port Colborne. Seaway officials said there were seven ships proceeding through that area with difficulty Tuesday, aided by still another Canadian icebreaker.

Two Great Lakes freighters, escorted by a pair of U.S. Coast Guard cutters, plan to fight their way through heavy ice off Buffalo harbor Thursday in an attempt to open the Port of Buffalo shipping season.

The cutters Kaw and Ojibwa arrived in Buffalo Tuesday and are scheduled to escort the freighters William G. Mather and Frontenac back to open water.

"The Frontenac will take the lead, weather permitting Thursday, and we'll follow whatever track is set up," said Captain Kenneth W. Lowrie, skipper of the Mather.

Harold R. Packer, skipper of the Kaw, said his vessel experienced the most difficulty off Point Abino, Ont., about 10 miles from Buffalo. He said shipping lanes are blocked by windrows as much as 30 feet above the water.

The cutter Bramble, larger than the Ojibwa or the Kaw, is coming to Buffalo from Detroit with several incoming freighters. The in-bound freighters are expected to reach the ice field Friday.

Singing a Song Of 'One Canada'

By Jack Scott

We've a variety of opinions today to wrap up the subject of English-French bilingualism, beginning with a wry comment from Alan Simpson, a well-travelled business type of our town who has this to say:

"The English-speaking Canadian, especially if he's inclined to be prejudiced against the Quebecer, runs into something of an identity crisis when he is abroad. There is always one of those liquid parties where he is asked to lead in the singing of Canada's national anthem. That, of course, is Alouette."

★ ★ ★

Scott

And J. J. Zubick, out on William Head Road, who happens to speak a half dozen languages, notes, "But it was when I added French that I began to really understand English and to appreciate the marvellous richness and flexibility it has acquired by its universality of linguistic content.

"The best thing that ever happened to the English language was when French was 'forced' on the English by the Normans. It was from then on that the mishmash of Germanic dialects of the English began to grow because the people had the good sense to accept and incorporate into their weak linguistic structure words from anywhere and everywhere, especially from the French, so that educated English now is about 40 per cent of French origin, about the same percentage Germanic and the rest from other sources."

★ ★ ★

"I am of English origin," comments M.H., of our town, "got my naturalization papers about 15 years ago and have never been able to understand how the native-born Canadian can deliberately refuse to take advantage of bilingualism. If every Canadian were truly bilingual we'd have a better chance of amounting to something in world affairs."

★ ★ ★

"My husband and I lived for 20 years in different suburbs of Montreal," comments Mrs. Helen Lapp. "We found the city and the people had an animation that is reproduced nowhere in North America to our knowledge. Montreal is a vibrant, exciting city with a unique beauty.

"It is true that I couldn't believe how kind and helpful sales personnel in Victoria were in comparison to the 'drop dead' attitude often encountered in Montreal stores, but we have met so many wonderful, warm, kind French-Canadians that one looks beyond the facade of hostility presented by many of the young people. I feel that we of the English-speaking majority have prepared the soil in which such an attitude can thrive.

"The solution to the whole problem is love. This would dissolve the fear on both sides and open the door to compromises so that neither group would have to give up cherished rights, but have the joy of defending the rights of the other. We need an end to fear and selfishness."

★ ★ ★

"Victoria is beautiful," notes a correspondent who asks for anonymity, "but the narrow attitude that's taken here toward Quebec has to be experienced to be believed. The fact is it is a beautiful province and they are fine people."

★ ★ ★

H. F. Edmond, of Victoria, disagrees with the contention that Quebec separatism is rooted in exploitation and oppression by English-speaking Canadians.

"I submit that the true causes of the present conditions in Quebec are the educational system since 1867 and the long-standing enmities arising from the rivalries of European diplomacy which were transferred to the new world."

"Quebec has had separate schools since 1867. The English-speaking Canadians paid for everything they got through school fees and school taxes, much heavier than those paid by the French-speaking Canadians . . . because most of their teachers were Nuns or Brothers. They provided an excellent education in law, medicine, classics and theology. But they offered nothing to prepare their students for the industrial world.

"For years many French-speaking Canadians who wanted to enter the industrial world braved the disfavor of the parish priest and sought their education in the English universities or went to the United States or Europe. Obviously the French-speaking Canadians who could afford to provide such an education for their children were the professional class.

"The local priests discouraged any effort on the part of industry to settle in their small towns or villages. As the English-speaking Canadians were usually behind any industrial effort this helped to increase the anti-English feeling among the Habitant.

"Too often, the so-called oppression by the English has been used as a convenient excuse by the French-speaking Canadian to explain his own shortcomings."

★ ★ ★

Kenneth O. Clarke, a former Toronto high school principal "living in the sinful serenity of retirement at Sooke," adds this comment:

"Whether it is a token gesture or not to our compatriots in Quebec, the learning of French should certainly be upgraded in the schools of English-speaking Canada. As it is now 'high school French' is a pathetic farce. It should be taught conversationally, as you suggest, from the very first grade and made a living, enjoyable part of a nation fortunate enough to have two distinctive cultures."

★ ★ ★

Bill Stavdal, of Victoria, is another who disagrees that Quebec has been oppressed "except in the same way and for the same reasons that Canada has been 'oppressed' by the United States: match two cultures and one will dominate, anywhere, anytime.

"You know that the church and people like Duplessis collaborated to crush legitimate labor unions. The church feared communism and Duplessis wanted industry. You know that Quebec's incredibly archaic education system left most of the population with nothing more than a grade school education. Is it any wonder that English-speaking Canadians came to occupy the best jobs, the positions of influence?

"Let's recall that in 1759 Quebec had a population of about 65,000. The British left them with their language, religion and civil law. To this society was added a handful of British-Americans. Donald Creighton describes them as a tiny minority, without the power or the wish to alter the economic growth and social organization of the colony.' Why didn't the French simply absorb the English? My answer, in plain words is that the English culture was superior to the French."

★ ★ ★

Burke Cahill, an instructor in Canadian studies at the Adult Institute, points out the many adaptable faces of both English- and French-speaking Canadians.

"When the English Canadian feels fear of the United States," he writes, "he asserts his British heritage. Thus a Vancouver alderman says of riot control: 'Let's do it the British, not the American way here.'

'When the same English Canadian feels fear of the British fist here he asserts duality with the French, or his true Canadianism, as when he takes pride in the figure Trudeau cuts in London, as Laurier also did, inspiring the same peculiar pride of duality in nationhood.

"When the same English Canadian is in fear or resentment of the French here, however, he disastrously tends to assert his Americanism. So he harps on one language like the United States and appeals to his English-speaking 'cousins' to the south."

Airplane Roar Drowns Out Protest Meeting

By PAT MUNSON

The roar of aircraft passing overhead frequently drowned out complaints and explanations Tuesday night at a lively public meeting in Sidney on noise pollution.

About 100 people were on hand to hear a psychologist warn of physical dangers from noise and a government official explain developments at nearby Victoria International Airport.

They were on their feet shouting angrily at one point, the main target CP Air's jets which have been practising approaches bringing them low over Sidney.

One elderly resident, whose home on Sixth Street is in line with a runway, complained the plane had caused his newly-painted walls to crack, had broken four windows and dirtied the wash.

Loud applause supported another man who objected to the practice runs at all hours, including Sundays and holidays.

●

"If I started a cement mixer before 8 a.m. on Sunday I'd have the RCMP on my neck," he said.

The meeting was called by the Sidney and North Saanich branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control.

Dr. Frank Spellacy, a psychologist, and R. S. Heiliger, regional superintendent of airways for the federal department of transport, were among speakers.

"You are being physically pummeled every time you hear loud noises," said Stellacey.

While effects of noise on humans has not been sufficiently documented, he said loud noise involves psychologocal distress as well as physical impact.

"Deafness has long been thought to be normal in the process of aging but surveys in non-industrial areas have proved that aged persons not exposed to noise have a hearing acuity similar to the young."

Stellacey also said there is speculation that living near an airport can influence fetal development with distinct effect on a child's later reaction to noise.

Heiliger said residents were justified in complaining about disturbance by practising aircraft on holidays.

●

But he noted the airport had been there since 1939 "and anyone moving here since that time must have been aware that the airport would grow."

Victoria's airport is an alternate sometimes used by diverted aicraft and pilot proficiency regulations must include practice here, he said.

Jim McKeachie, public relations manager for CP Air in western Canada, said from Vancouver today the airline is sorry for the disturbance but practice approaches and landings are an operational requirement.

Of over 700 such flights conducted at various airports on the coast between mid-March and April 5 only 33 were at the Victoria airport.

An instrument landing system will be located at the west end of the airport, eliminating some of the noise problem for Sidney, Heiliger told Tuesday's meeting.

SPEC vice-president George Simmons asked whether noise control devices were a possible solution. Heiliger said no acceptable device which still allows enough thrust to maintain flight had been developed.

"But we hope to achieve this within five yeears."

A program to cut down the visual pollution from exhaust gases will be completed by the end of this year.

●

Dr. Joan Coldwell, chairman of the SPEC branch's noise committee, urged those present to write the department of transport and CP Air complaining of the practice flights and to petition for noise muffling devices.

SPEC will seek support from Sidney council in its letter-writing campaign.

Uvic-Clerks Back Faculty And Students

Clerical employees at the University of Victoria Tuesday passed a resolution supporting students, faculty and the Canadian Association of University Teachers in the current faculty-administration dispute.

A resolution passed by a 33 to 23 margin said members of local 951 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees support the efforts of students and faculty members "to obtain justice for 11 faculty members whose cases are still in dispute by means of an impartial tribunal as recommended by the CAUT for three of the cases and a moratorium year without prejudice for these three as well as the remaining eight until their cases have been resolved."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Uvic president Bruce Partridge, the board of governors and the senate.

The resolution was proposed by Joan Hendrickson, a McPherson Library employee and seconded by, Patrick Monk, also of the library.

The resolution came under new business at the end of the lengthy meeting, which had been called to discuss matters related to the clerical employees' contract negotiations with the university administration.

About 70 members attended the meeting, but some left toward the end, leaving 56 to vote on the special resolution.

The union local also authorized its negotiating committee to prepare a strike ballot at its discretion, and decided to apply for the services of a mediation officer, following receipt of a second contract offer from the university.

Environmental Control Meet To Hear Ministers

The provincial government and the province's 28 regional districts will start trying to get together on land use and environmental management at a one-day conference here Friday.

More than 100 persons may attend the meeting which will hear papers from five departments represented on the provincial environment and land use committee.

Resources Minister Ray Williston and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell are also scheduled to speak at the conference which is aimed at closer administrative co-operation in the environment field.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. at Newcombe Auditorium.

Aged Protected From Flu Bug

Visits to patients at Mount St. Mary Hospital have been banned because of the high incidence of influenza, an announcement from the administration said today.

The ban does not include the volunteers who come to help feed the patients, a spokesman said.

Dry Cleaners Destroyed; Three Firemen Injured

Fire ruined the main plant of Individual Dry Cleaners at Oak Bay Junction Tuesday night but appeared to cause no damage to adjacent properties.

A large crowd gathered to watch the billowing smoke which spread for blocks around while police closed the Fort-Pandora-Oak Bay Avenue intersection to traffic.

City fire chief Eric Simmons said the cause of the fire is not known. No damage estimate was available.

He said because of the extensive damage, the investigation now under way will take some time. Adjacent premises were apparently undamaged.

Three firefighters suffered minor injuries while the blaze was brought under control and extinguished. Saanich and Oak Bay fire departments stood by, he said, but did not directly assist in the Individual fire.

Gordon Carter, president of Individual Dry Cleaners, said he doesn't know what the damage will cost but put it in the tens of thousands of dollars.

"I think the building is a write-off, we will have to rebuild," he said as he surveyed the ruins this morning.

He said most of the clothing in the store was burned but insurance covers this. He said a temporary office will be established and other stores can assist those who had clothing in the main store.

Arrangements have been made with Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd. to use their facilities at night to handle Individual's laundry and dry cleaning, Carter said.

The fire forced the evacuation of 30 residents of nearby apartments above stores. The fire was reported to Victoria fire department by Mrs. Herman Quocksister, caretake of the apartments.

"The lights began to flicker and I got a call from one of the tenants that she was seeing flames out the window," she said.

The operator of a nearby service station, Alex Hutcheson, alerted Mrs. Hem Yee, wife of the proprietor of Junction Tailors, who fled the building with her young child. The Yees live at the back of the tailor shop.

Firefighters had the blaze under control by about 10 p.m., concentrating efforts on soaking down walls of the apartment building and Junction Tailors to prevent the fire spreading.

Woman Injured by Burns In Rockland House Fire

A Victoria woman was reported in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital following an early morning fire which caused extensive damage to a house at 1603 Rockland Avenue.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sassen was the scene of the second city fire within a few hours. The first ruined the main plant of Individual Dry Cleaners at nearby Oak Bay Junction.

While firefighters were at the Rockland Avenue house, a third fire was reported at Victoria Paving on Garbally Road. It was described as a rubbish fire and the fire department was there about an hour.

Fire chief Eric Simmons said an investigation is under way. While the cause was not determined, one theory was that the house fire was electrical in origin. It was not incendiary, he said.

Mrs. Sassen was taken to hospital suffering burns to her face and arms.

An elderly woman living with the Sassens, Mrs. Gwyneth MacKie, leaped from an upstairs window. Her fall was broken by neighbors waiting below. She was taken to hospital and released after treatment.

Roger Hemeon, an eyewitness to the fire, said he first noticed the whole of one side of the house ablaze, then the front. He helped break Mrs. MacKie's fall.

Project Short On Concern

An attempt to form a local Project Concern committee has failed.

Only two people attended the organizational meeting Tuesday night — one of them the group's sponsor Gary Weir, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Weir had hoped to set up an independent, non-political group to carry on the work of Dr. Jim Turpin, the founder of Project Concern.

The group provides medical care and training for people in remote areas. Clinics have been established in Hong Kong and Vietnam. Teams of volunteers provide free health services and train the local population to help themselves.

Weir said that he was "very disappointed" and hoped to try again next year.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A WHILE AGO, I ASKED for information about the trade in handcrafted souvenirs of local origin. The replies constitute a mixed bag.

No problem, said a man whose wife has been working in ceramics for a number of years. The selective visitor who wants to take home an authentic reminder of Victoria will find the choice as wide as the price range.

Another caller stressed the variety and quality of the pottery turned out on this peninsula.

A girl showed me a ring crafted with artistry and skill. It was designed for her by a Victoria silversmith whose work goes almost entirely to choosey young buyers.

"But I wouldn't call this a souvenir," said the ring-wearer. "After all, I'm not a visitor. I live here, and know where to look for the things I like."

She then went on to talk about the lively local youth trade in items of use and beauty that flourishes between buyer and maker, or finds an outlet in tucked-away boutiques.

She sees it as a turning away from the ready-made and mass-produced, and feels that tougher times have intensified rather than diminished this trend.

A woman who recently added a handicraft department to her store tells me that her chief problem is to find enough local suppliers, Indian craftsmen included.

"We're trying to get in touch with people who do craft work," she explained. "Good work that will sell."

She mentioned ceramics, paintings, carvings and rock jewelry among the sought-for wares. Some of her present suppliers work in the Victoria area. Others ply their cottage crafts up-Island or in Gulf Island homes.

They bring or send in their work. A retail price, from which the store takes a 33⅓ percentage, is agreed upon.

"Some of them are unrealistic when it comes to putting a price on their arts, or handicrafts," she added, "and that's a mistake. But so far, we've found that not too many make it."

For one supplier's viewpoint, here's a letter from a Victorian who is less than happy with the handcrafter's trade as she's found it. She and a friend, both artists of experience, decided to try their luck with leather accessories and copper enamelled jewelry.

"Some stores that were stocking handcrafted items were interested," Mrs. G. S. Mitchell of 538 Linden Avenue writes, "and would take a few to try out. But to allow them to make a profit of 33⅓ to 50 and 100 per cent, we had to keep our prices to them so low that we were making less than $1.50 an hour.

"I am sure that other craftsmen could relate the same story, and a further deterrent to home industries is a licence to be paid to city hall. This isn't exorbitant in itself, but one licence covers only one person working at one address.

"Then another problem arose of which we, as babes-in-the-wood, were not aware." Mrs. Mitchell continues. "Those stores which did decide to stock some of our work, mostly small gift shops, had to be very careful to hold back any items of original design. These are bought up early in the season, shipped to Japan, reproduced by the thousand or million, and sent back here to be sold in department stores.

"You must have seen the B.C. Indian designs in beadwork sent back to us from Japan and selling at one third the price of the Indian product."

This producer of hand crafted work has become increasingly disillusioned.

"As a B.C. product myself," she concludes, "I find the lack of pride in what is under our noses frustrating, a little bewildering, but not inconsistent with what is happening to our natural resources."

Is her outlook justified? Or can the local handcrafter who produces an equivalent of the better mousetrap expect an adequate reward for time and skill expended?

We'll keep this topic open for further answers.

Gallup Poll

VOTERS PREDICT TORY VICTORY

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

(World Copyright Reserved)

William Davis, new premier of Ontario, starts his mandate in a province where almost half the voters think that when the Conservatives elected him as leader, he was their best choice.

Weight of voter opinion also predicts that Conservatives will win the next election in Ontario, expected some time this year, with the Liberals trailing far behind.

Because of the importance and influence the Ontario Provincial Government represents in Canada, the Gallup Poll made a special study in this province to assess voter reaction to Mr. Davis and his party, by asking two questions.

First:

"From what you have heard or read, do you think the Ontario Conservatives did, or did not, elect the best man, Mr. William Davis, to replace Mr. John Roberts as premier of this province?"

A third of the voters are undecided, but among the remainder Mr. Davis gets a "Yes" vote, by a ratio of more than two-to-one, over the "No's".

YES	48%
NO	18
UNDECIDED	34
	100%

The second question:

"Apart from your own political feelings, which provincial party do you think will win most votes in the next provincial election, expected sometime soon?"

Mr. Davis and his Conservative Party get another two-to-one opinion, that they will be returned to power over the Liberals. Less than one-in-ten voters expect the NDP to win the coming election.

Liberals will win	22%
Conservatives will win	44
NDP will win	6
Other Parties	1
Undecided	27
	100%

Poverty Report 'Politically Edited'

TORONTO (CP) — The four staff members who quit the Senate committee on poverty last week said Tuesday they may produce their own report on the committee's findings without the "political editing" of Senator David Croll.

In interviews on CBC television, writers Ian Adams and William Cameron and economists Brian Hill and Peter Penz said the committee apparently intended to build its report around a proposal for a guaranteed annual income, ignoring other policies "directed at the sources of poverty within the economy."

The four contended Senator Croll's editing avoided references to controversial issues and cut out references to people who had appeared before the committee.

Subjects cut out of the report included workmen's compensation and poverty problems involving Indians, they said.

Mr. Adams said Senator Croll had ordered references to Toronto councillors John Sewell and Karl Jaffray eliminated from the report.

REFUSES COMMENT

Senator Croll, who refused to comment on the resignations when they were announced Sunday night, said Tuesday he would write the report, along with his own staff.

He denied the report was built mainly around the proposal for a guaranteed annual income. He said it will make recommendations on a series of supporting programs, including manpower policies and unemployment insurance.

Mr. Adams said his position as a writer was "untenable."

"It was impossible to talk about the relationship between economic power and political power. In other words, we couldn't talk about the rich in this country who made the laws and managed the country—and how the poor suffered from that."

Mr. Cameron said:

"It became apparent . . . that what the senator wanted was a report that would not confront power. But we were never told this at the beginning. We were told that we would be writing a blueprint for the next generation.

"If the next generation has to go with the sort of blueprint that I suspect the Senate committee on poverty is going to come up with, they're going to turn right and fall off at Newfoundland."

Mr. Cameron said "you don't hire people like us" if the intention is to produce a "political" document and suggested the committee would have been better advised to have hired "hacks."

The four said they decided to tell their story to "try to throw some kind of a monkey wrench into the idea of a single solution, a guaranteed annual income."

NDP Plans Anti-War Protest

NANAIMO — A spontaneous, symbolic anti-Vietnam war protest will be held by the Waffle group of the Nanaimo New Democratic Party Association at Nanoose on April 24.

Protesters plan to have a picket line at the Island Highway and Dolphin Road, near the joint torpedo testing range of the Canadian Forces and U.S. Navy.

The protest will start at 9 a.m. and end at 9 p.m. It will be followed with a torchlight parade to the Nanoose flats and wiener roast and barbecue.

The group expects support from high school and Malaspina College students.

SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee-Park has broken ground for South Korea's first subway system. Costing $81.4 million, the six-mile line will link the central railway station and Chongyangni on the eastern side of the capital.

Embryos Grown in Test Tubes

CHICAGO (AP) — A medical researcher reported Tuesday that he has been successful in growing mouse embryos in test tubes up to the heartbeat stage.

Describing his work at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, Dr. Yu-Chih Hsu, of Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene, Baltimore, said the embryos lived the equivalent of one-third of the normal mouse gestation period of 21 days.

Previous experiments have been able to keep mouse embryos alive only 3½ days, Dr. Hsu said.

His work is said to be the first time that mammalian embryos have been raised outside the uterus to the point where the embryo is usually implanted in the uterus—or the yolk-sac phase.

Dr. Hsu said the experiments with mice may yield information about the development of human embryos, which would be useful in the study of problems related to human fertility.

In Dr. Hsu's experiments, fertilized mouse eggs were grown in a tissue culture made of collagen from the tails of mice. Collagen is a gelatinous protein substance.

Dr. Hsu said the experiments succeeded in bringing the embryos from the blastocyst stage following division of the egg to the early somite stage where the segments of the body first appear.

But Dr. Hsu said the development of the embryos in test tubes did not parallel the development of embryos in the uterus.

All embryos developed in test tubes with present methods "seemed to be defective in one organ or the other," he said.

No actual hearts developed in the embryos, Dr. Hsu reported, but rhythmical contractions of 70 to 80 beats a minute resembling the heartbeat were seen in seven of 25 embryos which lived beyond the implantation stage.

The embryos died after seven or eight days, Dr. Hsu said, because there was inadequate circulation to nourish them.
